Province on 'War Footing' — Qavam Admits Minor Clashes—Tabriz Consul Advises Americans to Leave.

TEHRAN, May 20 (UP)—Minor clashes between Iranian Government troops and Azerbaijan forces were reported tonight by Premier Ahmed Qavam in an interview with the Tehran newspaper Keyhan.

A delayed dispatch from Tabriz, dated yesterday, said "Premier" Jaafar Pishevari of Azerbaijon had ordered the province on a "war footing," which he asserted would continue until the relations with the Tehran government were cleared up.

Pishevari said any aggression by the Central Government forces would be opposed by 5,000,000 Azerbaijan patriots. In event of a definite breakdown in relations between Tabriz and Tehran, he said, the "Democrats" will maintain their own government and co-operate with their sympathizers in other parts of Iran in order to overthrow reactionaries and establish a liberal government.

The United States consulate announced it was advising the six American citizens in Tabriz to leave Azerbaijan "because the situation has deteriorated." The six are three elderly missionary teachers, and two nurses and a doctor who operate an American hospital.

(Government troops attacked Azerbaijan army positions again today and fierce fighting continued until late this evening, according to an Exchange Telegraph report in London quoting the Tabriz radio. The report said government forces shelled Azerbaijan positions but that the government attacks were repelled.)

TABRIZ VERSION OF HOSTILITIES

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation reported today an Iranian Government spokesman had said "it may be possible that some over-eager frontier units had fired a few shots at Azerbaijani who were provoking them." He was commenting on broadcasts from Tabriz, Azerbaijan capital, that civil strife had broken out in the province.

Radio reports from Tabriz, recorded by BBC and Reuters, said Government troops had attacked Azerbaijan. Reuters quoted the broadcast as saying the attack came from Kurdistan, in the region near the southwestern end of Lake Urmia. The lake is about 50 miles west of Tabriz, between Kurdistan and Azerbaijan.

The Tabriz radio said Government troops launched an attack against Kurdish forces at Saqiz. It also charged Tehran's forces had attacked the "democratic garrison" at Sainkaleh (Shahindaj) with mortars. Sainkaleh is

WASHINGTON, May 20 (UP)—An Administration plan was presented today to abolish the Office of Price Administration June 30, 1947, and to speed up the removal of price ceilings from plentiful commodities beginning next Dec. 31.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, majority leader, submitted the plan to the Senate Banking Committee as an amendment to the pending bill to extend price control beyond the present expiration date next June 30.

It was the Administration's bid to forestall passage of House-approved amendments to the extension measure which Government leaders believe would cause "a joy-ride to inflation."

Barkley's amendment would abolish the OPA, as such, June 30, 1947. It provided for continued control over scarce commodities after that by other Government agencies to be designated by the President.

The President would be directed to report to Congress by next April 1 what commodities would be scarce after June 30, 1947, and hence should continue to be controlled.

Barkley's amendment stipulated that after Dec. 31 this year the OPA would be required to lift ceilings promptly on any commodity if:

1. Price increases resulting from removal of controls would become stabilized at only "moderately" high level.
2. Such increases would not "unstabilize" the prices of other commodities.

Appointment of Paul J. Neff of Houston, Tex., as chief executive officer of the Missouri Pacific Lines, succeeding the late L. W. Baldwin, was announced today by Guy A. Thompson, trustee of the railroad system for the United States District Court. Thompson's announcement was made after he had conferred with United States District Judge George H. Moore.

A former St. Louisan, Neff has had 39 years' continuous railroad service, and since May 1, 1943, has been senior executive assistant in charge of the Texas-Louisiana properties of the Missouri Pacific. His successor in that position will be announced later.

Neff's knowledge of railroad business and his familiarity with the problems of the Missouri Pacific Lines qualify him for his new office, Thompson said in a formal statement. Since his appointment to head the Texas lines, Neff has lived in Houston, where he was president of the Chamber of Commerce and a director of the National Bank of Commerce there.

A graduate of Kansas University in 1907, Neff entered the employ of the St. Louis-San Francisco (Frisco) Railway Co., of which he became chief engineer in 1918. Four years later he became assistant to the president of the International Great Northern and subsequently assistant executive vice president of that railroad.

He became general superintendent of the Missouri Pacific in 1926, then assistant to the president and later assistant chief traffic officer of passenger traffic and at the same time vice president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific Transportation Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary.

He continued in those positions until his appointment as senior executive assistant to the trustee for the Gulf Coast Lines, International Great Northern Railroad Co., the Missouri Pacific Railroad Corporation in Nebraska and the Missouri-Illinois Railroad.

A new corporate president of the Missouri Pacific to succeed Baldwin will be elected at the June meeting of the board of directors of the company. His seat on the board was left unfilled after his death last Tuesday.

RUSSIAN-MADE BALL BEARINGS SMALL ENOUGH FOR WATCHES

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—Moscow radio reported today a Russian engineer had perfected ball bearings that can be used to replace jewels in watches.

Diameter of the balls, so small that 50,000 can be placed in a matchbox, was reported to be 1.5 millimeters.

OPA BOOSTS AUTO PRICES 4 TO 5 PCT. DUE TO STEEL RISE

Increase to Be Passed on to Public—Ranges From $18 to $417 for Various Models.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Prices of new cars, already boosted because of higher wages, are going up again—this time an average of 4 to 5 per cent to offset costlier steel and parts.

Disclosing this today, a high Office of Price Administration official told a reporter the increase probably will go into effect within 10 days. He said OPA hopes this will be the last of the auto price increases required under the administration's liberalized wage-price policy.

Under it, retail prices for most cars were boosted from $1 to $60 in March and April to compensate for wage increases in the industry.

The entire new increase will be passed on to the public. OPA has said dealers' profit margins will not be trimmed any more.

Steel Price Increase a Factor.

One of the principal factors behind the new increase is the average boost of $5 a ton for steel which the Government allowed last February when the industry increased wages 18½ cents hourly to settle the steel strike. The other main reason is the higher cost of parts to car makers.

An OPA official said the agency had to make the car price increases required under the wage-price policy in two stages "because it takes longer for the higher costs of parts and materials to show up than it does wage costs."

These increases have belied OPA's 1945 predictions that new cars would cost the public no more than in 1942.

Even before these increases were granted, one other factor had upset OPA's forecasts. Price increases which manufacturers charged for "changes in design and engineering specifications" and for "improvements." These were authorized by OPA on the ground that a better car is worth more money.

Increases From $18 to $417.

Some examples of these increases are from $66 to $417 for one line of cars, from $59 to $121 for another line, and from $18 to $47 for an individual make.

Even when this type of increase is disregarded for the moment, retail price ceilings originally established for new models — prior to increases under the wage-price formula — were higher in many cases than 1942 prices for comparable models.

For weeks OPA took the position that these increases would be "offset" by a cut of 2½ per cent in prices for General Motors cars. This cut actually was made—exclusive of increases for design and engineering changes—but it was wiped out and G.M. prices also went above the 1942 level

Grocer Has Own Bread Rationing Plan to Care for Old Customers

A method of rationing his meager bread supply among old customer, to assure a fair distribution was described to a Post-Dispatch reporter by a Gardenville grocer today.

John A. Mayne, owner of the Tom Cat market at 8627 Gravois road, said that when his daily supply was cut from about 150 to 50 loaves, he listed all his regular customers, placing the name of each on a separate card, and determined how much bread each could have each day.

"I know my customers pretty well," Mayne said. "If there are only two in the family, they can have only one loaf every other day. Other families get one loaf a day, except for one woman with eight kids. She gets two loaves a day."

The daily bread stock is spread out on a long shelf in the store, with the name of a customer under each loaf. When the customer comes into the store, he gets his share. If someone fails to come in, or does not tell Mayne he won't want the bread that day, his name is taken down and the name of the first person on the waiting list takes his place.

"Anybody who misses his turn goes to the bottom of the list," Mayne said. "Strangers — well, they're just out of luck."

Senate, House Committee Heads Tell Forrestal Measure Won't Pass—Against Compromise on Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, and Representative Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, chairmen of the Senate and House Naval Committees, assert the pending Army-Navy merger bill is doomed in its present form.

Congress, they said in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, "will not approve" any plan calling for a single department of common defense. The letter, written May 15, was made public yesterday.

They asked Forrestal not to agree to compromise with Secretary of War Patterson based on such a step.

Long Opposed Merger.

Walsh and Vinson long have opposed the merger plan written by the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Forrestal and his top admirals also have testified against the measure, but President Truman last week called on the Army and Navy leaders to reconcile their views and agree on a unification measure.

While asserting that the war revealed "some weaknesses in our defense organization," Walsh and Vinson contended these could be remedied "without completely disorganizing the defense structure which was so successful in bringing the war to a favorable conclusion.

Points of Opposition.

Specificially, they cautioned against any compromise on these five points which they said Congress would not accept:

"1. A single department of common defense with a single secretary at its head.

"2. The placing of a single military officer in supreme command of all the armed forces.

"3. Divesting the Marine Corps of its important function of maintaining a fleet marine force to support fleet operations.

"4. Transferring the vital functions of naval aviation to the Army Air Corps or to a separate air corps.

"5. Removing from the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy the responsibility for initiating the budget of their respective departments and supporting these budgets before the Congress."

After listing in great detail eight "major defects" of this bill, the congressional Navy leaders told Secretary Forrestal at three places in their joint statement that Congress would not approve.

"We believe the bill (merger) accentuates the differences between the services," the letter said. "Its enactment would not heal the breach which now exists. Instead it would widen the breach since naval officers are firmly convinced, as a result of their recent war experiences, that naval aviation and amphibious operations played a great part in winning the war. They are also convinced that

NEW ORLEANS MAYOR SEEKS VOTE ON LEGALIZED GAMBLING

Will Submit His Proposal to Referendum Election on May 28.

NEW ORLEANS, May 20 (AP)—Delesseps S. Morrison, this city's new mayor, announced last night that he would submit a proposal for legalized gambling to a referendum election on May 28.

Morrison's two-week-old administration is seeking to have the Legislature allow the city to operate 3000 slot machines and license 250 racing handbooks for revenue purposes. Gambling is now illegal in Louisiana except for betting by the pari-mutuel system at race tracks.

His proposal has been attacked by the New Orleans Protestant Ministerial Union. Yesterday it was criticized in sermons by pastors of several churches.

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—All Russians 100 years old or older will be placed under special medical supervision of Scientist Alexander A. Bogomolets, who is seeking the "sources of longevity," the Moscow radio said today.

Bogomolets is a pathophysiologist and one of Russia's most eminent scientists. He is president of the Academy of Sciences of the Ukraine and has taught since 1911 at Saratov and Moscow universities.

His research has attracted attention in the fields of endocrinology, immunity, internal secretion, the pathology of circulation, blood transfusion, connective tissue and diabetes.

U.S. ACTION HINGES ON UMW, OWNERS PRODUCING COAL

Truman Sees Lewis and Operator Separately—Both Sides Call More Talks Useless.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—A Government labor official today predicted Government seizure of the soft coal mines as the next step in averting a renewal of the coal strike.

This official said John L. Lewis and the soft coal operators now feel that further efforts to negotiate a contract would be fruitless.

Seizure action depends, however, he said, on the willingness of both sides to co-operate in running the mines and eventually working out a contract with Government help. The mines are now working under a truce which expires May 25.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, Dr. John R. Steelman, presidential labor adviser, and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach discussed the mine dispute today, Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, said. He added, however:

"As far as I know they are not talking about seizure."

Principals on both sides have said privately they looked for the Government to take over the mines by the middle of the week.

The labor official expressed belief that if seizure is ordered, it probably would not occur until after the railroad controversy has been solved. The Government took over operation of the railroads Friday, and the brotherhoods of trainmen and engineers subsequently postponed their threatened strike until 4 p. m. Thursday.

"If no settlement has been reached in the rail dispute before that time, the reaction of the rail workers to Government operation would be watched for its possible effect on the miners, this official said.

Before leaving for Kansas City yesterday, President Truman conferred with Lewis and Charles O'Neill, chief spokesman for the operators, at separate meetings.

Lewis, it was understood, declined to commit the miners to working under Government seizure until the United Mine Workers' 250-man policy committee has had an opportunity to pass on the question. Lewis is believed to be planning to assemble the committee later this week, but the union headquarters would not confirm this.

Majority of Miners Working in Second Week of Truce.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20 (AP)—The second week of mining under the 12-day truce was under way today, with the majority of soft coal diggers working in all 25 bituminous producing states except Pennsylvania.

Only about a fourth of Pennsylvania's 100,000 soft coal workers were on the job. The rest indicated they would stick to their traditional "no contract, no work" policy.

In central Pennsylvania, 28,000 miners were idle. In the Pittsburgh area, 11,000 of 56,000 miners showed up for work Saturday

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

LIBERTY, Mo., May 20 (AP)—President Truman summoned the people of the United States to "work for the peace of the world and the strengthening of their own country."

"Somebody has to sit in the front row and do the work," he told a William Jewell College commencement audience here today after receiving an honorary doctors of laws degree. He was referring to newspaper correspondents sitting on the front row.

Without referring directly to the railroad and coal labor crisis, Truman asserted workers are needed more than leaders.

"That is true on the farms," he continued. "That is true in the coal mines. That is true on the railroads. That is true in the automobile factories. That is true in the mills and everything else that makes this country great."

"If we are to be a success in anything we must work," he emphasized.

"'Work, work, work,' that is what I said to the nation on V-J day.

"I wish the country would listen to that admonition today."

He also declared that the United States will pursue the cause of peace with all its might.

Speaking extemporaneously, Truman said:

"The United Nations will be a success, because it must.

"What we need now are people who are willing to work for the things they are for."

"Let me urge upon you to get on the team," he declared, "in its leadership for peace."

His statement was greeted by applause. Calling attention to the college motto, "Trust in God and Work," emblazoned on the drapery above the stage, Truman said:

"We must trust in God always. If we are to be a success in anything we must work.

"What we need now more than captains and quarterbacks, especially Monday morning quarterbacks, is people willing to work for the things they claim they are for."

The President was presented for

BRITISH BEGIN ATOMIC STUDY IN HUT D-DAY PILOTS USED

Wire Barricades and Security Police Guard Scientists Starting $200,000,000 Project.

DIDCOT, England, May 20 (UP)—Behind barbed wire barricades in a camouflaged hut that once housed glider pilots who landed in Normandy on D-Day, a group of British scientists is performing the first experiments in a vast program to bring Britain abreast of the United States in atomic research.

A few hundred yards away from the sprawling Harwell airport, candidates for the British derby cantered across the Berkshire downs today. Security guards lolled before the big iron gates which eventually will mark the entrance to the $200,000,000 atom research project.

Didcot was named last December as the heart of Britain's atomic future but six months later all that has been done is to install a few workers and provide one small building for 15 experts.

6-HOUR OUTBURST OF RIOTING IN ALEXANDRIA IS REPORTED

LONDON, May 20 (UP)—Rioting broke out in Alexandria yesterday and the city was in the hands of rioters for six hours, the Daily Express's Alexandria correspondent reported today.

A dispatch said Egyptian troops policed the streets after the rioters had swept through the European quarter of the city, attacking British soldiers, looting shops and raiding British service clubs.

Several British soldiers were reported wounded. The riots were reported to have been touched off by a report that a British truck had run down an Egyptian pedestrian.

HIT BY LIGHTNING 10TH TIME

KENTON, O., May 20 (UP)—Charles Brown was recovering today after being struck by lightning Saturday for the tenth time.

Brown, known as the "human lightning rod" for absorbing his previous nine bolts, was knocked unconscious by the lightning as he was receiving a book from the librarian in the Kenton public library. After his ninth "strike," Brown appeared on a national radio program and told of his experiences.

Eisenhower on First Real Vacation In 8 Years, Gives Orderly One, Too

SEA ISLAND, Ga., May 20 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army chief of staff, is taking his first real vacation in eight years at this south Georgia coastal resort. It will end Friday night when he and Mrs. Eisenhower plan to entrain for Washington.

Gen. Eisenhower arrived at Hamilton Field, Calif., Saturday from Honolulu, and then flew here. He was met at the St. Simons Naval Air Station, near here, yesterday by Mrs. Eisenhower, who had flown down from Washington the day before.

The general's orderly, Master Sgt. William M. Farr, is enjoying a five-day furlough visiting his mother because of the thoughtfulness of Mrs. Eisenhower. She remembered that Sgt. Farr's mother, Mrs. Martha W. Farr, lives at Savannah, and asked the general: "Don't you think that Sgt. Farr ought to go and see his mother?"

"By all means," the general replied, and the furlough was speedily arranged.

The general spent yesterday afternoon taking a leisurely stroll along the beach. Last night Mrs. Eisenhower dismissed the two servants at their vacation home and cooked supper.

Before leaving for Washington Friday night Gen. Eisenhower plans to speak at a banquet of the Georgia Bar Association in Savannah.

STEELMAN TALKS WITH OPERATORS ALSO BY PHONE; TERMED HOPEFUL

(Picture in Everyday Magazine).

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Brotherhood leaders reported "we're making progress" today in Government talks looking toward settlement of the rail labor dispute before the strike deadline at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Alvanley Johnston, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, brought reporters this word from an hour and a half conference with John R. Steelman, presidential labor adviser. A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen, also participated.

Johnston repeated that the unions are willing to resume joint negotiations with the carriers' negotiating committee whenever asked to do so by President Truman or Steelman.

Reports Truman Promise.

(The United Press reported that Johnston said President Truman won the five-day rail strike truce by giving two railroad brotherhoods "definite assurance" of a wage rise above the $1.28 a day recommended by his fact-finding board. Johnston said Truman gave the "assurance" in a telephone conversation Saturday with him and Whitney.

("The President gave us definite assurance that we would get more than was recommended by the fact-finding panel," Johnston said. He indicated that the promised increase was contingent upon postponement of the walkout and the return of Johnston and Whitney to Washington to resume negotiations.)

(In New York, Thomas J. Harkins, assistant grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said he believed there would be a settlement which would prevent a nation-wide railroad strike, but that it would not be announced before 5 p.m. Wednesday.)

Steelman Consults Carriers.

The White House told reporters that in addition to conferring with Whitney and Johnston, Steelman had talked by telephone with the spokesmen for the carriers and was "hopeful" of the results. Steelman expected to confer with the operators later.

The separate conferences were intended to bring "together very soon" the brotherhood and carrier negotiating groups.

In making this announcement, however, Eben Ayers, assistant press secretary for President Truman, said he did not think joint conferences could be resumed today. Reconversion Director John W. Snyder joined Steelman in the conferences.

The brotherhoods of engineers and trainmen are seeking wage and working rule changes which the carriers so far have declined to accept.

There was no indication from Ayers that the railroads or the brotherhoods had agreed to any compromises so far.

"Mr. Snyder and Mr. Steelman are conferring along the lines of yesterday," he said, "with a view to resuming negotiations. They have hopes of bringing them together very soon."

Talks on Hour-to-Hour Basis.

"Right now we are talking to each side independently, canvassing the entire situation," Steelman told a reporter. "The conversations are almost on an hour-to-hour basis. The two sides will be brought together at the most advantageous time."

President Truman was flying back to Washington after receiving an honorary degree from William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., to be on hand for the negotiations which he said Saturday he was confident would result in "further progress" toward a settlement.

Meanwhile, the railroads were back on time-table operation today after one of the greatest transportation snarls in recent years, in which some train runs were canceled and others were delayed for hours.

Government Lays Plans.

As the negotiations continued, other Government agencies were taking steps to soften the blow of a rail strike if the talks should fail and the tie-up by 250,000 rail workers should occur Thursday.

Under consideration by Government agencies in their planning for a possible breakdown in the negotiations were plans for the Army

U. N. COUNCIL TO MEET WEDNESDAY TO TAKE UP IRANIAN CASE AGAIN

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).

ALEXANDRE PARODI of France, president of the United Nations Security Council, has called a meeting of the Council for Wednesday to take up the Iranian case again. The Council is awaiting a report from Iran as to whether the evacuation of Russian troops has been completed.

Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala, who arrived from Washington last night, said he had received no word from his government since Premier Ahmed Qavam informed the Council Saturday night he was not yet in a position to make a conclusive statement. Ala said, however, that he hoped to receive late information on which to base a report to the Council before midnight tonight, deadline for a new Iranian report.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko indicated today that he would boycott Wednesday's session as he has boycotted others on Iran. "I made myself clear on that some time ago," he told questioners.

(Associated Press Correspondent Joseph C. Goodwin, one of a group of Americans permitted to visit Azerbaijan province, filed the following dispatch Saturday. It was delayed 24 hours in the telegraph office in Tehran. There was no indication that anything was deleted).

TABRIZ, Azerbaijan Province, Iran, May 18 (AP)—The uniformed Russian Army has completely evacuated all of Iran, including Azerbaijan province, but Tabriz is an armed camp today, with the three-month-old Azerbaijan army and the people's warriors preparing for any eventuality.

Reports reaching this capital of Azerbaijan province say the Iranian Central Government Army is moving north along the Caspian seacoast into Southern Kurdistan. Meanwhile, uniformed units of the forces of this self-proclaimed autonomous province are moving toward the Southern Azerbaijan border.

Although there is no indication any Russian troops remain in Azerbaijan province, foreign observers here are uncertain that all the equipment and armor they brought into the province have been removed. Some informants say that some armor was seen moving south several days ago and was not seen to have returned.

In Tabriz, every second man is in uniform or carrying a rifle. Troops packing tommyguns garrison the airport and patrol the streets. Regulars marched in review yesterday at a ceremony in which the statue of the former Shah was replaced by one of an early Azerbaijan revolutionist. The army men were followed by warriors and Azerbaijan youths wearing bandoliers. This group included even small boys who goosestepped along carrying handmade wooden tommyguns.

Commission Arrives.

Iranian Premier Ahmed Qavam's commission which will check on the Russians' departure arrived in Tabriz yesterday and was met at the airport by representatives of "Premier" Jafar Pishevari, who heads the Azerbaijan separatist government.

The Pishevari regime is following a line which appears to look for peaceful settlement of differences with the central Iranian government in Tehran. The newspapers and the Tabriz radio urge a friendly settlement, with the provision that what is called the Azerbaijan liberal program be retained and even extended to the rest of Iran.

An account has reached here of a Tehran report that Qavam has appointed Gen. Aman-Lah Jahanbani, a friend of the Soviet Union, as chief of staff of the central Iranian Government's army, replacing Gen. Aghaveli, a wartime internee in a British-Soviet detention camp.

Married Russian Woman.

Jahanbani, a prince of the former Kajar dynasty and Russian-trained as a Cossack officer, married a Russian. His son now is in Moscow as a student. Jahanbani is a vice president of the Iran-Soviet Cultural Society.

This report followed Qavam's recent public attack on "those persons who fish in troubled waters" by inciting intrigue and "ignoring the fact that no foreign government has the right to interfere in Iranian internal affairs." Qavam promised that "in order to safeguard the higher interests of the country I will exterminate without pity all malevolent elements like pestiferous insects."

Inside Tabriz a public works program by which the separatist government sets much store is under way. Pavement is being laid, replacing the old cobblestone thoroughfares. Trees are being planted. The sewage system is being renovated.

Land Grants to Peasants.

The peasants are being given grants of lands. The Azerbaijan program calls for land distribution.

The women, almost all of them still veiled, have been given the vote and a voice in the government. Some of them are in the uniforms of an auxiliary army corps.

The few Americans and the less than a score of Europeans here enjoy respect. Azerbaijan troops salute the United States consular car.

The American correspondents were courteously received at the airport and at the customs station, where their luggage was unopened. Officials were friendly and polite. The man in the street, however, is hesitant about being seen too often with foreigners.

This second city of Iran, with its 200,000 population, is situated in the center of a green valley surrounded by red, yellow and blue sandstone hills. The people speak a Turkish dialect, Russian and Persian, but most of the signs in the streets are in Russian.

NUERNBERG TRIAL LIKELY TO DRAG ON UNTIL AUGUST

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NUERNBERG, May 20 (By Radio)—Just six months ago the international military tribunal began sittings with the avowed purpose of establishing a new principle in world jurisprudence—that of individual responsibility for breach of treaties, preparation and waging of aggressive war and perpetration of crimes both against humanity and against the laws of armed conflict. This morning the court held its 252d session, which was marked by the opening of cross-examination of Grand Adm. Erich Raeder by Sir David Maxwell Fyfe of the British prosecution.

The defense of seven of the 21 accused remains to be presented. They are Baldur von Schirach, Fritz Sauckel, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, Franz von Papen, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Albert Speer and Hans Fritzsche.

The charter ordained that the proceedings must be impartial and expeditious. It was soon discovered that to a large degree these terms were mutually exclusive. The tribunal decided—it appears sagaciously—that if need be haste should be sacrificed to justice. The hearings now bid fair to drag out to twice the length anticipated last Nov. 20. A semiofficial prophecy is that the trial proper may conclude about Aug. 1.

Work Still Ahead.

Still to come are the remaining defense pleas, the cases of the indicted Nazi organizations, which are likely to consume at least a month, and a summary of defense counsel followed by the prosecution's rebuttal. Then there is expected to be a recess while the magistrates consider, resolve and compose their verdicts. The task is complicated by the fact that there are several counts against each defendant who may be found guilty of some and innocent of others. According to inside conjecture the judges are working on their pronouncement as the hearings go on. A sentence of guilty may be imposed only by a vote of three out of four. The verdict will pass for review to the Allied Control Council in Berlin.

The council has no power to alter a finding of guilt or innocence or to step up the severity of a sentence, but it can mitigate a sentence and it also has responsibility for naming the time, place and manner of executions. These, if any, may take place in September. The spot generally favored is the prison at Landsberg, where Adolf Hitler, Rudolf Hess and Julius Streicher were imprisoned after the Munich putsch and where "Mein Kampf" was written.

Candidates for Execution.

If the trial is to mean anything at all it is difficult to understand at this writing why the death penalty will not be inflicted on at least nine of the defendants. These are Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Alfred Rosenberg, Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Sauckel, Jodl, Seyss-Inquart and Speer. Kaltenbrunner and Seyss-Inquart are Austrians. By nativity Rosenberg was a Russian subject.

Hess would appear on the fatal list if it were sure the court after all would not feel him to have been mentally incompetent to make an adequate defense. My impression is that Hess, a downright fanatic, yearns to die as a martyr of the National Socialist creed. He could have escaped trial altogether by maintaining his pretense of amnesia, but chose voluntarily to stand beside his companions to the end. Death sentences are also possible for Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick and Streicher.

The two sailors, Raeder and Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, have defended themselves ably and there is a disinclination on the part of the sea powers to set a precedent for hanging admirals. There is strong evidence that Keitel and Jodl went outside their strictly military duties to forward Hitler's policy of extermination in the East in order to clear lebensraum for German colonists. The tribunal could solidify its claim to fairness before history by interspersing several prison sentences or even acquittals. Leniency may be extended to Walther Funk, Schirach, Papen, Neurath and Fritzsche. At this moment the leading candidate for acquittal or a nominal jail term is Hjalmar Schacht.

Effect on Germans.

Since one of the principal aims in setting up the international tribunal was to impress the German population with the superiority of Allied methods of justice the question may be asked after six months as to what effect the proceedings have had in this respect. It should be remembered that the tribunal is dominated by British-American ideals which are almost as alien to the French and particularly to the Russians as they are to the Nazis.

The Germans have been amply informed. Newspapers in the native language are compelled to give one fourth of their space to the trial. Its episodes have been drummed day and night by radio into Teutonic ears. One can scarcely evade a conclusion that the result has been mostly unfavorable to date though it is impossible to predict what the long-term effect may be. So far as may be judged there are only two kinds of Germans. There are Nazis and anti-Nazis. Both contend it would have been more intelligible if Goering and his associates had been hanged or shot immediately after their capture. The Nazis argue that the cards were stacked before the tribunal ever met so as to insure verdicts of guilty for most of the defendants.

By stacking the cards is meant the provision that obedience to superior orders is no valid defense and that Allied methods of waging war are not on trial. In these respects, however, the tribunal's bark has been worse than its bite. One of the accused after another has been allowed to represent that he was merely a helpless tool in the Fuehrer's clutch. Allegations have been admitted in evidence that French and Russian prison camps were by no means patterns of humanity, that American submarines practiced unrestricted warfare in the Pacific, that Allied bombers destroyed more than 300,000 German civilians and that the United States committed numerous acts of aggression against the Axis. Among these have been named cash and carry lend-lease, occupation of Iceland, lavish aid given to England in North Africa and to the Russians through Murmansk and Iran and especially the order to the American Navy to fire at sight upon German craft—all earlier than Pearl Harbor.

UNNEUTRAL ACTS BY U. S. ALLEGED

NUERNBERG, May 20 (AP)—Grand Adm. Erich Raeder testified before the international military tribunal today that United States ships repeatedly violated neutrality rules before America entered the war.

The former Nazi navy chief said that the German navy received orders from Adolf Hitler not to attack United States ships, despite the alleged neutrality violations.

Raeder's statements were made in answer to questions by counsel for Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister.

The admiral testified that American "neutrality patrols" during the summer of 1941 operated more than 1000 miles from the United States, although the so-called neutrality area extended only 300 miles.

Declaring that shortly after the Nazi attack on Russia the United States had stated it would help the Soviet Union, Raeder said he had told Hitler that Germany should "continue to leave American ships alone despite the disadvantages arising from such a course."

$116,000 FOUND IN TIN CAN WHEN RECLUSE FARMER DIES

GREEN ISLE, Minn., May 20 (UP)—A 73-year-old recluse farmer, who died yesterday, left $116,000 in cash, war bonds and postal savings certificates in a tin can under the floor of his house, bank officers said today.

Officers of the Green Isle State Bank sought heirs to the fortune, which was discovered in the home of Dan Curran, soon after his body was found in a clump of trees on his 300-acre farm. Curran left no will. The estate will be divided among two nieces, Mrs. Mary Ingram and Mrs. Lucille Higgins, Spokane, Wash., and any other close relatives, it was said.

PLANES BLAST AT GERMAN 'BOMB-PROOF' INSTALLATIONS

LONDON, May 20 (UP)—German engineers in the last days of the war developed protective structures for vital war industries which were impervious to all bombs then existing, American and British air force officials revealed jointly today.

For several weeks United States and British bombers have been attacking Todt installations in northwest Germany with British 11-ton and American 4500-pound rocket assisted bombs.

Exact results are a secret, but pictures showed big craters blasted out of the 20-foot thick roofs of reinforced concrete submarine pens at Farge near Bremen by the 11-tonners. They showed the rocket-assisted bombs cutting well into the interlaced layers of steel and concrete. But they did not show, nor would officials reveal, whether the explosives completely penetrated the protective layers.

OFFICIAL URGES CUT IN 3 PER CENT JOBLESS PAY TAX

Social Security Chief for 2 Pct. Levy — Says 7 Billions Have Piled Up in Treasury.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (UP)—Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, of the Social Security Board, urged Congress today to reduce the 3 per cent Federal unemployment tax rate to 2 per cent.

He disclosed that states now have on deposit with the Federal Treasury nearly seven billion dollars of unemployment tax funds. This is the equivalent of more than four years' of employers' contributions.

"Even if we should have as many as three and one-half million unemployed, the average state would be able to finance benefits with a contribution rate of less than 2 per cent without being obliged to draw upon accumulated reserves," he said.

He made the statement before the House Ways and Means Committee. It is holding general hearings on the Social Security Act.

Employers now are allowed a credit of up to 2.7 per cent of their tax if their state has enacted an unemployment compensation law. Altmeyer proposed that this credit be made 1.8 per cent. He repeated his proposals for a unified federal unemployment compensation system. He said there are "inherent defects" in a state-by-state system.

"It is because of these inherent defects in a state-by-state unemployment insurance system that the Social Security Board has become convinced that we should have one national system of unemployment insurance in order to furnish the workers of this country the maximum amount of protection against wage loss due to unemployment," he said.

GOV. ARNALL SEEKS RULING ON ACTION AGAINST KLAN

ATLANTA, Ga., May 20 (UP)—Gov. Ellis Arnall today revealed he had asked the state attorney general for a ruling on what "can be done legally" with the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia. He said the recent Klan display "desecrated Stone Mountain and brought the name of Georgia into ridicule."

The governor said it was not "necessary to hide anything in the state behind hoods, witchery and hoodooism." Arnall asked Attorney General Ben Cook to search the laws of the state to determine if the Klan could not be outlawed or have its charter withdrawn.

When told of Arnall's request, Dr. Samuel Green, head of the Georgia Klan, said, "They can't take our charter away from us legally. It is a legally constituted body in Georgia." He had no comment when he was asked if the Klan would fight in the courts to preserve the charter.

KYOTO, Japan, May 20 (UP)—More than 300 Kyoto farmers "fell off the wagon" with a bang today to end a self-imposed 20-year period of teetotalitarianism.

In 1926 the farmers pledged themselves to abstain from their favorite beverage until they had saved enough money for a new primary school. Last week they counted up the community's school fund and found they had 1,500,000 yen.

There was plenty of sake at the celebration.

"Every Veteran a Voter" Drive.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (UP)—The American Veterans Committee today announced a campaign to "make every veteran a voter." It started by mailing voting records of Congressmen on key issues, and predicted the veteran vote would swing the decision in many close contests.

BIPARTISAN GROUP FOR RESTRICTING WELFARE FUNDS

12 Senators of Both Parties Will Support Byrd Amendment to Labor Disputes Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—A bipartisan group of Senators pressing for labor disputes legislation agreed today to back a prohibition against sole union control of workers' welfare funds to which employers contribute. Such a bar has been proposed by Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, as an amendment to pending labor legislation. Its supporters say it is aimed primarily at John L. Lewis's demand for a payroll levy to finance a health and welfare fund for coal miners.

With the Senate entering its second week of debate on labor bills, 12 Democrats and Republicans met in the office of Senator Ball (Rep.), Minnesota, in an effort to work out a program all could support.

Senators Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, and Taft (Rep.), Ohio, told reporters afterward that the agreement to back Byrd's proposal was about all that was accomplished.

For Rewriting Amendment.

They said it was agreed that Byrd's amendment should be rewritten to permit operation of present welfare funds for the duration of existing contracts. Six unions now have contracts under which employers contribute all or part of welfare funds managed by the unions.

Once these contracts run out, the unions and employers would come under Byrd's bar if the redrafted amendment should become law. Byrd asked that employers who establish welfare funds have equal voice with unions in the spending of them.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, demanded today that the Senate stay in continuous day and night session until it passes a labor disputes bill.

Critical of what he termed President Truman's failure to recommend "balanced" legislation, he said he feared the threat of a general strike unless current controversies involving coal and the railroads are settled.

George told a reporter:

"The President ought to ask the Senate to stay in continuous day and night sessions until we get some action in this crisis. It's not too late, if we have sympathetic executive support, for Congress to do something. But if it is to be effective we must have that kind of presidential assistance."

Wants Definite Word.

George contended that Truman had failed to say what legislation he was willing to support in the present strike crisis, beyond making a recommendation for establishment of fact-finding boards such as had been created in some instances by executive order.

Meanwhile, there were reports that those who have been opposing enactment of any labor disputes legislation at this time had thrown out hints that they might be willing to compromise.

An informant said members of this group had intimated they would not object to amendments outlawing secondary boycotts and eliminating foremen from coverage of the Wagner Act if this would head off other proposed changes. He said he saw scant chance, however, that a compromise could be reached.

TRUMAN SAYS CRITICAL TIME OF FAMINE IS JUST AHEAD

Countries Able to Help Must Heighten Their Efforts, He Asserts in Message to 18-Nation Conference.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—President Truman informed the international food conference today that the remaining weeks before the 1946 grain harvest will be especially critical in famine areas.

He said the United States and other countries in a position to help "must continue and heighten their efforts."

Truman's statement was made in a welcoming talk read by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson before an opening meeting of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, called to map a broad fight on long-term famine conditions. Attending the conference are representatives of 18 nations and five international organizations.

"Heavy Responsibilities."

"In meeting at this critical period," the President's message said, "you have heavy responsibilities and great opportunities.

"What this conference accomplishes or fails to accomplish will make its mark not only in the areas where people are hungry as the aftermath of war, but in all parts of the earth and for a long time to come."

Truman said any step toward feeding the world's families better and making the fullest use of the products of farms and fisheries is "a step toward winning and securing the peace."

The world-wide scarcity of bread grains, he said, cannot be completely overcome with the 1946 harvest. Deficits in livestock products, he added, will continue for a long time.

Hoover Urges World Group.

Herbert Hoover, addressing the session, urged the creation by Sept. 1 of a broad international food administration to spur production and guide distribution of supplies. He asserted there was need for drastic reorganization of the world fight on famine.

Hoover said the food agency he suggested should take over the food and agriculture activities of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and the British-Canadian-American Combined Food Board, as well as all other world agencies connected with food and agriculture. UNRRA is scheduled to go out of business Dec. 31, except for relief for China. The food board also is slated to die Dec. 31.

Hoover said the agency, which he suggested be named the United Nations Food Administration, should be directed by a single food administrator and a small advisory committee.

He said that if should be the agency's purpose to return to normal commerce the food, fertilizer and farm supply business of the world "with all speed possible."

"Moreover," he said, "the world must quit charity as a basis of widespread food distribution. I cannot too strongly emphasize that charitable distribution is hugely wasteful and inefficient."

Hoover said that after Sept. 1 nations should finance their own food purchases by other means than charity.

"We can hope," he said, "for some breathing spell from the tensity of the present situation at that time."

The proposed food administration would serve only in the period of food scarcity and agriculture reconstruction from the war.

Asserting that the food problem should be directly under auspices of the United Nations Security Council the former President said "the primary purpose of the United Nations is to give security and peace to the world.

"Effective distribution of food during scarcity and the reconstruction of agriculture, and above all, the reconstruction of human beings," he said, "is essential to order and peace of the world. The first voice of war is the guns, but the final voice in making peace is food."

Anderson Named Chairman.

Secretary Anderson was made chairman of the conference.

It was estimated that the world may fall one-third short on food again next year. The estimate came from the Food and Agriculture Organization — known as F.A.O. — and predicted that 30,500,000 metric tons of wheat would be needed in shortage areas with only 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons available from surplus countries. A metric ton is a little more than 2200 pounds, roughly the equivalent of a long ton.

Sir John Orr, director general of the F. A. O., warned that:

"The position seems to be that following the 1946 harvest the world will be as badly off for food as it was at the time of the 1945 harvest because this time we will have no great reserves of food carried over from the previous year to fall back on.

"We are faced with a three or four year shortage. Unless energetic measures are taken, the prediction made during the war that far more people would die as the direct or indirect result of hunger in the two or three years after the war than were killed in all the battles and bombing may come true."

Russia turned down an invitation to the international food conference and, up to the last minute, did not even plan to send an observer. It was uncertain, too, whether Argentina, Brazil and Siam would be represented. These countries and international organizations had accepted:

Australia, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Greece, India, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Poland, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia, United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, Emergency Economic Committee for Europe, UNRRA, Combined Food Board and the International Labor Office.

The probability, Sir John said, is that the food shortage "will continue until the 1948 harvest."

GEN. MARSHALL CENSURES BOTH SIDES IN CHINA

Says Hate Propaganda Can Lead to 'General Conflagration' — Szepingkai Falls to Chiang.

NANKING, May 20 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, American special envoy to China, sharply criticized both Communist and Government factions today for their part in the Chinese civil war.

Saying he was deeply concerned over "the critical situation in north China" and was endeavoring "by every means" to prevent the spread of general fighting from Manchuria southward, Marshall censured both factions for their propaganda campaigns, which he said "naturally inflame feelings and increase the possibility of some hotheads precipitating a general conflagration."

"The reckless propaganda of hate and suspicion," Marshall said, "seriously aggravates the present situation and can lead to results which will be disastrous to the people of China."

Szepingkai Captured.

The American general made his extraordinary charges in a press release shortly after the capture of Szepingkai by Government forces had been announced at army headquarters in Mukden and confirmed by Government sources at Peiping.

The American envoy said that the operation of the Government-Communist-American truce teams was made especially difficult by the "spreading of propaganda among officers and soldiers of both sides and on the success of these teams China largely depends for her effort to at least localize if not to suppress the conflicts."

He commented that the American members of the teams were coping with conditions which involved the risk of their lives in their determined efforts for impartial betterment of the situation.

The release was Marshall's first public cognizance of the violent campaign of words which has attended the fighting in Manchuria.

Fighting in Jehol.

Meanwhile, truce team executive headquarters at Peiping dispatched a special cease-fire field team to southeastern Jehol province where an estimated 26,000 Communist troops were reported by Government sources to be attacking along a 200-mile front.

Nationalist spokesmen issued a warning to the Communists that unless the Red advance was halted two Nationalist armies flanking Jehol province on the east and west would counterattack.

ST. LOUIS HOUSING PROBLEM

Key to Ultimate Success Of Federal Housing Plan Is Adequate Supply of Labor

Contractors View Shortage of Craftsmen as Acute—Unions Here Optimistic, Wary of Training More in Fear of Breaking Down Future Wage Scales.

By ROBERT E. HANNON
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.
(Fourth of a Series.)

While the immediate problem facing the home construction industry today is an adequate supply of building materials, the real key to the ultimate success of the Government's emergency housing program appears to be labor.

When the materials bottle-neck is broken by an anticipated flood of production, industry leaders believe there will remain the important question of availability of skilled craftsmen in sufficient numbers to cope with a huge home building program.

Widely divergent views are encountered in seeking an answer to this vital question—some contractors believe there is an acute manpower shortage which will be a serious impediment to unrestricted construction, and union leaders in the building trades assert flatly that the labor supply in the St. Louis area is sufficient for a 10,000-homes-a-year program.

Over-all figures on the labor pool in the building industry here are difficult to find, and those that are available often are predicated on baseless estimates and off-hand guesses.

Estimate of Trades Council Head.

Probably the most accurate estimate comes from John J. Church, executive secretary of the St. Louis Building and Construction Trades Council, who places the current labor supply, skilled and semi-skilled, at 25,000 in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

This number, Church said, is about the same as the total craftsmen, union and non-union, as were engaged in the industry here in prewar years, but the figure represents a large increase in the number of union members because of an intensive campaign during the war to organize non-union labor in St. Louis county.

Without figures on the labor supply in the 1925 building boom here on which to draw a comparison for manpower needs in the projected housing program, the adequacy of the present labor pool remains enveloped in uncertainty. However, Church and other union men are positive in their assertions that it is ample.

It is probable that the best answer to the manpower question lies somewhere between the two extremes — not as plentiful as Church maintains nor as acute as the contractors believe.

In viewing the labor situation as it exists today, Church said that all available manpower has not been absorbed in residential building because of lack of materials. With new commercial construction now largely barred, labor is being thrown back on the market as commercial jobs, begun before restrictions were re-imposed, are finished. As a result, many are idle, he said.

Fear of Future Oversupply.

Fears expressed by contractors that the labor supply will be inadequate for the anticipated boom have been translated by industry leaders into exhortations that the trade unions initiate large-scale apprentice programs to produce more skilled craftsmen. The unions charge that these demands constitute an attempt to oversupply the labor market in future years and break down wage structures.

Union officials say there are more apprentices today in the building trades than in many years and apprentice openings are full. Several unions plan to double the number of apprentices in the next year, with expanded beginner's programs to be governed generally by the number of journeymen the industry can be expected to absorb.

In the past year, most trade unions have established bonafide apprenticeship programs in cooperation with the Apprentice Training Service of the Department of Labor.

Union leaders pointed out that higher wages in the industry and training afforded veterans under the G.I. Bill of Rights have served to attract more men. Apprentice-veterans, under the G.I. Bill, are able to supplement regular wages with government subsistence payments—$65 a month for men without dependents and $90 with dependents—but the total wage and subsistence must remain below journeymen scales.

Special Grades for Veterans.

Union men also point out that some trades are giving special attention to veterans who have had some training in military service related to the trade by starting them at advance grades. In addition, some unions also have increased the maximum age for beginning apprentices, the plasterers recently having upped theirs to 30.

Generally speaking, however, trade unions are keeping an eye zealously cocked on the ratio of apprentices to journeymen to make certain the labor market will not be over-supplied in possible lean days in the future.

Contractors feel there is little possibility of too many apprentices as long as unions exercise their prerogative of limiting admissions. This, they say, has the effect of raising the median age of skilled craftsmen with resulting lower productivity and the ultimate effect will be an acute shortage of journeymen.

Average Age in Trades.

Surveys made by the Department of Labor show that the average age of craftsmen in nine construction trades has risen from 38 in 1920 to 42 in 1940, and indications are that it is now close to 45 because of the lack of infusion of young men in the 1930s and during the war. The carpenter trade appears in the least favorable position with a median age of 47, with more than 7 per cent over 65 and only 2 per cent under 20.

These surveys indicate, industry leaders maintain, that less than half as many young men are attracted or admitted to the trade as are necessary to replace workers over 65 and those who die or retire before 65.

The increased cost of on-site labor in the building and construction industry today is attributed by industry spokesmen to two primary factors — higher wages and lower productivity. Labor sharply disputes both points.

Wage Rates Up Since 1941.

The accompanying schedule of wage rates in the industry here shows how wages have soared since Jan. 1, 1941, basic date of the Little Steel formula, and this despite the fact that building and construction is one of a few major industries in which wages remain under control of the government. Whether such controls will terminate June 30, as scheduled, remains to be seen, but many observers believe, and most consumers hope, they will be extended until the supply of labor and building materials returns to near-normal levels.

Labor contends increased wages are necessary because of greatly increased living costs and because take-home pay has been cut by reduction of overtime pay and income tax deductions. Prior to withholding of income taxes, contractors were not required to report on employes receiving less than $750 in a calendar year. Despite good annual incomes, many workers did not earn $750 from a single employer and hence escaped paying taxes.

As of Jan. 1, 1941, there were two sets of wage scales in St. Louis—one for workers on residential jobs and the other for those on commercial or industrial jobs. The residential rate was about 50 cents an hour lower than the commercial scale. Since then, the trade unions have been successful in eliminating the residential rate and consolidating the two into a single rate for all building and construction work.

The chart shows the percentage increases in average wage rates over 1941 but does not reflect accurately the actual increase in on-site labor cost because they are based on simple averages. To determine the increase in labor cost to the home builder, it would be necessary to include the factor of man-hours of specific craftsmen on a job of given size.

For example, more carpenters, whose wages have increased 70 per cent on residential jobs, are employed for more hours on a five-room bungalow than plasterers, whose residential wages have gone up 52 per cent. The percentages are shown only to present an indication of how wages have increased.

'41 Rates Too Low, Church Says.

Commenting on the sky-rocketing of wages, Church declared the 1941 rates on residential construction were "absurdly low" and were agreed to by labor only to enable the trades to organize non-union labor in St. Louis county and obtain contracts with builders' organizations. Only in rare instances today can a non-union job be found in the erstwhile open-shop territory.

Church asserted that as far as the consumer is concerned the matter of increased labor wages in relation to increased labor cost is shrouded in confusion because in the day of low pay scales contractors took advantage of depressed wages to make more profit. Thus the consumer did not realize the entire saving on labor cost, he said.

Labor cost on a standard type St. Louis house is 35 per cent of the total cost, according to a standard reference compilation, but union leaders, disputing the figure, maintain the proportion is closer to 25 per cent. They expressed the opinion that the high cost of building a home today can be attributed in most part to the high price of materials, especially black-market prices in the case of lumber, and to larger profits for contractors.

Contractors, naturally, take issue with this, pointing out that the building industry is highly competitive and that they can not make exorbitant profits when they must bid "close to the line" to obtain contracts. They add, too that most craftsmen insist on working a six-day week with double time for the sixth day.

Average Wage at Peak.

With the average wage for the principal home-building trades now at a record-high of $1.80 an hour for skilled labor and $1.23 for unskilled and semi-skilled workers, indications point to another upward climb. Contractors and five unions have agreed on further wage increases (see accompanying chart), and it is understood other trades soon will press for additional wage boosts.

As of last July 1, according to the Department of Labor, St. Louis ranked third among nine cities in the 500,000 to 1,000,000 population group with an average hourly rate for journeymen in building trades of $1.697. This was surpassed only by Washington, D.C., with $1.803, and Pittsburgh, Pa., with $1.757. Average for the group was $1.651. As has been noted, several crafts here received increases since that time.

TABLE SHOWING INCREASES IN BUILDING TRADE RATES IN AREA SINCE JAN. 1, 1941

THE following table shows the extensive increases in hourly wage rates for the building trades in St. Louis and St. Louis county since Jan. 1, 1941 (basic date of Little Steel formula). The "residential" rate in effect before the war has been abolished. For skilled labor the average increase over the commercial rate has been 14.2 per cent and over the old residential rate 55.7 per cent. For unskilled and semi-skilled labor the average increases have been, respectively, 19.3 and 54.9 per cent. The scales are:

EX-MARINE TO ASK WASHINGTON FOR MEAT FOR HIS SHOP

Packers Won't Sell It to Him and OPA Denies Slaughter Permit.

William Deichmann, a former marine who has been in the retail meat business since April 18 without being able to obtain any meat for sale, said today he would fly to Washington this evening to see if something can't be done to straighten out his situation.

Deichmann opened his retail meat shop at 1321 St. Louis avenue after borrowing $4500 from a bank under the G.I. Bill of Rights. He was unable to get any meat from packers who were saving their reduced output for old customers.

At the same time he was told he could not obtain a custom slaughterer's permit from the Office of Price Administration because he was not in the slaughtering business in 1944 and had not invested any money in butchering equipment during the past year. In 1944, he pointed out, he was with Carlson's Raiders in the Pacific.

Deichmann said he hopes to get some action in his case through the Marine Rehabilitation Office in Washington. An OPA spokesman agreed that under existing rules, the St. Louis office is not authorized to give Deichmann a slaughterer's permit. However, he said, a complete file on the case has been sent to Washington with a request that the former Marine be given special consideration because of his service record.

LEGISLATOR KEPT FROM ENTERING TRIAL AS COUNSEL

Judge Murphy Assails Practice of Retaining State Representatives to Delay Cases.

The practice of some defendants of retaining state legislators as counsel in order to obtain delays in their criminal trials today drew the wrath of Circuit Judge David J. Murphy. He refused to allow State Representative George Munger of Bloomfield, Mo., to enter his appearance for James (Red) Cooper and ordered his trial on second degree burglary and larceny charges to proceed.

When Cooper's case was called, Munger stepped before the bench, identified himself as a member of the State Legislature and sought to file his entry of appearance. "I am ready to try the case but not now," he said.

Judge Murphy replied: "Your entry at this time, I think, is purely for the purpose of obtaining a continuance." Munger retorted: "That's a presumption."

Judge Murphy became angered. "I think this situation is a little unreasonable," he declared. "I'm going to deny your application to make your entry of appearance in this case because I don't think it is in good faith." Cooper and Alderman J. Ray Weinbrenner, his original attorney in the case, also stood before the bench.

Munger said: "May I state I was contacted last Wednesday and came here ready for counsel with my client. I stayed here until Saturday; however, I didn't get a chance to se him, I understand he was in custody of the police.

"I would have filed my entry of appearance for him last Friday if he had been where I could have seen him. As far as being here for the sole purpose of obtaining a continuance, I'm a lawyer; I've tried hundreds of cases and I would not take the case solely for the purpose of obtaining a continuance."

"How many cases have you tried in St. Louis?" Judge Murphy asked.

"Mighty few," Munger replied. "About six, all civil cases, not criminal."

"I dislike to hurt your feelings," the judge said, "but I think you are planning subsequently on filing for a continuance because you are a member of the Legislature. That would be mandatory on me to accept. Under the circumstances, I'm going to deny your application."

Weinbrenner sought to withdraw as Cooper's counsel, but Judge Murphy refused to permit it. Cooper protested that Munger was his lawyer, to which the judge replied: "Not in this case." The judge then ordered the sheriff to call prospective jurymen.

Cooper was charged with the theft of a safe containing $5500 from the Norside Theater last Sept. 4. A co-defendant, Harvey Miller, a former convict and notorious safe-cracker, was found guilty and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

BOY SUFFERS LOSS OF FINGER WHEN CAUGHT IN ESCALATOR

David W. Harlan, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Harlan, 1252 Boland place, Richmond Heights, lost the middle finger of his left hand and suffered lacerations of two other fingers Saturday when his hand was caught in an escalator in the Famous-Barr Co. department store.

The boy, who was with his mother at the time, fell as he alighted from the escalator on his way from the sixth to the fifth floor and caught his hand in the escalator at the floor as he reached out his arm to break his fall. His mother was unable to extricate his hand until the power was turned off several minutes later. He was taken to Park Lane Hospital.

RIVERFRONT PARKING BY CITY ITSELF URGED

Public Service Board Favors Operation by Department of Streets, Sewers.

The city Board of Public Service voted unanimously today to place the public parking lot, on the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial riverfront site, directly in charge of the Department of Streets and Sewers. This would rescind the decision, announced May 7, to contract with William Foltyn to operate the lot, Foltyn to take one-half the net proceeds.

The Board of Public Service resolution, as proposed by President Milton M. Kinsey and Director Arthur C. Meyers of the Department of Streets and Sewers, provides that the latter department shall make all arrangements for public use of the parking space, and shall hire any necessary personnel. The previous plan was that Foltyn should provide the personnel.

Members of the board said that, since the plans were announced, other offers to operate the lot had been received, and that the proposals varied so widely, and left so many features uncertain, that the policy of direct operation by the city seemed desirable.

The board's action was approved later by the city Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The Board of Estimate voted also that it would recommend an appropriation for operating the lot, as soon as the costs have been ascertained by the Streets and Sewers Department. Proceeds from the lot will go into the city treasury.

A flat fee of $10,000 a year will be charged the Public Service Co. for parking its busses in the section of the tract east of Third street, the Board of Estimate decided. Hitherto the company has dealt with the National Park Service. Deputy Comptroller Ray Schroeder reported that the number of busses parked on the site is about 790 a week, and the rental was figured on the basis of 25 cents a day per bus.

Foltyn, manager of Union Market garage, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had not been informed by city officials of the change in plans, and did not wish to comment.

Director Meyers has not announced a date for opening the 80-acre tract, minus three reserved strips, to public parking, at rates still to be fixed. He said the paved streets within the area were ready for parking. Other areas which may need surfacing to make them suitable for the purpose will be surfaced as needed.

The board approved the plan for the Third street section of the proposed inter-regional highway system. Director of Public Welfare Henry S. Caulfield voted against this action, the four other members favored it. The plan calls for a highway six lanes in width, with a central parkway.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN DEATH OF WOMAN IN LEAP AT HOTEL

A coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today in the death of Rebecca Prosser Smith, wife of H. T. T. Smith, secretary of the Lammert Furniture Co. Mrs. Smith jumped from a window of her fourteenth-floor apartment at the Park Plaza Hotel Friday.

Smith testified at the inquest that his wife had threatened suicide on several occasions and been under treatment for a nervous ailment. She was to enter a hospital Saturday morning, he said, but she told him Friday that if she did go to the hospital, she would not return.

Mrs. Smith's body was found on the Maryland avenue sidewalk. She was 57 years old. In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Charles J. McClung; three stepdaughters, Mrs. E. S. Morrow, Mrs. Harry M. Webster and Mrs. Sidney West; and two sisters, Mrs. Omar R. Sevin and Mrs. Henry W. Young.

FEE-SPLITTING IN RAIL INJURY SUITS CHARGED

Attorney Wayne Ely Accuses Plaintiff's Counsel of Sharing in G. M. & O. Case.

Fee-splitting in personal injury suits against railroads, the plaintiff's counsel sharing his fee with attorneys or officers of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was charged by Attorney Wayne Ely today before a tribunal of the three St. Louis judges of United States District Court.

Ely spoke in support of his motion to strike out the name of William H. DeParcq of Minneapolis as counsel for James E. Young of Oraville, Ill., who is suing the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio for $75,000 for injuries in an accident Nov. 14, 1942. The case is pending before Judge George H. Moore.

Ely said he took DeParcq's deposition in Chicago Feb. 23; that he then asked DeParcq if an arrangement existed for fee-splitting with attorneys or officers of the B.R.T., and that DeParcq refused to answer, on advice of counsel.

Attorney Jerome F. Duggan, representing DeParcq, argued that Ely had adduced no proof of the fee-splitting charge. Judge Rubey M. Hulen said the important thing was to determine whether such arrangements existed, and that if DeParcq had seen fit to answer Ely's question in the negative, Ely's motion would have collapsed. Judge Richard M. Duncan said such arrangements, if they existed, might have some influence on witnesses. Judge Moore, Hulen and Duncan took the motion under advisement.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS MEANS TO OBTAIN NEW CITY FUNDS

Mayor and Aids Confer on Proposals for Legislation to Raise $5,600,000 More Revenue.

A meeting of city administration leaders was held in the Mayor's office today for a discussion of legislation to provide $5,600,000 additional revenue for the city.

All of the measures proposed by Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann in his appeal to the Board of Aldermen for needed additional appropriations will be discussed. These include a proposed city income tax of ½ of 1 per cent, an amusement tax, a railroad franchise tax and a tax on manufacturers and merchants.

Attending the meeting were President Albert L. Schweitzer of the Board of Aldermen; Alderman Charles Albanese, Republican floor leader; Alderman Charles Kratovil, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; H. C. Martin, the Mayor's administrative assistant, and representatives of the Comptroller and the City Counselor.

Earlier the Board of Estimate and Apportionment tentatively approved legislation in the State Legislature for increasing police salaries. Approval by the board has no direct bearing on the fate of the bill, except as a recommendation. The police pay bill would provide 10 to 20 per cent increases, totaling $521,000 a year, for members of the department and would establish a new rank —that of corporal.

HOSPITAL PATIENT KILLED IN FALL FROM 4TH FLOOR

Coyne fell to the parking lot on the south side of the building at 5:45 a.m. and died in the hospital of internal injuries an hour later.

He had been under treatment at the hospital, 919 North Taylor avenue, for a diabetic condition, but appeared to be in good spirits when he was seen by his physician and relatives yesterday.

Coyne, who was a retired railroad employe, lived with a brother at the Lexington avenue address. He was not married.

COURT TO REVIEW TRUST CONVICTION OF TITANIUM FIRMS

U.S. Supreme Justices Grant Appeal to du Pont, National Lead and Titan Co.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—The Supreme Court today agreed to review a lower court finding that E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc.; National Lead Co., and Titan Co., Inc., had violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The United States District Court in New York City held the firms had combined to restrain foreign and domestic trade in titanium compounds. It held the Government was entitled to a decree restoring titanium to "a system of free competition."

Titanium pigments are used in paint, paper, rubber and other products. Each of the companies and the Justice Department appealed.

The Justice Department contended the decree was not severe enough to "end the companies' dominance of the titanium industry." National Lead and Titan argued the company agreements were a reasonable exercise of patent rights.

Du Pont questioned validity of the district court's holding it had become a member of such a combination by telling National Lead that Du Pont was not interested in exporting titanium pigments to Europe. Du Pont also questioned validity of the district court's order requiring it to give out technical information about its patents.

Justice Department Request.

The Justice Department asked the Supreme Court to rule the companies should extend to other firms royalty-free licenses "until the effects of their illegal combination have been fully dissipated."

The department said National Lead and du Pont each has two separate major titanium pigments plants. One of National Lead's is on the east coast and one at St. Louis. Those of du Pont are in Maryland and New Jersey. The Government's appeal said it would be "entirely feasible" for each to transfer one of its plants to a new corporation and to sell the stock of that corporation to persons not connected with them.

Titan is wholly owned by National Lead, and is in turn the owner of substantial stock interests in foreign companies.

Declines to Review City Tax.

The court refused to interfere with a city's tax on the income of a worker from another state. Its action left standing a Pennsylvania superior court decision that Philadelphia had a right to levy on a New Jersey man employed at the Philadelphia Navy yard.

William G. Barnes, who appealed from paying the tax of 1½ per cent of annual income, said he did not pass through Philadelphia going to and from work; received no reciprocal benefits from the city; noted that the Federal Government had exclusive jurisdiction over the navy yard, and contended the levy violated his constitutional rights.

A Supreme Court ruling, he said, "would quiet much unrest, which on one occasion, even during the war, resulted in a deplorable work stoppage at the navy yard." The court declined to review the appeal.

Ruling on Fall From Train.

In another decision, the Supreme Court granted a new trial to a newlywed who said he fell from a train window while suffering "delerium tremens." He sued for $250,000 damages.

The suit, filed against the Southern Pacific railroad by Gilbert E. Thiel, contended the line's employes had been told in advance of his condition and should have guarded him. A jury denied him damages.

Justice Murphy delivered the court's 5-2 opinion which said the trial court should have granted Thiel's motion to dismiss the jury panel. Justice Frankfurter wrote a dissent in which Justice Reed joined.

Thiel's appeal asserted among other things that seven of the prospective jurors "represented the employer viewpoint" and three others had "business or friendly connections" with the Southern Pacific.

Jury Selection.

Justice Murphy said that undisputed evidence in Theil's case showed a failure "to abide by the proper rules and principles of jury selection."

"Both the clerk of the court and the jury commissioner testified that they deliberately and intentionally excluded from the jury lists all persons who work for a daily wage," Justice Murphy said. "This exclusion . . . cannot be justified by federal or state law."

In the fall both of Theil's feet were cut off at the ankles. Infection developed, requiring amputation of both legs. He also lost use of one arm.

The Supreme Court denied the Central Railroad Co. of New Jersey a review of litigation involved in a claim by New Jersey state for $12,117,450 in back taxes plus $7,732,339 in interest.

WALKS INTO GUNFIGHT, STOPS IT; THREE HURT

Humane Society Agent Had Gone to Neighborhood to Free Pigeon—5 Involved.

Warrants will be sought today against five Negroes whose free-for-all fight in the 400 block of South Leffingwell avenue Saturday night was broken up by Jerome Feldmann, a Humane Society agent. Three of the Negroes, two of whom are suffering from gunshot wounds, are in Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

Feldmann was called to 417 South Leffingwell avenue to free a pigeon which had been caught in a piece of string on a chimney. After releasing the pigeon, he heard gunfire in the street below him and saw two persons, who later identified themselves as Mander and Bessie Mae Baxter, 2824 Bernard street, exchanging shots from behind Feldmann's Humane Society truck with two men and a woman across the street.

Feldmann walked into the line of fire and on his order, all five dropped their weapons. They then engaged in a fist-fight in the middle of the street until police arrived. Feldmann said he did not attempt to break up this fight. Police confiscated three pistols and a shotgun. Mrs. Baxter, police said, hid her gun before it could be seized.

The other Negroes said they were Mrs. Margaret Martin, 423 South Leffingwell, and her brothers, Robert and Ernest Branscomb, 516a South Garrison avenue. Baxter suffered gunshot wounds in the right shoulder, forearm and chest, and a stab wound in the chest. Mrs. Baxter suffered gunshot wounds of the mouth and face, and Mrs. Martin contusions of the chin, right hand and leg. The Branscombs, who were behind a telephone pole during the shooting, were uninjured. None gave a coherent story of the cause of the fracas.

CONGRESS 'FIGHTING MAD' AT LABOR, BARKLEY SAYS

CHICAGO, May 20 (UP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Senate majority leader, said today that Congress was "fighting mad" at labor and in such a mood probably would be unable to find the solution to the strike problem.

"Congress is in no position to take a long-range view," he said. "What we need is a calm, deliberate consideration of the problem. I said that three years ago when they passed the Smith-Connally Act in the heat of anger. Now I'd like to know what strikes the Smith-Connally Act has prevented."

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES UP

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Retail price ceiling boosts of four to five per cent for toasters, heating pads, space heaters and other small electrical appliances were authorized today by OPA.

They result from a hike in manufacturers' ceilings, effective immediately. Higher retail prices may not be charged, OPA said, until dealers have been notified by suppliers. The increase is being granted to compensate for higher wage and materials costs.

Roxas En Route Home.

HONOLULU, May 20 (AP)—President-elect Manuel A. Roxas of the Philippines said yesterday that the United States showed sympathetic understanding of problems confronting his new government. Roxas, en route home after a visit to Washington, addressed the United Philippines Council of Hawaii during a brief stop-over.

SAILOR RECEIVES $555,555 TAX REFUND; IT'S AN ERROR

DUNKIRK, N.Y., May 20 (AP)—A federal income tax refund for more than a half-million dollars has come to an 18-year-old Navy seaman who had expected a refund of about $23. The boy's father, Thomas G. Richir said a check for $555,555.55 came in the mail Saturday.

The son, Thomas, now stationed at the San Diego naval base, was employed for a short time last year by the New York Telephone Co. in Olean. Richir said he wanted "to keep the check and frame it."

In New York a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Bureau said there would be no comment from the New York office until a representative of the department had made further investigation. He said the check likely was due to a mechanical error.

LOW-COST CLOTHING PROGRAM CONTINUED

CPA and OPA Call for Forecasts on Woolen and Worsted Output.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—The Government announced last night that its program designed to stimulate production of inexpensive clothing will be continued into the July-September quarter of this year.

At the same time the Civilian Production Administration and the Office of Price Administration called for forecasts on the output of woolen and worsted fabrics as a part of a survey aimed at increasing the supply of men's suits.

Continuance of CPA's low-cost clothing program in the third quarter will maintain the set-aside of large quantities of cotton, rayon and wool fabrics for inexpensive garments, including shirts, underwear, pajamas, dresses, suits, overcoats and a variety of children's apparel items.

This program was started about a year ago as a supplement to OPA's maximum average price regulation, which requires manufacturers to produce the same ratio of low- to high-priced garments they did in 1943.

CPA Administrator John D. Small, reporting that consumer demand still is at record levels, said it would be CPA policy to continue present controls until the agency is satisfied that inflationary pressures will not push low-cost clothing off the market.

CPA and OPA asked producers for third-quarter forecasts on output of woolen and worsted fabrics in connection with industry proposals aimed at obtaining from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 more suits for men this year. Annual output at present is about 20,000,000 suits.

To help achieve such a gain, the industry has asked for elimination of the average price regulation as it applies to woolen and worsted fabrics, and discontinuance of the cloth set-aside for suits to sell at retail for $35 or less.

The agencies have agreed to consider these proposals if the industry can show that revocation of controls will not cut production of inexpensive suits.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20—Payment of a Missouri estate tax of $148,661 on the estate of Shelby Hammond Curlee of St. Louis, founder of the Curlee Clothing Co., was received today by the inheritance tax division of the State Treasurer's Department. Curlee died Jan. 31, 1944.

The state previously had collected a Missouri inheritance tax of $67,294 on the estate, which had a gross appraised valuation of $2,837,668 for tax purposes, making a total of $215,955 received by the state.

Net value of the estate, after payment of federal inheritance taxes, listed at $1,167,141, state and local taxes, claims and administration expenses, was placed at $1,388,683.

56 WATCHES WORTH $4000 ARE STOLEN AT SCOTT FIELD

Fifty-six watches valued at about $4000 were stolen from the main post exchange at Scott Field some time between midnight and 8 a.m. yesterday.

The thieves gained entrance by breaking a pane of glass in a rear window and turning the latch. The watches, valued at $24 to $251, with five worth more than $100, were in a show case. Nothing else was stolen.

A joint investigation is being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Counter Intelligence Corps and the provost marshal's office, it was announced.

D. A. R. DELEGATES TO ACT ON ENDING NEGRO BAR AT HALL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20 (AP) — The Daughters of the American Revolution gathered in hotel lobbies before the opening of their Fifty-fifth Continental Congress today and the talk mostly was about the move to erase the "white artists only" clause from commercial leases for their 4000-seat Constitution Hall in Washington.

A 17-woman committee had taken the step to permit Negro entertainers to appear in commercial programs at the D.A.R.'s hall. They had submitted to the resolutions committee a recommendation that the words "white artists only," instituted in 1932, be deleted in future leases.

The showdown was expected tomorrow or Wednesday.

Representative Clare Boothe Luce (Rep.), Connecticut, a member of the committee submitting the resolution, had said in a radio address last February that she did not believe the D.A.R. intended racial discrimination but that continuation of the clause might give the Daughters "a black eye." Mrs. Luce is a member of the D.A.R., but not a delegate to the congress. Six of the 17 on the committee are delegates.

There has been much controversy over the clause. At one time Marian Anderson, the Negro contralto, had been barred from appearing in Constitution Hall. In 1943, however, at the invitation of the D.A.R she gave a benefit performance in the hall. An officer of the D.A.R. said the Negro Tuskegee Institute choir was scheduled to sing at the hall next month.

Recently Hazel Scott, Negro pianist, was refused permission to present a concert in the hall.

TRUMAN URGES PEOPLE TO WORK, HE GETS DEGREE

the degree by Maurice Winger, vice president of the board of trustees. Truman was introduced as "a man who more than half a century has lived across the river within the shadow of this college."

On his way to the campus, he passed through the downtown section of Liberty, where he delivered the final speech in his vice presidential campaign in 1944.

The President was accompanied by Dr. Walter Pope Binns, president of the college, which today is completing its ninety-seventh year. Dr Binns met the President this morning at Kansas City, where Truman spent the night after flying from Washington Sunday afternoon.

The graduating procession was headed by a color guard of two of the tallest of the 174 World War II veterans on the campus—Bryan Smith, Cameron, Mo., and David Gregg, Liberty, both 6 feet 6 inches tall. Greetings to the President from the senior class were extended by Morgan Jones, a blind student from Grandview.

After the ceremonies Truman returned to Kansas City and took off for Washington by plane.

At a press conference last night he brushed aside questions about the labor situation, and labeled his homecoming simply "a friendly visit."

Truman found his mother, who had been abed with a cold, well enough to be waiting for him with other members of the family at the Grandview (Mo.) airport when his C-54 plane, "The Sacred Cow," arrived yesterday afternoon from Washington.

Later he went to the Hotel Muehlenbach in Kansas City to spend the night. Some of his old friends dropped in in the evening, among them Roger T. Sermon, who is beginning his twenty-first year as Mayor of Truman's home town of nearby Independence, Mo.

This morning he took one of his before-breakfast strolls along streets familiar from boyhood days. Few persons were about when, accompanied by secret service men and trailed by reporters and photographers, he started out at 7 o'clock for a mile-long brisk walk. Some persons stared at the President curiously, but no one tried to stop and talk with him.

FIGHTING IN IRAN; TABRIZ ACCUSES TEHRAN OF ATTACK

about 100 miles south of Tabriz and a short distance inside the Azerbaijan frontier.

One Tabriz report said 15,000 Government troops had crossed the Azerbaijan border.

Martial Law in Tabriz.

Martial law was proclaimed in Tabriz, BBC quoted the broadcast as saying, and a "Mr. Padvam" was appointed military governor of the city. Reuters said the broadcast announced an 11 p.m. curfew and proclaimed the death penalty for violators.

BBC reported the Tabriz station interrupted a transmission of recorded music yesterday to announce the alleged attack. Then, the Tabriz announcer said:

"Azerbaijan supporters have received orders to defend themselves. We shall defend freedom and democracy.

"After the clearing of the political horizon, Iran wants to obscure it again with the blood of Azerbaijan youth. Shame to the treacherous hands which are dragging us into fratricide and bloody battle!

"Each supporter must put up a stiff resistance. Everyone must make sacrifices. Let the world know in whose hands the destiny of suffering of the Iranian nation lies. We shall defend freedom to the last breath and the last Azerbaijani.

"It is not known on whose orders the Tehran forces have launched their attack. Assault and savagery have begun."

(The National Broadcasting Co. in New York quoted BBC as saying that the Tabriz radio reported that casualties had been inflicted on an unspecified number of Central Government forces, and that 40 Government soldiers had been taken prisoner.)

There were no reports of Russian participation or direct assistance to Azerbaijan, which set up an autonomous government during Red Army occupation.

Negotiations between Azerbaijan officials and the Central Government on the possible return of Azerbaijan to the jurisdiction of Tehran broke down last week.

Dispatches from foreign correspondents who reached Tabriz last week after being barred for many months, said the Russians had apparently evacuated all of Iran, including Azerbaijan. They reported the city was an armed camp.

2 HURT WHEN INTERURBAN IS DERAILED AFTER COLLISION

The passengers were listed at City Hospital as Mrs. Marie Liles, 30 years old, 2351 Lafayette avenue, and Mrs. Kathleen Jakich, 24, 1415 Madison avenue, Granite City. Extent of their injuries was not immediately determined.

Charles Pennington, Dayton, O., driver of the truck, told police he failed to hear a signal bell at the crossing in time to prevent the collision.

BILL FOR MERGING ARMED FORCES CALLED DOOMED

in the foreseeable future naval aviation and amphibious forces will play a major role in preventing any potential enemy from bringing war to our shores."

Points of Agreement.

They said the Army and Navy are in agreement on nine points that could be put into immediate effect by legislation, and listed these as:

"1. Organized means for the integration of foreign and military policy.

"2. Organizations in being for directing industrial mobilization and for reconciling such mobilization with natural resources.

"3. An organization to insure both sound strategic planning and unified command in operations.

"4. A more efficient organization for the translation of strategic requirements into requirements for material and personnel.

"5. Adequate means for the elimination of waste and duplication in and between the military departments in the procurement and distribution of material and personnel.

"6. An efficient co-ordinated intelligence organization serving all government departments and agencies.

"7. An organized means for fostering scientific research and development within the military departments and among civilian organizations.

"8. A possible closer integration of military education and training.

"9. Full opportunity of each branch of the military services to develop its specialty and at the same time facilitate inter-service training and operational unity when employed jointly."

Fight on Navy Budget.

Interlocked with the merger fight is the Navy's struggle to prevent a deep slash in its first postwar budget, which reaches the House floor this week.

At issue is a cut of two billion dollars recommended by the Budget Bureau for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The appropriations committee is to send its recommendation to the floor Tuesday. A compromise figure is expected.

Regardless of what the committee proposes, a lively fight is in prospect when debate gets under way Wednesday. Many members believe the Navy should have the entire $6,325,000,000 it sequested, and many more are inclined to favor the Budget Bureau's reduction to $4,224,000,000.

Naval committee members, headed by Vinson, have announced they will fight to restore the entire fund if the appropriations committee follows the Budget Bureau recommendations.

Opponents of the merger proposal claim the Administration is seeking to whittle down the Navy's funds preparatory to making the Army the top war agency. By restoring the Navy's funds, merger opponents believe, they can maintain the Navy's position as an agency of such importance as to preclude its consolidation with any other department.

as roving pickets shut down 13 additional pits.

West Virginia, the nation's top coal producer, reported all but 1500 of its 104,000 miners back at work. The 23,000 miners in Illinois were all reported working and a similar number in Alabama were on the job.

In Kentucky, 40,000 of the total 55,000 were in the pits. One thousand remained idle in two Ohio diggings, while 550 were not working in the Chattanooga (Tenn.) area because of water in the mines.

Negotiations Continue for Hard Coal Contract.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Negotiators representing anthracite operators and the AFL United Mine Workers, who have only eleven days to avert a strike in Pennsylvania's hard coal fields, met again today in another effort to arrive at a new contract.

Today's session was the ninth held here by the seven-man negotiating committees. The miners have filed notice on intent to strike when their contract expires May 31.

Negotiations to date have been inconclusive. At the close of Saturday's session, Thomas Kennedy, UMW secretary-treasurer, and J. B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Co. and operator spokesman, said only "local matters" had been discussed, and declined to elaborate.

DETROIT, May 20 (AP) — The CIO United Auto Workers today filed a formal protest with the OPA against increased automobile prices.

'PROGRESS' ON RAIL DISPUTE REPORTED BY UNION CHIEFS

and Navy to fly first-class mail and for the diversion of vital foods and other critical freight to air, water and highway transportation.

Government transportation officials arranged a meeting late today with the Air Transportation Association. An A.T.A. official said he assumed it would cover the general subject of enlisting aid of the commercial airlines in meeting any emergency.

One of the first actions of Federal Manager Charles H. Buford after taking over the 337 seized lines was to direct the railroads to hire new men to replace strikers wherever possible and to call on the Army for protective troops if necessary.

Buford is running the roads for Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation. Johnson in a statement announcing plans for operating the roads "with as little reduction of service as possible," added:

"We will continue to develop these plans and have them ready so that if the strike does come after the postponement it will cause minimum damage to American transportation."

Most service had returned to near normal yesterday, although the train that brought Whitney and Johnston back to Washington from their Cleveland headquarters was two hours late.

It was a telephone call from the President to those two men Saturday afternoon that brought about the five-day truce. Their acceptance came at 3:34 p.m.—just 26 minutes before the deadline.

Truman announced the postponement to a hurriedly summoned news conference. He read a statement saying the two brotherhoods had agreed to move the strike date back to 4 p.m. Thursday "in response to a request from the President, who gave his assurance that he was confident further progress could be made toward a settlement if the negotiations with the railroads were resumed."

On their arrival here yesterday, neither Whitney nor Johnston would say whether they had received any assurances that the railroads were ready to make a new wage offer. It was known that Steelman had been in consultation with carrier representatives before Truman put in his call to Cleveland.

Previous negotiations over wages and working rules changes came to an abrupt end last Thursday, precipitating Friday's seizure of the lines. The brotherhoods had scaled down their wage demands from an original 25 per cent or $2.50 a day minimum increase to 18 cents an hour or $1.44 a day. The carriers held firm to the 16 cents an hour-$1.28 a day boost recommended by the President's emergency board.

In New York, where one of the most severe rail tie-ups occurred Saturday night, all lines reported early today that service was "completely normal again."

The "Hudson tubes," which carry commuters between New York and New Jersey, were running after a complete halt for nearly 26 hours, the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Co. reported.

The tie-up began when news of the last-minute postponement of the railroad strike was two hours and 45 minutes late in reaching local union officers. In that time, train service came to a halt.

Commuters found no trains to take them home. Railroad stations were jammed with hundreds of thousands who fought to telephone booths and telegraph offices to warn families and friends that they had been delayed.

When news came that the union had ordered the men back to work, a great shout went up through the stations, but the traffic jam was only beginning. A backlog of trains had to get under way and service had to be reorganized.

ENDING OF OPA JUNE 30, 1947 IN BARKLEY PLAN

ana, submitted an amendment to require OPA to lift controls on 81-3 per cent of all commodities each month beginning June 30. This would end all price control one year later. The committee received also a proposal by Senator Stewart (Dem.), Tennessee, to abolish OPA at once and turn some of its functions over to other Government agencies.

(The Associated Press reported Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, offered an amendment providing that after Sept. 1 no maximum price should be established for any product below the price which the manufacturer received in a base period, Oct. 1-15, 1941, plus the average increase in unit costs throughout the industry since then.)

Chairman Wagner (Dem.), New York, said he hoped the committee would vote tomorrow on amendments to lift controls.

An amendment by Senator Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama, would give the Secretary of Agriculture veto power over price controls on any agriculture commodity. One by Senator McFarland (Dem.), Arizona, would transfer administration of price controls on farm products to the Department of Agriculture.

FRANCO CHARGES RUSSIA TRIES TO DOMINATE WORLD

OVIEDO, Spain, May 20 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco said yesterday that Soviet Russia, after once closing churches, was now reopening them "in an imperialist attempt to dominate the world." Franco spoke for 40 minutes in the central square of this mining capital in a northern Spain area which formerly was a Socialist-Communist stronghold. Cries of "Spain yes, Communism no," came from the crowd.

"I should like your cry 'Spain yes, Communism no' to reach every corner of the world, so it may know the feeling of all Spain," the Generalissimo said.

"It will," voices in the crowd replied.

Franco attacked Russia as having engaged in a farce of destroying private property, the army and the church and then restoring them. He said the Russians, after abolishing military decorations, now authorized them to be worn on arms because chests had no room left.

When the French were driven from Spain in the last century, Franco said, they left behind decadence, Masonry and political parties. He charged that Spanish Republicans who fled to France after the civil war "were sent to concentration camps and installed there like cattle," after which they were taken "to work like animals on farms."

(The United Press quoted Franco as saying Spain would resist what he called attempts to "Frenchify" the country.)

Franco asserted that "many peoples" in Europe had higher standards of living than Spain's because of colonial workers earning "miserable wages."

Soviet Report of Spanish Uranium Development Plan.

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—A Soviet news agency message from New York said yesterday that a Spanish engineer named Garcia visited Milwaukee factories recently in a reported quest for machinery to increase Spain's uranium production. The dispatch, reported by the Soviet monitor here, gave no particulars. Garcia, it said, was one of "many Spanish Fascist officials" who had visited the United States and other Western Hemisphere countries.

150 IN LAST BIRD WALK

Despite the rain yesterday 150 persons participated in the last bird walk of the season in Forest Park. The walks are held, at the height of the migration season, under the auspices of the St. Louis Bird Club.

The appearance of 60 species including numerous Kentucky and mourning warblers was unusual, according to Wayne Short, president of the club. During the four bird walks of the season 108 species were sighted.

JOSEPH E. STEIN JR.

HEART DISEASE, FEVER FATAL TO BOY AT PLAY

McKinley High School Junior Becomes Ill Participating in Softball Game.

The death of Joseph E. Stein Jr., a junior at McKinley High School, who collapsed and died yesterday on a playground at Ninth street and Ann avenue, was due to rheumatic fever and a heart disorder, Dr. John J. Connor, coroner's physician, said today. Dr. Connor said an autopsy indicated the boy had been suffering from rheumatic fever for several months.

Stein became ill when playing softball, and collapsed 10 minutes after seating himself on the ground to rest. Other players gave him artificial respiration while awaiting the arrival of an ambulance, but he was dead when taken to City Hospital.

The boy, who was 17 years old, lived with his parents at 3426A Illinois avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Stein were at Meramec Caverns, Staunton, Mo., at the time and were notified there by the State Highway Patrol. Stein said his son had not complained of feeling ill, and appeared to be in good health.

NEW DRUG SAID TO AID GERM IN SOME CASES

Federal Researchers Find Danger Area in Use of Streptomycin.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—A danger area in which the new drug streptomycin increases rather than decreases deaths from infection was reported yesterday by United States Food and Drug Administration researchers.

Penicillin, another war-born drug, may also have this effect, the report added on the basis of preliminary studies.

Carrying out tests on more than 2000 mice, the scientists found the amount of streptomycin used determined whether the drug killed or cured. Disease-fighting concentrations lie relatively close to those that stimulate disease.

So far, this theory has not been tried on humans, but Dr. Henry Welch and his co-workers in the division of penicillin control and immunology, declare it is "entirely logical" that "improper dosage may lead to undesirable results."

Results in the treatment of typhoid fever and undulant fever in men and women have been unexplainably erratic; some patients are cured, others show no improvement even after large doses.

Welch suggests in the journal of the American Pharmaceutical Association that under certain conditions streptomycin actually increases activity of the germ it is being used to fight. He could not explain definitely this quirk.

Treating typhoid-infected mice with a low dosage, the researchers found that increases in streptomycin caused comparable increases in the deaths and that in a particular range more of the mice died than when none of the drug at all was administered.

Beyond this point, a further increase brought a drop in the deaths and when the dose was "sufficiently high" no deaths occurred.

FATHER MAKES PLEA FOR EX-G.I. IN HOLDUP

St. Louis Parent Asks to Take War Hero Home With Him From Seattle.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SEATTLE, May 20.—An appeal to defer the sentence of Tony R. Doto, young St. Louis war hero held on a charge of robbery of a jewelry store here, has been made by the youth's father, Bert Doto Sr., authorities said today. Doto asked that his son be allowed to enter a psychiatric hospital rather than be sent to prison.

"My boy is not a criminal," the father, who arrived here with his wife by automobile Friday from St. Louis, said. "He has never been in trouble before and he never will be again. His mother and I want to take him home with us and give him a new start."

Doto was arrested in March when a jeweler saw him on the street and identified him as a hold-up man. Dr. Donald A. Shaskan, a psychiatrist who examined him for the prosecuting attorney, concluded one of his troubles was that his father had been over-protective toward him.

Frustration over lack of a job and annoyance at the patronizing attitude of civilians were factors that led Doto to commit the robbery, Dr. Shaskan said, but his complex can be cured.

"I still can't figure out why I committed those robberies," the youth said as he left the prosecutor's office with his father after posting bond. "I didn't need the money. I threw it away."

Doto, 18 years old, enlisted in the Army at the age of 14. He was wounded in action three times and holds the Purple Heart and Bronze Star medals as well as French and Belgian decorations. His mother, too ill to accompany her husband on his visit to the prosecutor, remained in nearby Tacoma, with an older son Bert Jr., who operates a taxicab business here. The Dotos live at 1445A Hodiamont avenue in St. Louis.

POLISH ARMY OF ANDERS EXPECTED TO BE DISBANDED

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—An authoritative source who refused to be named said yesterday Gen. Wladyslaw Anders's Polish army of more than 100,000 troops in Italy will be brought to Britain and disbanded in the immediate future.

The British War Office said it had no information concerning such a proposal, and in Rome Gen. Anders's headquarters said that while such a step may have been decided in London, "the general has not been informed."

The informant here said the decision had been reached "on higher levels" as a concession to the Soviet Union during the four-power Foreign Ministers' conference in Paris.

U. S. RETURNS MILITARY, NAVAL AIR BASES ON ISLAND TO CUBA

HAVANA, May 20 (UP)—The United States returned to Cuba today the military and naval air bases used during the war to keep supply lines open in the Caribbean.

Involved were military installations at San Antonio de los Banos—Batista field—and the naval air station at San Julian, western extremity of the island.

The naval base of Guatanamo, an American installation since the end of the Spanish-American War, was not involved in the transfer.

MORE DEPENDENT CHILDREN

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20 (UP)—Comparative figures by the Missouri Social Security Commission reveal that 1028 dependent children have been added this month to the state's increasing relief rolls. Total number of children receiving aid this month was 38,173, compared with 37,145 for last month.

Payments for May were $524,822, an increase of $15,787 from April. Average payments, meantime, went from $13.70 last month to $13.75 this month, an increase which was expected to continue until July, 1947. Biggest boost in the rolls was recorded in St. Louis, where 129 additional children became recipients in May, bringing the total there to 2786. Next was Jackson county, with an increase of 51 payments over the April total of 983.

Boy Drowns in Creve Coeur Creek.

Jewell Betts, 14-year-old Negro, drowned yesterday in Creve Coeur Creek, three-quarters of a mile south of Creve Coeur Lake, when swimming with a companion, Thomas Taylor, Negro, 4634A Vernon avenue. He lived at 2902 Sheridan avenue.

PRISONER AT JAIL IN SEVENTH DAY OF HUNGER STRIKE

James Bundren Says He Will Die to Prove His Innocence.

James E. Bundren, former convict, began the seventh day of his hunger strike in city jail today. He was 33 pounds lighter than when he started but still determined to touch neither food nor drink.

Bundren, sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary on a charge of grand larceny, at first announced that he would fast until he had obtained a parole so that he could support his wife and two children. Today, however, he declared, "I'll die to prove I'm innocent."

"I'm awfully weak this morning," he said in a southern drawl, "but I reckon I'll last 14 or 15 more days. I wash my face and my feet every day because it soothes my nerves."

Other prisoners in Bundren's cell block said he washes his face 14 times a day and is bound to absorb some moisture while doing it. Yesterday Bundren refused his dinner of braised beef and vegetables and he turned down breakfast this morning. However, Dr. Eber Simpson, prison physician, said he showed no ill effects from the fast.

War on Shanghai Black Market.

SHANGHAI, May 20 (AP)—K. C. Wu declared war on food speculators and invited foreign criticism as he took office as mayor of Shanghai today. "God help food speculators if I catch them," Wu said at a press conference.

CAMPAIGN BEGUN IN TRADE GROUPS FOR VETERAN JOBS

Associations Asked to Help Set Up Screening, Testing and Training Service.

Organization of the trade associations in St. Louis to assist war veterans in getting jobs was begun today by B. G. Gregory, manager of the Insurance Board of St. Louis.

Gregory said he hoped to get all trade associations in the city to cooperate in setting up a service aimed at finding the right veterans for business and professional opportunities available in the occupations represented by the associations. Such a service, he said, would include screening veterans, testing them for aptitudes and in some instances training them for the jobs for which they are fitted.

"In the insurance field alone," Gregory said, "we have placed 154 veterans in jobs and there are 350 to 400 openings not yet filled. I am certain there are many more jobs if we can place the right men in the right positions in other fields."

Driver Killed in Fall Out Door Of His Truck Crossing Bridge

James Stratton Thrown Against Girder When Vehicle Hits Guard Rails and Then Stops.

James Stratton, a chauffeur, was killed yesterday when he fell from a truck he was driving on McKinley Bridge and struck a support girder five feet below the vehicular deck of the bridge.

Miss Eva Lotsbeich, 908 Chambers street, who with two other men was riding in the front seat of the truck, told police the vehicle skidded as they were driving east and began swerving back and forth across the bridge, striking first the south guard rail and then the north rail.

When the truck hit the north rail, she said, the door on the left side flew open and Stratton fell out. The motor of the truck died and the vehicle stopped. Stratton, 30 years old, was dead on arrival at City Hospital. Police have been unable to learn his home address.

Unidentified Woman Found Dead on Streetcar Tracks.

The body of an unidentified elderly woman was found yesterday on the city waterworks street car tracks 400 feet north of St. Cyr road. Her left leg and right foot were broken, and she had sustained other injuries. She was pronounced dead at City Hospital and the body was taken to the City Morgue.

Police believe the woman was struck by a street car, but none of the motormen on the line was aware of having struck her. She was about 70 years old, weighed 105 pounds, and was five feet, two inches tall. She was wearing a black and white print dress.

HEARINGS ON SALE OF RADAR DATA TO BE OPENED TO PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, May 20 (UP)—The Senate judiciary subcommittee on radar announced today that next week it will start letting the public attend its hearings on the reported transfer of radar secrets to Russia.

The first witness at a public session is expected to be a former State Department employe who spent 14 months in Yugoslavia. He reportedly told the subcommittee in secret session that some radar information was given to the Tito government.

GANDHI URGES PROHIBITION, CONDEMNS COCKTAIL PARTIES

BOMBAY, May 20 (AP) — Mohandas K. Gandhi today called on Congress party and Moslem League leaders to work for prohibition in India.

Writing in his newspaper Harijan, the leader of the Congress party condemned cocktail parties and other "bad European manners and customs," and added:

"It would be a sad day for India and the world if the price we are to pay for independence is cocktail parties and the like."

SHIGERU YOSHIDA FINALLY FORMS NEW JAP CABINET

Succeeds After MacArthur Warns Minorities — Full Approval Doubtful.

By MORRIE LANDSBERG.

TOKYO, May 20 (AP) — A heavily conservative cabinet was named for Japan tonight after Gen. Douglas MacArthur demanded that "disorderly minorities" cease "mass violence and the physical process of intimidation."

Chief Cabinet Secretary Joji Hayashi announced selection by Premier-Designate Shigeru Yoshida of 15 men—six Liberals, five non-partisans and four progressives. Complete approval by Supreme Headquarters, however, was reported doubtful.

Informed Japanese commented they doubted that one, Dr. Hiroshi Nasu, non-partisan nominee for agriculture minister, would be accepted in view of his "conspicuous" record. They pointed out that he had been associated closely with the ultra-nationalistic Imperial Rule Association and was former adviser to the Japanese Government in Manchuria.

Ministers Listed.

The other ministers listed by Hayashi:

Kijuro Shidehara, Progressive, Takao Saito, Progressive; Etsujiro Euhara, Liberal, and Sadakichi Hitotsumatsu, Progressive—all state ministers.

Joji Hayashi, Liberal, chief cabinet secretary; Toshio Irie, non-partisan, director of the legislation board.

Yoshida, in his attempt to form a cabinet, was beset by the same criticism that caused Baron Shidehara and his cabinet to resign four weeks ago. Labor organizations, Communists and other Leftist groups criticized Yoshida's plan for a conservative government, called for a "popular front" government and demanded more food.

Decided to Continue.

Yoshida decided to continue his efforts only after Gen. MacArthur's demand for cessation of "mass violence." The statement, although not identifying the "disorderly minorities," was interpreted by officers close to MacArthur as applying to those demonstrating publicly against Yoshida.

MacArthur in his statement warned that if "undisciplined elements" were unable to exercise self-restraint, he would be forced to take steps to control the situation. He mentioned no specific acts of violence, but Brig. Gen. Frayne Baker, Supreme Headquarters public relations officer, said he had in mind the demonstration yesterday by the Left-wing groups opposed to Yoshida.

Col. L. E. Bunker, aide to MacArthur, said he believed the statement referred to a mob storming the premier's official residence two days before the April 10 election, manhandling of police at yesterday's demonstration and several recent incidents in which Labor - Communist delegations pushed their way through the imperial palace gates with petitions for the Emperor.

MacArthur said the demonstrations constitute "a menace not only to the orderly government but to the basic purposes and security of the occupation itself."

A Communist-led delegation of 30 still camped outside the premier's office, demanding that Yoshida step aside in favor of a liberal coalition government. Yoshida's headquarters said he longed to give up the battle to form a cabinet but that present circumstances compelled him to finish the job.

BLACK MARKET 'WILDER THAN EVER,' MEAT PACKERS CHARGE

CHICAGO, May 20 (UP)—The American Meat Institute charged today that the black market is running "wilder than ever," and that some packers last week reported that beef production was the lowest in their history.

The institute, representing packers, charged also that the Office of Price Administration's slaughter control order had failed.

"The legitimate meat packing industry now is producing beef at about one fourth of its normal operating capacity, although every effort has been made to increase production and still remain within OPA price compliance ranges in the purchase of cattle," the institute said.

"The black market now is wilder than ever and no relief for the average beef consumer is in sight," the report said. "The sooner all price and related controls are removed from the livestock and meat business, the sooner the industry can restore order."

'Education for Survival' Fostered By Group of Atomic Scientists

Campaign for International Control to Reach Colleges, Business, Church, Labor and Women's Organizations.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20 — A campaign to inform the public of the need for international control of atomic energy has been begun by the National Committee on Atomic Information.

It will be built around the recent report prepared under the supervision of the State Department, which recommended an international atomic development authority to control "dangerous" activities and encourage "safe" undertakings. (This is the report recently published in full in the Post-Dispatch.)

The report does not represent a statement of policy but was published by the State Department as a suitable starting point for informed public discussion. It is this discussion that the committee hopes to stimulate.

In announcing the campaign, Daniel Melcher, director of the committee, said that 70 national educational, business, church, labor and women's organizations were co-operating in "carrying to the grass roots a campaign of 'education for survival.'"

The committee has secured pledges of co-operation from the heads of 275 universities. On each campus a professor has been designated to take charge of disseminating information. Formation of committees of civic groups will be encouraged.

The National Federation of American Scientists has agreed to furnish speakers and published material. The committee's scientific consultants' panel includes Albert Einstein, J. R. Oppenheimer, H. D. Smyth, Leo Szilard, Harold C. Urey and Eugene Wigner, all physicists who took a leading part in the release of atomic energy. Headquarters of the committee are at 1749 L street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

U. N. Bar on Atom Bomb Making Advocated in Poll of Opinion.

DENVER, May 20 (UP)—More than seven out of 10 persons in the United States think the United Nations should ban the manufacture of atomic weapons in every country, a nationwide survey by the National Research Center of the University of Denver disclosed yesterday. Of those interviewed, 56 per cent said they still would favor such a law, even if it meant that the United States would have to destroy its present supply of atomic bombs.

Sixty-eight per cent believe that the United States will fight in another war within the next 25 years and 75 per cent think that, if the United States does fight in another war within the next quarter-century, atomic bombs will be used against American cities.

Reactions against such a U. N. bar on atom bomb manufacture seemed to center on two points—skepticism as to whether such a bar could be enforced, and the belief that the United States should not risk its prior advantage in atom bomb manufacture.

NATURALIZED CITIZENS HONORED IN PROGRAM

(Pictures in Everyday Magazine.)

St. Louisans who have been naturalized within the last year were honored in ceremonies at the annual "I Am an American Day" program at Beaumont High School yesterday.

About 600 of the 1200 persons who attended were new citizens.

The program, sponsored by International Institute, the Urban League, the public schools and the Federal Immigration and Naturalization Service, included talks by Walter J. Wolf, naturalization examiner, and Philip J. Hickey, superintendent of instruction in the public schools.

Harvey M. Fisher, commander of the Maplewood Amvet post and principal speaker, appealed to the new citizens to join with veterans in solving postwar problems. Fisher, a lawyer, was an agent of the Army's criminal investigation division in Europe.

"For us veterans, this day has a special significance also, for while you are dedicating yourselves to the American way of life, we are rededicating ourselves to this great virile land," he said.

"I must admit with some reluctance and shame that in a great many cases we learned to fully appreciate America only as a result of years of war—of years spent away from our native shores amidst death, destruction and world-wide catastrophe. Only then did the realization dawn on us that we were very lucky indeed to be heirs of the great American heritage — lucky to be United States citizens.

"In our years away from home we always felt that our country had a place and future for us, and that it needed us as much as we needed it. I, for one, do not like the phrase 'veterans' problems.' I do not believe there is any veterans' problem in the strict sense today, except of course for those who were maimed or crippled in this war. In a larger sense there are only problems in which the veterans share—share with the rest of the people of this country."

Downpour.

LOS ANGELES — Giving up hope of finding another apartment after receiving an eviction notice, Kenneth Gruse, 22 years old, Marine veteran, started loading his trailer, preparing to go to Tulsa, Ok.

He made the final trip back into the house to get his radio. He still has the radio, but he is wondering who drove off with his car, his trailer and his household goods.

Pocket Piece.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Passersby gathered in a knot on a downtown corner to gape at a three-foot bull snake sunning itself on the running board of a parked car.

Willie Salas broke up the show. He pocketed the snake and strolled away, remarking:

Time Tiff.

HARRISBURG, Ill. — Saline county supervisors directed that the courthouse clock in Harrisburg, which has daylight saving time, be turned back to standard time.

Refusing to carry out the instructions, Courthouse Janitor William Harry said he was paid by the city of Harrisburg. Furthermore, said Harrisburg's Mayor Frank Parker, the city bought the clock for $1500 in 1904.

In a similar time feud between officials of Wayne county and Saline, the county seat, the county won—it owned the clock.

500,000 College Aspirants, Among Them 270,000 Veterans, May Be Rejected for Lack of Facilities

Shortage of Housing a Major Factor, Snyder Reports to Truman—Difficulty in Finding Suitable Jobs One Reason for Many Applications From Ex-G.I.s.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20.

MORE than 2,000,000 persons—970,000 of them war veterans—will seek enrollment in the nation's colleges and universities next fall and it will be impossible to provide facilities for all of them.

This statement was made in a report by John W. Snyder, Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, to President Truman last night. In it Snyder said:

The problem of closing the gap between the capacity of the colleges and the anticipated demand for enrollment in September is urgent. On the basis of programs for expansion before the issuance of this report, the institutions, with a potential student body of 2,080,000, estimate they will be able to accommodate not more than 1,000,000.

"Unless more far-reaching action is taken, between 400,000 and 500,000 young people may have to be turned away from the college careers on which they are anxious to embark. Among them will be 270,000 veterans who will be unable to redeem the pledge of educational opportunity that was made to them in the "G.I. Bill of Rights."

One of the major difficulties, of housing, and perhaps the most important section of Snyder's 50-page report dealt with that phase of the problem. He said that the Federal Government is playing the major role in providing living quarters, but that help will be needed from state and local governments, as well as the institutions themselves.

Housing for 300,000 Veterans.

By the end of the year, Snyder said, the Federal Government will have provided or assisted in providing temporary housing for 300,000 student veterans. These housing units fall into three groups, of about 100,000 each, as follows:

1. Federally - owned buildings converted and moved at Government expense.

2. War housing units rented to students on veterans' priorities.

3. Buildings converted at college expense with beds, bedding and furnishings supplied by the Government, and military camps and other establishments used on present sites. Available housing in this group is expected to be increased as the Army and Navy declare installations surplus.

Under the first classification, the Federal Public Housing Authority will spend about $200,000,000 to move and set up on new sites near colleges barracks, portable housing and quonset huts, and to convert hospitals, barracks and mess halls on present sites. It will not be possible to provide more than 100,000 units, although as of May 1 some 800 institutions had requested 200,000 units and 550 of the applicants had been allocated 45,000 units.

Basis for Allocations.

Originally, Snyder said, the units were allocated on the basis of "first come, first served," but a standard now has been set up which allows one unit for each three veterans on the rolls as of last Feb. 28.

In the category of war housing, of which there are about 500,000 units, student veterans will be allowed about 100,000 units. The FPHA is obtaining surplus busses for use where the units are distant from the colleges. As an example, it was pointed out that the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor is housing 200 students at Willow Run Village, near Detroit, about 25 miles away.

Assistance is given in the third classification by providing furnishings for garages, gymnasiums and laboratory basements converted to dormitories by the schools. Army and Navy facilities are being donated or leased for libraries and recreation buildings as well as living quarters. For the most part, a single college has been taking over all facilities at a specific camp. However, at least one Army establishment, Camp Shanks, N. Y., is being converted to house 2400 families of veterans who will attend several colleges in New York City.

Snyder emphasized the importance of community campaigns to assist veterans in finding living quarters. He said that student veterans at the University of Illinois conducted a door-to-door canvass with surprisingly successful results.

The report said early calculations as to the number of veterans who would be interested in higher education were upset by the granting of higher subsistence allowances and the difficulty many veterans are having in finding suitable jobs. Although Snyder did not say so, it would seem reasonable to suppose that some of the applications for enrollment would be withdrawn if veterans found satisfactory employment before September.

A contributory factor in the crowding of the colleges may be an increased number of high school graduates who will want to enroll if released from the draft. There is also a serious shortage of teachers and of textbooks.

Shortage of Books, Teachers.

The report noted acute shortages not only of housing but of facilities, books and teachers.

It urged President Truman to appoint a "National Commission on Higher Education" to work during the summer on these and other problems and report "in time for their consideration by the Administration and the next Congress."

Meanwhile it proposed a number of steps to be taken by the institutions themselves, including:

Raising teachers' salaries "to competitive levels."

In this connection Snyder noted that during the war "such facilities as dining halls and gynasiums were used in shifts. Laboratories, classrooms and libraries were used for longer hours than in peacetime. And afternoons, evenings and Sundays were employed for classroom work."

"The war is not over for the colleges," he continued. "Until they can catch up with the demand for their services, they will be forced to use every physical resource to capacity, and to postpone resumption of their normal, and desirable, peacetime pace of operation."

Increase in 1947.

"Even more veterans will be enrolled in the fall of 1947," Snyder added, "and the peak of veterans enrollment will probably not be reached until the fall of 1948. Not until 1950-51 will the number of veterans in college begin to decline significantly."

The Federal Government will spend at least one billion dollars for the college education of veterans in the 1946-47 school year if about 700,000 veterans are enrolled, the report noted.

"Over the years," it continued, "the Federal Government will spend about six billion dollars for college education of World War II veterans—almost half as much as was the total for all purposes spent for all benefits to veterans of World War 1."

The report proposed that "close attention" be given to expanding junior college facilities and "to the possibility of developing a new intermediate group of technical institutes."

All states also were urged to set up central clearance systems "to guide students to schools which have vacancies." The report said such systems have been worked out in Alabama, Tennessee, Ohio and several other states.

DEMONSTRATION AT CAPITAL BY JET-PROPELLED PLANES

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Aerial acrobatics in formation at 500 miles an hour were demonstrated over the nation's capital yesterday by Army jet propelled fighter planes at the end of a trans-continental flight from March Field, Calif.

The new P-80 Shooting Star craft dramatized postwar advances in military aviation for Gen. Carl Spaatz, Army Air Forces chief, and a throng of spectators shortly after completing the 2500-mile cross-country trip by easy stages.

The 29 jet planes, accompanied by five new type C-82 cargo planes which carried maintenance crews and equipment, left March Field Wednesday on a flight aimed at testing the mobility of such a group and working out maintenance and supply problems.

The group is scheduled to leave May 23 for Chanute Field, Ill., on the first leg of the return flight.

HEAD OF GERMAN CITY ASKS IT BE ANNEXED TO FRANCE

SAARLAUTERN, Germany, May 20 (AP)—A request for immediate annexation of this Rhineland city to France and re-establishment of 1814 boundaries was made yesterday by Burgomaster Walter Block to Lt. Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, commander of the French Army of Occupation.

(Saarlautern was included in the territory which was under the French from 1801 to 1814, during the time of Napoleon, and which passed into Prussian hands in 1815).

AMERICANS FOIL PLOT TO BAR MILLION GERMANS FROM VOTING

MUNICH, May 20 (UP)—American Military Government officials revealed today that they had foiled a plot by German officials to deny voting privileges to 1,000,000 Germans now taking refuge in Bavaria.

The American officials said that Julius Koch, a Bavarian interior ministry official, was responsible for the scheme to deny the franchise to Germans who have taken refuge in Bavaria from the east.

Koch, it was learned, issued a directive ordering all such persons be denied the right to vote.

'Big Mo' Broadside in Fleet Maneuvers

ICKES

Right-Wingers Also Infiltrate--- 'Jine and Use' Reclamation Body

By HAROLD L. ICKES.
(Copyright, 1946.)

CONTRARY to the general impression, the left-wingers in this country do not have a monopoly on the tactic of infiltrating into an organization in order to use it for their own purposes. Other kinds of wingers, and some without even hope of wings, are also adept at this practice.

The most determined and most successful example of right-wing infiltration in recent years concerns the National Reclamation Association, a non-governmental organization, which sprang from the great Progressive movement during the early part of the century, and which was originally dedicated to furthering the reclamation program of the Government.

The goals of the Government's reclamation program have been three: (1) the irrigation of arid lands, (2) cheap electric power to pump water onto these lands, (3) a limitation to 160 acres one person may own of such reclaimed land.

For years, the Government, through the Bureau of Reclamation, supported by the Reclamation Association, marched toward these goals. In this fight, the Association was to the Bureau what the Navy League is to the Navy Department.

The benefits which have accrued to the nation through this co-operation of the Bureau and Reclamation Association have been incalculable. Monuments to their activity include the Salt River Valley in Arizona, and the Yakima Valley in Washington, both desert wastes before water was brought to the land, and now flourishing gardens supplying fruits and vegetables to the great cities of the nation.

Almost from the beginning, the reclamation program has been fought by two groups—the big landowners and the private power companies. The 160-acre limitation aroused the opposition of the baronic land owners, although they were delighted at the prospect of the Goverment irrigating the thousands of acres which they hold, thus enhancing their value a hundred-fold. The private power companies opposed the program because they considered cheap government power as a threat to the excessive charges that their monopolistic practices made possible.

After losing battle after battle down the years, these two groups—the private power companies and the great land owners—have finally learned that the march of democracy is too relentless to divert by a frontal attack, so they have finally adopted that time-honored maxim: "If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em, and use 'em."

Utility job holders have joined the Reclamation Association in droves and they have become an influence so great that this once great progressive body is now denouncing as "communistic" cheap public power and the 160-acre land limitation law—two of its three original goals.

The epithet "fellow-traveler" was hurled at Harry Bashore, then commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, at the last meeting of the association when he urged a continuance of the association's original policies. Bashore was taken aback by such a classification. He had been an original Bull Mooser, but not a New Dealer.

And last month, Floyd O. Hagie, secretary-manager of the association which is supposed to be fighting for the water users of the West, had the effrontery to urge higher rates for power from reclamation dams.

Hagie has since announced his resignation, for which the water users of the West may be thankful. He now has a job that will permit him more openly to fraternize with his private power friends.

His successor should be chosen with care, for the private utilities, by trying to take over the Reclamation Association completely, would be in a fine position to play Grandmother Wolf to Little Red Riding Hood public. They could push their reactionary schemes under cover of a name which, before the infiltration of the private power troopers, had won a reputation for liberal and popular policies.

The aims of the utilities and those of the founders of the association will always be diametrically opposed. The association, if it is to maintain its repuation unsullied and its strength unimpaired, must rid itself of the incubus of electric power and the incorporate firm.

150 MISSOURI MULES ON WAY TO CHINA FOR RELIEF SERVICE

HONOLULU, May 20 (UP)—In specially built stalls, with plenty of hay, oats and water, 150 Missouri mules are en route to Shanghai to help the UNRRA distribute relief supplies.

The Army, which provided the mules, is also delivering them with the aid of an UNRRA veterinarian, who is a former Army man, and 55 men from the 298th Quartermaster Service Co. The Army also sent an Army doctor, to take care of the men, in case of injuries resulting from the handling of the animals.

The mules weathered the first leg of their long voyage, from California to Honolulu, in good condition. They are aboard the DePauw Victory, and are part of a consignment of 750.

U. S., Britain Ask Views of Jews, Arabs

Leaders Requested to Submit Opinions on Palestine by June 20.

JERUSALEM, May 20 (AP)—Arab and Jewish leaders were asked today by Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, to submit before June 20 their views on the British-American committee recommendations for Palestine, including the admission of 100,000 Jews this year.

The American consulate said the State Department had cabled instructions to ask the Jews and Arabs to give their views to the Americans by the same date.

(In Washington the Political Action Committee for Palestine called on President Truman to reject any effort to send American troops to Palestine to preserve order.

(Apparently referring to Prime Minister Attlee's statement that Britain wanted United States assistance in carrying out the recommendation of the British-American committee, the organization urged Truman "to reject this dastardly and callous ruse of British foreign policy."

(The letter, made public at a press conference over which Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, presided, said the Jews are entitled to establish their own commonwealth "within the historic boundaries of Palestine which include Transjordan.")

Many La Spezia Immigrants Bear Marks of Nazi Captivity.

HAIFA, May 20 (AP) — More than 1000 homeless European Jews, who arrived here on two motorships which they chartered in Italy for an unauthorized dash to Palestine, were being assigned to transit camps in the Haifa area today as fast as authorities could complete formalities necessary to legalize their entry.

After embarking at La Spezia, Italy, early last month, the refugees were detained there until May 5, when the British granted them certificates permitting their entry into Palestine. In the interim some of them engaged in a four-day hunger strike.

Most of the Jews came from Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic countries. Many bore tattooed numbers on their forearms indicating they had been in Nazi concentration camps. The majority were young and doctors reported nearly all in good health.

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

WAS there ever such a period of frustration as this? The foreign ministers conference at Paris breaks up at sixes and sevens with no date set for a peace conference. Ford Motor Co. closes its largest branch assembly plants because of "impossible" production odds—"42 of our key suppliers are tied up by strikes." President Truman, himself, finds it necessary to act as intermediary to compose differences in the threatened coal and railroad strikes. And all the while, the world clamors for food, clothing, shelter, and industrial equipment; demand everywhere far exceeds supply.

From an American point of view, you can sum the whole business up in four words: Strikes, inflation, famine and Molotov. Someone has described it as "peacelessness." It's the mot juste.

Yet, this peacelessness is not surprising after a long destructive war which was preceded by a period of international hypertension. Throughout the prewar years, Great Britain, France and the United States did not always see eye to eye with Russia. Is there reason to suppose that peace would bring an immediate composition of differences?

Similarly with the industrial unrest now prevailing over here. Ever after NRA, in the depression 'thirties, the unions were on the make in the United States. John L. Lewis spearheaded the growth of the CIO before he broke away from it.

Yet all is not splinteration. There is a basic binder in this world of ours. Men—nations—want goods. Russia, as a single example, seeks a billion dollars to buy American supplies. And American consumers are waiting for the Fords to roll by.

Several years—two at the minimum—of prosperity and high production are dammed up by strikes. That, in itself, constitutes a force in the United States. Labor leaders and management cannot dismiss the clamor of American consumers for refrigerators and automobiles. The wave of strikes is drawing to an end. The tension in Congress suggests as much. The public was lackadaisical about Selective Service. The public is not lackadaisical about goods.

In short, the third setback to production since V-J day is about to end. The first and major postwar setback came when the Army and Navy canceled war contracts after the Japanese surrender. It lasted two and one-half months—from mid-August through October. The ensuing recovery was stopped short by the G.M. strike, the electrical workers strike, and finally the steel strike. In one week, the steel rate plummeted from 80 per cent of capacity to 5 per cent; never before had the steel industry sunk so low. In mid-February, the steel strike ended, and production got going again. Then came Lewis. But now, immediately ahead, lies what Sir Arthur Salter, British economist, would be apt to call: "Postwar Recovery: The Third Effort."

My hunch is that this summer people will resume the prewar game of spotting new cars: "There's a Chevvy! See, the new Chrysler! That will be the start of the long-awaited postwar production boom. And it will mean more to American strength at the international bargaining table than a big army or logic. When the world sees American goods, the world will listen.

Meanwhile, the transition from war to peace has not been a complete bust. For several months now, firms have been taking on more workers than they have been laying off. And this shows up in the April statistics on employment—54,550,000, the greatest number of persons with civilian jobs since the end of the war. As a result, the number of unemployed dropped—360,000—2,350,000. Yet, only eight months ago, government officials feared 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 unemployed at this time! And out of 9,000,000 released service men, 8,000,000 have found jobs. That's an index of the demand for labor.

Demand has also cushioned the farm problem—the problem which so bedeviled Congress and agricultural economists during the 'thirties. Farm income has come out of the prewar cellar to the highest level in history. As a result, farm land values have gone up. This cannot be called "wild inflation"; it merely reflects increased earning power on prosperous farms.

Next Problem: H. C. of L.

Finally, commodity prices, partly reflecting farm prices, will continue to rise. The inflation here is a reflection of a different kind of earning power — individual earning power. And this brings us back to where we started from: the sense of frustration that comes when you have money to spend but can't buy goods. My bet is that the money will break through the bottleneck—even at the price of workers' welfare funds and higher wages. Indeed, the problem we'll be talking about next fall will not be labor troubles and production difficulties but prices—and the high cost of living.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Prelude to World War III

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

With the ending of the second phase of the Great War of the twentieth century, few people were so naive as to believe that the titanic struggle just terminated was a war to end all wars. Quite the contrary. We immediately plunged into discussions and plans for a new, even more efficient war—more efficient because with the advent of atomic power more people can be killed in a much shorter time than ever had been dreamed of by our slightly less civilized ancestors.

Historians of the future will recognize a continuity of conflicts of our time that will cause the struggle of 1914-18 and the recent phase to be considered as one war with a rearmament rest period in between. Now the world's political jockeys find themselves in an embarrassing position. Our former enemies are for the present too weak to attempt another conflict. So by careful blundering and well-planned propaganda, the stage is being reset to bring the only two remaining great powers on earth into opposite corners in preparation for the third and final phase of the Great War.

Men speak loudly of speeding reconversion, yet sit quietly by while the industrial economy of the nation is dissolved before their eyes. Mr. Lewis seeks a health and welfare fund for a union that finds itself suddenly considerate for its members' welfare, Gerald L. K. Smith, a psychopathic case, has managed to shout loudly enough to make the front pages of the nation's newspapers. Senator Bilbo, a man who has the same philosophy as the wild-eyed dictator of Europe, sits in the nation's highest legislative chamber. There are others, too many others, waiting as vultures to pounce upon a stumbling giant.

Externally the world is shaking and diseased from starvation over most of its lands. Instead of struggling ceaselessly for a solution, we go on hell-bent to destruction, gleefully kindling the fire that will set off an explosion beyond the concept of human imagination. Internally the United States is attacked by parasitic, power-mad individuals who find little opposition in our present Government. The United States now is summed up by the phrase, "confusion roughly organized," which had been used by historians to describe the feudalistic state. Shockingly enough, it now fits the United States.

The solution is not within sight simply because the world problems can be solved only by first-rate brains. Second-rate brains struggle in vain with a problem too intricate for them.

WILBUR ECKSTEIN.
University City.

Against "Fast" Time

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You say the people are for daylight saving. I have talked to lots, and everyone was against it.

There is only one honest way to test it. Let the people vote on it. I am sure it would be defeated.

It is hard on us working people who have to get up at 4 a. m. when the nights are too hot to sleep. I hope it is repealed. JOSEPH HIBACEK.

Half a Loaf

At the time of the 1940 census, there were 3,546,720 families composed of only one member and 9,008,680 composed of two members. In fact, families in these two size groups accounted for approximately one-third of the total families.

Yet our smallest standard-size loaf of bread—14 ounces—is of necessity a wasteful size for a vast majority of these families, because the bread dries up and becomes unpalatable and eventually inedible before it is all used in the normal course of events. Under present conditions, it appears that half a loaf would not only be better than none; it would be a highly desirable size for several million families, and it would permit the saving of vast quantities of bread now being wasted. It might go a long way toward meeting our UNRRA quota and putting bread back on grocery shelves. B. A.

Too-Costly Bonus

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Missouri House Appropriations Committee recommends a maximum $400 veterans' "bonus," to be paid for by an additional 2 per cent sales tax.

Resorting to simple arithmetic, it seems each veteran spending a maximum of $800 per annum for 25 years will have paid pack his "bonus," and the rest of the State's citizens will have contributed, too.

I am sure the intent of our legislators is honest, but perhaps short-sighted.

HAROLD CUTLER.
(Veteran of over four years' service.)

As to Teachers' Pay

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Let me express to you the appreciation of St. Louis teachers for your help in focusing attention on the requested salary adjustment. Your splendid editorial and full and accurate reporting of the facts advanced by the teachers in support of their position have been of great assistance. We feel that our cause is a just one and are indeed grateful to you.

ST. LOUIS TEACHERS' CO-OPERATIVE COUNCIL,
By Robert E. Strickler.

Week of Crisis

The focal point of power and authority in the United States last Saturday was not in Washington, D. C., but in the offices of the Railroad Brotherhoods at Cleveland, O.

It was to those offices that the nation's eyes turned and to which the nation's ears hearkened. As the clock's hands sped toward 4 p. m., when the rail strike was scheduled, no word came from the two men—A. F. Whitney of the trainmen brotherhood and Alvanley Johnston of the engineers—until the President of the United States beseeched them by telephone to postpone the strike.

This they consented to do—for five days—presumably on assurance that Mr. Truman would increase the terms of settlement recommended by his own special fact-finding board.

Meanwhile, the war of nerves continues. This is Crisis Week. Unless the brotherhoods get what they want, the rail strike may go on at 4 p. m. Thursday. Unless John L. Lewis's demands are satisfied, the miners may walk out again next Saturday at the end of their 12-day truce. Collective bargaining, as such, has ceased, as the President and his battery of assistants go from one side of these two disputes to the other with suggestions for settlement.

The people look on with dismay at this exhibition of labor union force tactics, on the one hand, and Government impotence on the other. They regard with disappointment and cynicism the humiliating role the President of the United States is playing. Both Lewis and Messrs. Whitney and Johnston have used him as a virtual pawn in the struggle now progressing.

Throughout his career in Washington, Mr. Truman has been friendly to labor and has been particularly close to the Railroad Brotherhoods. As Senator, Vice President and President, he voted for and supported the sweeping reforms granted to labor during the New Deal. Yet it is against Mr. Truman and his Administration that labor has turned, to create one of the bitterest chapters of industrial warfare in history. Labor is taking advantage of its friends in the White House and in Congress in this election year; would it be acting so boldly if the forces of reaction were in the seats of political power?

In any event, this Week of Crisis serves to point out, emphasize and underline the need for law to curb labor's power when it threatens the paramount public interest. Both the friends and foes of labor in Congress and out are moving to this end, and the case for action is well put by Robert Lasch of the Chicago Sun in today's Mirror of Public Opinion. Our economy has become too complicated and interdependent to tolerate industry-wide strikes in such fundamentals as steel, coal or rails.

Merry-Go-Round

Professors hunt headlines with scathing statements about the shapes and psyches of women, men and teen-agers. Marathon dancers weave their weary round. The other day a veteran said he was going to open a miniature golf layout. And, if we hear him aright, Senator Taft is willing to put on the shoes Mr. Hoover took off in March, 1933.

Confusion in the Small-Loan Lobby

There are signs of confusion in the camp of the Missouri small-loan lobby. Its forces were powerful enough the other day to bring about the killing of the House bill, setting up a lowered rate schedule, in a Senate committee. Then, it appears, the master-minds grew suddenly appalled on realizing that if no legislation is passed by July 1, the maximum rate for all loans will automatically drop to 8 per cent. So the high-rate lenders have had a change of heart and are supporting a new uniform-interest bill.

This new measure is better than the high-interest bill reported out by the Senate committee, but its rates are still unduly steep. It changes the present exorbitant schedule only a little if at all. For instance, the pawnbroker rate of 24 per cent a year remains unaltered. The installment type of loan has a maximum rate of 30 per cent, as compared with the present maximum of 36 per cent.

There seems no need for advocates of reasonable rates to compromise on any such high interest schedules as the substitute Senate bill provides. The evidence of confused counsels among the high-rate lobbyists ought to offer an opportunity for adopting rate reductions that will materially relieve the burden of needy borrowers, as the voters intended when they approved the new Constitution.

Kansas and the Demon Rum

The beer truck that knocked over a statue of Carry Nation in Wichita, Kan., is a symbol to those hopeful of repealing the State prohibition law after 66 years. Without further information on the subject, however, it is safe to guess that the truck carried 3.2 beer, which is within the Kansas law, along with coffee and tea. And there is more than a reasonable doubt that Kansans will change that law.

Certainly, Wichita, Kansas City and Topeka, where the legislators insist on something better than red-eye, all leak alcohol at the seams. Wichita is surrounded by spots such as the Rock Castle, where seekers of individual liberty have to pass a gantlet of barbed wire and whispering guards.

But out in the hinterlands, it's different. Away from major towns, a Kansas ma'am can smell a beery breath at 200 feet The only way to escape the devil and prohibition, too, is to use alcohol only for medicinal purposes, which accounts for more coughing spells than Kansas dust. And it is out there on the horizon, next to a little frame church, where the Sunflower State gets its morals, and not in a big-city rectory.

So maybe hypocrisy is the law in Kansas, but it will take a prairie tornado to blow the W.C.T.U. away. And the point is that the thirsty can get it if they want to. They can drive into one of the cities and imbibe in peace and comfort, at about $7 a quart. The busy bootlegger leads the Jayhawker to alcohol, but doesn't have to make him drink. And he seems to like it that way.

As the Bomb Ticks Away

"Ten months have passed (it was on July 16, 1945, that the first atomic bomb explosion occurred in the New Mexico desert) and the bomb ticks away . . ." Such is the grim reminder of the Federation of American Scientists.

The bomb ticks away "while mankind stumbles blindly toward the time when all industrial nations will have bombs enough that any one of them might destroy in one raid the centers of civilization."

And "time is running out."

In a speech at Washington, Harrison Brown, who has been engaged in atomic research since 1939, says that "all mankind is at the edge of the valley of death, and unless we act intelligently and quickly we are doomed as a race. The time we have left is appallingly small."

Karl T. Compton, head of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a speech at Pittsburgh, warned Congress that atomic energy legislation must be passed in this session to avoid "catastrophe and disgrace."

Once again scientific and technological progress runs far ahead of man's ability to fit it to his beneficent uses. Once again, as James Harvey Robinson's great book, "The Mind in the Making," emphasized, the needs of humanity lag behind man's genius and inventiveness.

Scientists achieve. Statesmen chatter and bicker. Man himself sleeps.

No meeting of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission has been held.

While committees in both houses of Congress have worked on plans for atomic energy control and while the Senate committee has reported a measure, there has been no discussion in full debate on the floor of Congress.

The United States Government has no official policy unless the reckless statement of President Truman at Reelfoot Lake—that we will not share our bomb secrets—represents an official policy.

Yet there has been one brilliant ray of light and only one since July 16 last, and that is the report of the State Department Board of Consultants issued last March 17. But it has not been officially adopted.

This board, consisting of men of widely varying background, proposed placing control of uranium and other fissionable materials under an Atomic Development Authority to be controlled by the United Nations.

This authority would mine and manufacture fissionable material. By a denaturing process (whose success has since been challenged, we don't know how successfully), the ADA would make some of it safe. The safe material would be distributed to the nations for the development of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

A system of inspection was provided for to prevent the mining or manufacture of fissionable material by any one nation alone, so that aggressors could be quickly recognized and proceeded against.

The State Department consultants' report was modestly put forth, not as a final answer, but as an approach to the problem, and the committee invited "public discussion."

In the belief that the report may prove to be one of the most important documents of the century, this newspaper printed it in full.

But despite the vital nature of the report—despite the fact that its contents may affect the lives of all who read these lines—there has been precious little discussion of it by leadership and precious little reaction from the public.

Millions of words have been written about Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The consultants' report made hardly a ripple in public consciousness.

The Mayor Looks Ahead

Mayor Kaufmann has acted with admirable foresight in seeking use of 1231 acres of land to be declared surplus at Jefferson Barracks. The Mayor points out that the acreage contains space for a small airport and for the planned hospital for the chronically ill, and it also includes buildings which might be of help in the emergency housing shortage. The city is hard put to find airport sites, space for civic enterprise and housing material. So in going to Washington this week to apply for the property, Mayor Kaufmann will try to bag three kinds of scarce game on one hunting trip.

Threat to the War Crime Trials

The war criminal trials began their tediously prolonged course just six months ago today, and the end is still two or three months off. The cost has added up to a tremendous figure, theoretically to be paid from German reparations, but more probably by the American taxpayer. For those reasons, says Richard L. Stokes in a radio dispatch to the Post-Dispatch, it seems unlikely that there will be any more such mass trials of enemy leaders.

Abandonment of the trials would be an alarming development, another aspect of the growing postwar apathy. Joint action by the Big Four against the war criminals, and the punishment of those convicted, will be an impressive lesson to the German people, and a warning to would-be aggressors of the future. But those sinister and dangerous war plotters, the German industrialists are not represented at the present trial. It would be a dangerous omission if they were never brought to justice.

Much of the delay and the excessive cost is unnecessary, in any event. Mr. Stokes points out how each nation's delegation at the trial considers it a point of pride to consume as much time at the hearings as any of the others. Surely it should be possible to arrange a time-saving schedule, even though the trial is a pioneering effort in jurisprudence.

How is it possible even to consider the money cost in comparison with the war-preventing value of trying and punishing the war criminals? Efforts to hold such trials after World War I ended in failure; so Germany's later crop of militarists had no fear of punishment. Abandonment of the trials would be greeted with jubilation among the die-hard Nazis who look forward to victory in World War III.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Coal walkout has disastrous effect of general strike on public welfare, writer says; thinks Government should intervene to protect national interest; "what we need is not law against strikes, but law that will provide substitute for strikes in public service industries."

Robert Lasch in the Chicago Sun

What seemed to infuriate most people about the coal strike was the power of "one man" to cause so much trouble. "One man" did not, of course, cause it. The trouble was caused by the failure of a group of mine operators to agree with the leader of a mine workers' union who happened to possess full power of decision for 400,000 men.

Nevertheless, the strike dramatized an issue which must sooner or later be faced. And that is what to do about labor disputes in key industries where a prolonged work stoppage ties up the whole national economy—an economy more closely knit and tightly integrated than ever before.

From what has happened lately, it is clear that a long and effective coal strike is virtually the equivalent of a general strike. Coming at a time when full production is absolutely vital to the fight against inflation, this one had disastrous national effects the extent of which can only be measured by time.

It can be argued that the right to strike—a right which certainly exists and by all means ought to exist—forecloses any other means of settling such a dispute except by the naked power of the forces involved.

Effects Upon the Nation

But can a strike be separated from its effects upon the nation as a whole? Is there no way to assert the public interest in the continued functioning of the national economy without violating the rights of workers?

The contention that the state is or should be powerless to deal with interruptions of vital public services is the same argument, it seems to me, which the National Association of Manufacturers presents when it claims that the state should not intervene against the free play of supply and demand. It is the free enterprise argument—the argument that everybody's welfare can best be served by leaving economic forces to themselves, even if the result is inflation or depression.

When the state intervenes against the "automatic" functioning of private economic forces, Herbert Hoover calls the result "statism." But the whole record of our recent experience from 1929 onward shows that, unless the state does intervene, ruin for everybody can flow from the "automatic" interplay of "natural" forces. Statism or not, there are times when the public interest can be protected only by intervention.

Is it not also true that there are times when the general welfare can be served only by state intervention to provide some means by which workers can obtain justice without throttling the economic life of the nation?

Justice Wrung by Force

We establish courts for the purpose of settling conflicts of individual rights without resort to force. When the rights of certain workers conflict with the rights of the people as a whole, there ought to be some other method of granting justice than that which workers can wring from their employers by sheer power.

A strong case can be made for socialization of such an industry as coal—an industry which has been sick for years, which has chronically failed to give its workers decent pay and working conditions, which operates on such a small margin that every well-deserved benefit the workers obtain involves higher prices for consumers. Socialization, accompanied by frank subsidy where needed, is one solution to be considered.

But at best this is a theoretical solution for a practical problem. The practical problem is how to insure justice to workers and yet prevent prolonged work stoppages in key industries which throttle the economic lifeblood of the nation—that is, prolonged strikes in such industries as coal, electric power, communications and railroads.

I see no way out except by intelligent state intervention—not for the purpose of smashing labor unions, but for the purpose of setting up judicial procedures of conciliation, mediation and compulsory arbitration. What we need is not a law against strikes, but a law that will provide a fair substitute for strikes in public service industries.

Mr. Johnston's New Capitalism

From the New York World-Telegram.

Four years ago, a young manufacturer from the State of Washington, Eric A. Johnston, was elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Shortly thereafter, interesting and startling things began to happen in and around that previously somewhat stodgy organization of American business.

Such things have continued to happen ever since, wherever Mr. Johnston has made his influence felt. Some of his elders were painfully surprised by the things he said and did. He disapproved of much in the New Deal, but he didn't hate it; he understood the forces that had brought it about, and he worked for better mutual understanding between government and business. He sought to establish friendly relations with the leaders of great labor organizations. He traveled about this country and the world, seeking information and expressing views which, though they seemed unorthodox and even revolutionary to many business men, struck millions of Americans as sound and sensibly liberal American doctrine.

To the credit of the U. S. C. of C., Mr. Johnston was re-elected for a second term, a third, finally a fourth. The other night, at the Chamber's annual meeting in Atlantic City, he ended his unprecedentedly long administration with a farewell address urging business to help develop a new form of American capitalism. It should, he said, be "a competitive economic system designed for the enrichment of the many and not to make a few men rich."

Mr. Johnston's speech contained much that seems to us wise and true and genuinely hopeful.

INGENIOUS IDEA.

One way Americans could make much more bread available for the starving people would be to eat only buttered bread.

Fine Book by Australian About the War in Europe

This narrative of the war in the Mediterranean and in Europe is written with detachment and feeling for the little people whose lives were disrupted in the conflict. Moorehead, an Australian attached to British forces as a correspondent for the London Daily Express, naturally saw the war from the British point of view, but he has made a conscientious and successful effort to describe it as a joint endeavor of all the Allies.

He takes a broad view of the campaigns in Sicily, Italy, France, Holland and Germany, playing down high military politics and personalities and concentrating on the events as they occurred.

Moorehead says he has attempted to wrap his book around a point that seemed outstanding, namely, that the people will demand the right to speak out. "Whatever the alternative may be about the positive reconstruction of Europe—and for that matter the rest of the world—the thing that people won't have is exactly prescribed. They will not, so long as they have any strength, put up with an arbitrarily enforced censorship, a censorship imposed from outside."

There is a laudatory reference to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, and readers may note the growing stature of this modest genius. In his current "Top Secret," Ralph Ingersoll goes overboard for Bradley and is highly critical of British Field Marshal Montgomery. Moorehead saw a great deal of Montgomery and devotes more attention to him than to any other personality. He obviously admires some of Montgomery's qualities, but there is a feeling he hasn't let himself go fully on the subject.

Speaking of the Battle of the Bulge, Moorehead says that it was the desperate resistance by isolated Americans that saved Belgium and Holland from being overrun, and that "it was here on the battlefield that the issue was really decided when the common American soldier elected to fight up to the point of death."

Moorehead gives strong indorsement to the activities of the Yugoslav Partisans under Tito, and makes some comments in this respect that may be of special interest now in view of the agitation for a trial for the imprisoned Gen. Mihailovich. The Partisan movement, he says, was "the flame of revolution burning about as purely as you can get it." Mihailovich in his opinion, was co-operating with the Germans and battling Tito at the same time he was receiving Allied aid.

The title of the book is the Allied code word for the occupation of Germany. There are maps and an index, but that needn't frighten anyone. "Eclipse" reads like a novel, the publishers say, and with considerable justification.

Economics of Latin America

"Opportunities in Latin America," by Ralph Hancock. (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, New York.)

For an excellent reference book on present economic matters in each of the Latin American countries, one could look a long time before finding something better than this volume. Material on agriculture, transportation and industrialization is well presented by the author, who was a member of the Board of Economic Warfare.

Mr. Hancock sees real hope in our future economic relations with Latin America. For example, he foresees the possibilities, in the next 10 years, of developing a 10-billion-dollar market in machinery by working with the Southern countries' new industrialization.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Humanity's Supreme Test

SHORTLY, we shall have rounded out the first year of the atomic era. It was on July 16 last year that a little group of scientists and military men gathered on the New Mexico desert to observe with awe and horror a test explosion of the first atomic bomb in history.

In the months that have followed, a torrent of words has poured out about the menace and the promise of this new power which transcends anything hitherto known. Over and over, the theme of "one world or none" has been hammered into the public consciousness.

Yet, today, it must be admitted that our progress toward one world has been almost non-existent. The threat of an atomic armament race is as real today as it was a year ago. The problem tends to seem so overwhelming that men's minds cannot cope with it.

Most Hopeful Portent.

The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission has been formed. It came out of decisions taken at the meeting of Foreign Ministers held in Moscow last December. Tentatively, the first session of the atomic commission was set for May 27 in New York. Now, however, it seems likely to be postponed. The reason is that United States policy is not yet formulated. The outline of a policy has yet to be pulled together in a meeting of the minds of those charged with responsibility.

The most hopeful portent during the past year has been the report on the international control of atomic energy which was prepared by a group of distinguished consultants named by the State Department. David Lilienthal of TVA was chairman of that board of consultants.

How Will Policy Be Formed?

The report suggested an international authority to control the raw materials of atomic energy at the source and to supervise the manufacture of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. Realistically, it recognized that a vast army of inspectors looking into every phase of a nation's industrial life would be impossible from either the political or the practical point of view.

At about the time the State Department report was issued, Bernard M. Baruch was named the American member of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. There were immediate indications that Baruch would decline to be sponsor for a pre-determined policy. He has since indicated that he would not use the State Department report as a basis for forming the policy which he will champion as the United States representative on the international commission. He has said he would aim higher.

How then will that policy be formed? That is a question many people here are asking.

Both in the Lilienthal report and in the introduction to it by the State Department committee headed by Under Secretary Dean Acheson, it was stressed that the report was "not a final plan, but a place to begin, a foundation on which to build." That "foundation" was built with great care and thought by five men, each with special resources of knowledge and background, who devoted their entire time to it for many weeks. Therefore it would seem a tragic waste if their labors were entirely ignored when policy-makers finally sit down around a table to put together an American policy.

Task for Geologists.

Baruch has named a group of his business associates to help him draft a policy report. They are all able men. But they must start from scratch. They must try to answer questions of the greatest magnitude.

In any plan of control, for example, it will be essential to get the estimates of top geologists on the volume and the location of uranium deposits. As of the present, only uranium of a certain richness can be used for atomic fission. To make such an estimate would take a large staff and the expenditure of a considerable sum of money.

The Lilienthal report raised more questions than it answered. That was inevitable in view of the limitations in time and scope put on the committee. These questions must be answered if American policy is to have a realistic basis.

Somehow, it should be possible to draw on the knowledge and imagination of everyone who has any background at all in atomic energy. Nothing less than that will suffice. Even the best that we have to give may fall short.

Here there is no room for personal controversy. This is the supreme test of whether human beings can co-operate to save humanity.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Issue in the Coal Controversy

THE questions raised by Mr. Lewis's demands in the coal strike are not such as can be settled out of hand, and under the threat of a paralysis of the economy. They concern not only, or chiefly, the operators and the union. They involve the public. Operators and union might agree and the union be the beneficiary without any loss to the operators. In fact, collusion between industries and unions at the cost of the people is a continuous danger in our kind of economy.

The issue is Mr. Lewis's plan for a health and welfare fund, to be raised by a levy of 7 per cent on payrolls, administered exclusively by the union, and covered by a rise in the price of coal.

It is a proposition to tax the people without representation since all the people are consumers of coal, its price figuring in everything we buy.

Now, coal is a national resource, a gift of nature to the American land. Wherever its legal ownership may repose, the conditions controlling its production, conservation and price are the concern of the people. It does not "belong to" the operators in the sense that their homes, clothes and personal bank accounts belong to them. Neither, in that complete sense does it, or should it, belong to the miners, nor to the miners and operators together. Both exploit it in trust, as it were, to society. If separately or together they fail this trust, society will certainly take it over.

A Limited Right.

Mr. Lewis is not arguing in reason for his 7 per cent payroll tax to be paid by the American consumers. He demands it on threat of stopping the whole economy. The threat is directed against workers, farmers and homes, as well as employers. If he closes the mines, he will close the factories and throw their employes out of work. If he closes the factories, he will slow down the farms depleted of machinery and implements. All will suffer, including his own workers.

Yet this possibility is justified by the "right to strike," and if this right is challenged, some charge that American democracy is assaulted — though upholding the "right" may mean the breakdown of American democracy. An abstraction is given sanction and priority over reality.

Actually, the right to strike, like every other right, is limited by attendant obligations. "The right of free speech," as a great liberal jurist stated, "does not include the right to cry 'fire' in a crowded theater." The right to strike is not an absolute right. Like the right of private contract, the right to due process of law, and all other constitutional rights, it can be claimed and exercised only with the rights of others plainly in view. This frequently has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States in opinions from Justice Hughes to those of Justice Brandeis.

Mr. Lewis demands that his union take over functions paralleling or conflicting with those of public laws and bodies. His fund, for instance, would exercise functions presently exercised by the Workmen's Compensation Law. Are the two to exist side by side? Or is workmen's compensation to be abolished in respect to miners? Already, say the operators, social securities established in law constitute a considerable tax on every ton of coal. How would the existing Government-established securities be meshed with Mr. Lewis's privately established and administered collective securities?

Lewis as the Arbiter.

The fund would amount to an estimated 70 million dollars a year paid by the American people, who, through no public body, are to exercise any control over it. Why 70 million? Why not 80 million? Or 100 million?

No budget is presented. Certain claims, unsupported by actuarial evidence, are made, ending with the remark that if anything is left over it will be used for "educational" purposes. What kind of education? Mr. Lewis is to decide.

Nor is Mr. Lewis "bargaining." He has presented an ultimatum to be accepted precedent to bargaining.

This column has always felt a vivid sympathy for miners, dating from experiences of childhood. As decent human beings and citizens, increased safety, better housing, more favorable conditions for retirement concern us all. Taking into account the often painful conditions of their employment, the skills their work requires, the hazards they run and the national importance of their labor, they are probably inadequately paid in comparison with some other categories of workers.

Demands Complete Surrender.

But it can also be argued that every family given a decent income is better able to dispose of it than are others to dispose of it for them. Fighting for miners does not necessarily, therefore, involve fighting for Mr. Lewis's idea of what is good for miners. Nor can the interests of miners be divorced from the people.

Mr. Lewis is demanding unconditional surrender to his plan with the atomic bomb of industrial collapse. What he proposes would create dilemmas for every public body dealing with social security and for every industry, and it is not being defended in reason but demanded by force.

BOOTH TARKINGTON, NOVELIST, DIES AT 76

Won Pulitzer Prize Twice—Indiana Author Also Wrote String of Plays.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20 (AP) —Booth Tarkington, novelist, died last night in the Indianapolis home in which he had done much of his writing. He was 76 years old. He had been confined to bed by ill health for the last two months.

The author had been nearly blind for several years but had been dictating a new novel and it was nearing completion. The book had not been named but concerned the people of a typical American city.

His death took another of the small group of writers and artists who brought Indiana its golden age of letters shortly after the turn of the century. One of his boyhood friends was the Hoosier poet, James Whitcomb Riley. Others in the contemporary Indiana group were Meredith Nicholson, George Ade and George Barr McCutcheon. Only Nicholson is now alive.

Quality With Quantity.

Tarkington's literary output was prodigious, and the quality was equal to the quantity. Two of his novels brought him the Pulitzer prize for literature—"The Magnificent Ambersons" in 1919 and "Alice Adams" three years later. His first successful novel, published when he was 30, was "The Gentleman from Indiana," and Tarkington himself often was referred to by this title in later years.

Tarkington preferred to be remembered for his mature novels, but it was the tales of boyhood which won him the greatest audience. He wrote "Seventeen," "Willie Baxter Jr.," and "Iittle Orvie," and created his most remembered chacter, Penrod, in the novel of that name.

His Indianapolis home became his fortress whenever Tarkington began work on a novel. He would devote 18 or more hours a day to his writing, turning out each page in longhand on yellow manuscript paper.

It was efforts such as these that cost Tarkington his eyesight. In 1930 he became blind, after being troubled with failing sight for years. An operation restored partial vision, but his stories were dictated thereafter.

Wrote String of Plays.

Tarkington ventured into the field of play writing on occasions. His "Monsieur Beaucaire" was staged in 1901 and he followed it with a string of hits. After the production of "Magnolia" in 1923, he said he was through with the theater. Critics had said he was a novelist, not a playwright. But in 1931 he was back with "Colonel Satan," based on the life of Aaron Burr.

From his Indianapolis home and his summer residence at Kennebunkport, Me., Tarkington watched the world pass by, never failing to inject his opinions on issues which interested him.

Three years ago he took time out to lead the cause of the homeless dogs which the city of Indianapolis sells at its pound for $4. In a letter addressed to the city council, he wrote:

"It can be heaven on earth to be a $4 dog. I can't believe that any $100 dog would be less valuable because there'd come to be a chance for life and happiness in the existence of $4 dogs. The $4 dogs are already in this world—as we ourselves are. Can't they even have $4 worth of a chance to live?

Blast at WPA Murals.

Senator Wallace H. White Jr. of Maine brought the matter to the attention of the Senate and it amended a $3,150,000,000 appropriations bill to eliminate the murals White said depicted "a number of fat women, scantily clad, disporting themselves on a beach."

Tarkington attacked the painting even more bitterly. "It includes," he said, "several figures both male and female. The central figure is a bumpy looking male with an old automobile tire around his waist as a life preserver. The ladies are all bumpy, too, and very, very ugly."

At Tarkington's bedside when he died were the author's wife, Susannah; his secretary, Betty Trotter, and Mr. and Mrs. John T. Jameson. Jameson is a nephew. Tarkington had no children.

Funeral services will be conducted privately Tuesday at Tarkington's Indianapolis home.

TO VETERANS

☆ TO VETERANS:

Beginning Tuesday, May 21, St. Louis Realtors will conduct a consultation service for veterans seeking to purchase a home. Held in the offices of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, 705 Chestnut Street, ground floor, these meetings will be every Tuesday and Friday, 3:30 to 5:30 p. m., until further notice. This service will be conducted by experienced Realtors who have volunteered for the purpose, and who will answer all questions about G. I. rights and procedure in the purchase of a home. There is little we can do about rental property.

☆ TO PROPERTY OWNERS:

If you have anything from a house to a room that you can rent or sell to a veteran, call St. Louis Real Estate Exchange. We in the Real Estate business are like the retailer selling shirts. When he has no shirts, he is blamed. We have no property to rent and little to sell, and we are blamed. You, and only you, can help. New construction is held up by shortages of materials and labor. Priorities when granted are described as "hunting licenses." You, with space to rent or sell, must come to bat in this emergency.

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20—The disgusted cab driver, sour because his favorites—the Phillies—had been beaten in both games of a doubleheader yesterday, said sarcastically, "people will pay to see anything these days. Crowds would come out just to watch 'em play marbles."

The cabbie probably was right, too, for the traditional tailenders, whom the Cardinals trimmed twice, 9 to 5 and 4 to 0, as a springboard back into first place in the National League, have drawn 133,791 cash customers for eight playing days this season. Yesterday's paid attendance—34,049—was the most ever to watch the Phils suffer two more of the defeats that have become so inevitably intertwined with their name.

Gerald Nugent and his socialite Missus, who used to come out financially on the season by selling stars, probably winced as the club's new management regretfully turned away thousands unable to beg or buy their way into Shibe Park. The plainful thing to the Nugents must be the fact that the Phils have done so handsomely at the gate without deserting their customary cellar position. All the efforts of young Bob Carpenter, the new club owner, who has a pipeline into the Dupont fortune, have been unable to give the City of Brotherly Love more than six victories in its first 25 National League games.

Good for Redbirds, Too.

However, appreciative fans, fed up with the do-nothing Nugents, have given the Carpenter administration "A" for effort—and attendance. The Cardinals, idle today, have appreciated that as much as the Carpenter-Chapman combine, for not only have the Redbirds used the Phils to gain three victories in three tries, but that surprising Sunday turnout helped to swell receipts for what probably will be the club's most lucrative road year.

In more ways than one, too.

The Cardinals, with apologies to the traveling circus people, may not have the greatest show on earth. But they apparently aren't far from it. On the road the Redbirds have won 11 of 13 games, giving their better performances, and they have played before 231,525 cash customers. In six games on this trip alone, with a few of the more profitable dates still ahead, Sam Breadon's cash register has rung 127,497 times.

The Redbirds regained the league lead by (1) making their hits count for a change, and (2) because Harry (the Cat) Brecheen figured the only way to win again was to keep the opposition scoreless. The little lefthander, whose previous victory also was a shutout, blanked the Phils on six scattered singles.

Musial Hits Homer.

As usual, however, Brecheen, who has lost four games because the club's attack has been out to lunch when he pitched, had to bear down most of the way in the nightcap. For seven innings one of the Redbirds' four hits off Righthander Tommy Hughes was Stan Musial's second home run of the season, a tremendous drive into the upper deck of the left-centerfield seats. Coach Mike Gonzalez warbled excitedly afterward that he no remember las' time he see lef' han' heeter do that.

In the eighth, however, the pressure on Brecheen was relieved when the Cards scored three unearned runs on one hit. With two out and Marty Marion and Lou Klein on base by virtue of Hughes' first two walks, Terry Moore was safe when Rookie Shortstop Johnny O'Neil missed second base on a force play. All three runners advanced on a passed ball and then Enos Slaughter, volubly competing for the league runs-batted-in championship, singled home two more.

In the first game, too, the Redbirds capitalized on scoring chances, but not before they left eight men stranded the first five innings, during which they banged Lefthanded Dick Mulligan for nine of their 15 hits and were given three walks and the benefit of an inning-opening error. At that, Max Lanier's 5-to-0 lead seemed secure.

Lanier Wins Sixth.

However, the Phils raked Grand Ol' Opry for four hits and two runs in the fifth. The Cards got one in the seventh on two hits, one a perfect squeeze play bunt by Del Rice, just before Philadelphia narrowly missed tying on a three-run, three-hit frame featured by Johnny Wyrostek's second homer of the season. Then the Redbirds, who left on only one runner in the last four innings, scored three times on three hits in the eighth.

So Lanier, while tagged for 10 hits, the most he has yielded, coasted home the last two innings and made his sixth consecutive victory his sixth straight complete game. Like Brecheen, he walked only one batter. Lanier struck out eight.

Triple Turned Into An Out

DEL ENNIS, rookie outfielder of the Philadelphia Phillies, tripled in the first inning of yesterday's first game with the Cardinals, but o verslid the bag and was tagged out by WHITEY KUROWSKI, the Birds' hot-corner guardian. The Cards won, 9-5, and then went on to capture the nightcap, 4-0.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20—The St. Louis Rafterys yesterday ended their quest for the National Amateur Soccer title in a 3-1 defeat by Castle Shannon at Bridgeville Park here, before 1500 spectators.

The victors will meet Detroit in the Western final round on a date to be named. Detroit appears to have the inside track on choice of grounds.

Shannon scored first in the opening half through outside-right Andy Marcin and made the count 2-0 early in the first half when Steve Grivnow tallied.

Midway through the half player-manager Dan Murphy cut the lead to 2-1 with a sizzling penalty shot. Hereabouts the Rafterys really opened up and looked as though they might tie the score.

Shannon's defense held firm and when substitute Bill Kaskey notched the third Shannon goal three minutes from the end, the crowd dispersed.

The home team netted the ball twice more in the second half, but Referee Bruno Cecotti negatived both counts.

The Rafterys impressed the crowd with their clever passing game but the forwards were very much off stride near goal. A fine chance to bring first blood midway in the opening half was presented in Billy Sanders' shot two yards square across the Shannon goal. Not a Raftery man was there to take the gift.

Goalie Vince Klinger made several fine saves, one a full-length dive of a short from Zywan who bundled him and the ball into the net for one of the disallowed tallies.

Outside-left Frank Wallace was also an impressive performer who had the misfortune to see much of his work wasted. Diminutive center halfback Gino Pariani got a big hand when he retired late in the game with a head cut after colliding in midair with Zywan.

Liverpool Wins Again.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—The Americans took it on the chin again as the smooth-playing Liverpool football club blanked the American Soccer League All-Stars, 5-0, yesterday before 16,000 at Triboro Stadium in an international booting contest. There never was any doubt of the British team's superiority because of its fine teamwork and clever footwork.

Gene Olaf once again starred for the Americans, making 32 saves at goal—the same number he had when Liverpool victoriously opened its American tour against the New York All-Stars last Sunday.

Dashing Cyril Done, 26-year-old sharpshooter, led the Liverpool scoring with three goals. John Balmer and Bob Priday completed the scoring with Balmer's goal being his seventh for the tour to make him the lead scorer.

Liverpool took command early in the match and kept the play in the All-Stars' territory most of the time.

After the game it was announced a third New York contest will be held in Ebbets Field the night of June 11. The team goes to Fall River, Mass., tomorrow for a night game there.

Weak Pitching Costs Browns Double Loss To Athletics, 4-3, 13-2

By Dent McSkimming

Pitching, one of the club's strongest assets, went sour in the week-end games and as a consequence the Browns are today insecure in their berth at the top of the American League's second division.

Whereas most of the crowd of 12,583 (11,651 paid) properly expected a double victory for Luke Sewell's team in yesterday's doubleheader with the Athletics, the two-fold triumph went to the visitors, and the disappointment was therefore painful. Losing a game to the Yanks and dropping one to Boston were developments that the team's supporters rather expected. But the last-place Athletics? Perish the suggestion!

But that's a bit rough on venerable Connie Mack's team. In looking back over the two Sunday games Brownie followers must be willing to admit that the Philadelphia club played tight ball. Mack's boys fielded well, at times brilliantly, in support of two excellent pitchers, Dick Fowler and Luther Knerr. They advanced that important extra base, and how they hit that ball! There was none of that uncouth fielding or base running that one expects to find in a last-place club.

From the Philadelphia standpoint it was a well earned double victory, but looking at it from the Browns' side of the field it was just plain awful.

Zoldak Routed.

Sam Zoldak, a recent victor over the New York Yankees and never a badly beaten pitcher, was knocked out of the box as the Macks came from behind to win the first game, 4 to 3, and Al Milnar was the unsuccessful starter in the second game which ended in a 13 to 2 score.

Today the teams rest and then conclude their series with a night game, tomorrow.

Zoldak looked a winner as late as the seventh inning of that first piece, leading 3 to 1, and then, with two out, Pitcher Fowler found the way to make a single, the sixth hit off Sam. A double and a single followed for two runs, tying the score, and then the Macks won it in the eighth on Sam Chapman's triple and Buddy Rosar's single.

The earlier and more pleasant phases of the game, for the local fans, included two whopping home run drives, one by Chuck Stevens into the right-center field stand and the other by Catcher Hank Helf into the left field bleachers. Zoldak needed those runs in the third inning to overcome the Athletics' first run, scored through three singles in the second. One of those singles was made by Pitcher Fowler, so he obviously was a major factor in the victory. The Browns' third run was scored in the fifth when Stevens and Helf singled and Lucadello drove in the first baseman with a single. It was here that Zoldak's inability to sacrifice proved costly. Had he been able to advance the runners as he tried, Lucadello's hit would have driven in two runners instead of one.

Milnar Fails.

The Browns were never in the second game. It was all over before they could get the side out in the first inning. Milnar just wasn't the man who made acrobats of the Cleveland batters last Monday. On that day he scored a three-hit shutout. They couldn't hit him with a canoe paddle. Yesterday he was lucky to have gotten off the mound without having a leg broken by the Athletics' line drive base hits. It's hard to reconcile those two performances, the one in Cleveland and the one of yesterday. Same man, same baseball, but my, what a different result!

There was a succession of St. Louis pitchers, some good, some not so good and from the lot, five of them, Philadelphia collected 18 base hits, including home runs by George McQuinn and Hal Peck. Meanwhile, barrel-chested Luther Knerr kept the Browns' nine hits scattered. One of those was a homer by Walt Judnich.

Thus, in their last three games, the Brownie pitchers have given up 17 hits, 11 hits and 18 hits. They total up to a weekend that will be remembered long after a certain motion picture has been completely forgotten.

Most sensational catch of the day was the one-hand stab of Christman's drive to the left-field corner, by the veteran Tuck Stainback. It just didn't look possible. Important, too, for Stevens followed with a double in that sixth inning.

Peculiar Twist.

Was Fowler lucky? Well, Hal Peck, whose double in the seventh just about beat Zoldak, would not have been in the ball game but for a bit of crude fielding by the Athletics in the sixth. Christman hit a short fly to right center. Three men went after the ball and any one of them might have caught it—but none did. It fell for a single. Then something rarely seen in big league baseball occurred. Manager Mack ordered Right Fielder Elmer Valo out of the game and sent Peck in to take his place, right in the midst of the inning. Peck was sent in to strengthen the defense; then, in the next inning he hit a double that just about won the ball game. Too bad for the Browns that Valo didn't catch that fly, then Peck would have remained on the bench and Zoldak might have retained his 3-1 lead.

'Pinky' Higgins Sold to Red Sox By the Tigers

DETROIT, May 20 (AP)—In a rapid-fire bargaining flurry, the Detroit Tigers within two days have helped to solve two of the American League's most glaring infield weaknesses—both at third base.

Plugging their own gap at the hot corner by trading Outfielder Barney McCosky to the Philadelphia Athletics for Third Baseman George Kell during the weekend, the Tigers turned around yesterday and sold the veteran Mike (Pinky) Higgins to the league-leading Boston Red Sox for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Within the past week Detroit has swapped McCosky to the A's for Kell, sold Infielder Bill Hitchcock to Washington and Higgins to Boston. The deals were the first of major importance here since a January trade sent Rudy York to the Red Sox for Shortstop Eddie Lake.

Ferriss Has Chance to Win 20 Games Second Straight Season

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Dave (Boo) Ferriss, the Boston Red Sox's drawling righthander from Shaw, Miss., had a fine start today toward becoming the first pitcher to win 20 or more games in each of his first two years in the major leagues since Jake Weimer turned the trick for Chicago's Cubs in 1903-'04.

Many hurlers have captured 20 triumphs in their freshman season, but other than the Cub southpaw, none has repeated as a sophomore.

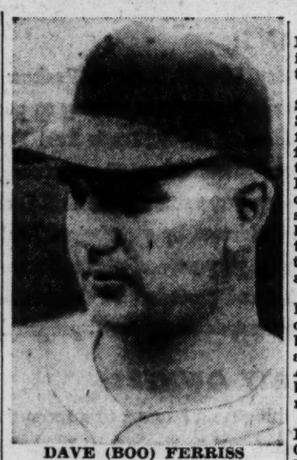
Ferriss, who astounded the baseball world last year by nabbing 21 victories despite joining the Sox just a few months after receiving his Army Air Corps discharge, boasts five wins without a setback this season following his 4-0 shutout victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday. The 24-year-old sophomore's fine performance gave the American League leaders an even break in the twin bill, for Detroit's Hal Newhouser beat the Sox 3-1 on four hits in the nightcap.

In notching his third shutout of the season, Ferriss held the Tigers, a team he has beaten six times in seven starts, to seven hits. He did not issue a base on balls and struck out five. Meantime, the Red Hose roughed up Paul (Dizzy) Trout and his two successors for 10 hits, including a triple by Ted Williams.

Newhouser almost duplicated Ferriss' shutout, holding the Sox to four hits and one run in racking up his sixth win against one setback. Hal fanned nine as Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Outlaw and Dick Wakefield backed him up with home runs to account for all the Tiger runs. The split, witnessed by a near record Briggs Stadium paid attendance of 57,130, left the Tigers in third place, still six and a half games behind the pace-setting Hubmen.



DAVE (BOO) FERRISS

The second place New York Yankees moved within four and a half games of the Red Sox by sweeping their doubleheader with the Indians 2-0 and 7-1 before 53,310, Cleveland's largest crowd of the season.

In the opening game Spud Chandler outpitched Allie Reynolds in a brilliant duel to gain his sixth triumph against one defeat. Both Yank tallies came in the ninth inning. Reynolds had allowed but one hit, a single, until that time. Red Ruffing, aided by Joe DiMaggio's two-run homer, had an easy time in the nightcap as he chalked up his 267th big league triumph.

The Brooklyn Dodgers dropped a full game behind the Cards when they succumbed to the right-handed wizardry of veteran Ed Heusser, who permitted seven hits in pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-0 victory.

The up-and-coming Washington Senators licked the Chicago White Sox twice, 4-3 and 7-1, coming from behind to win the opener from 45-year-old Ted Lyons with two runs in the ninth. It was Lyons' twenty-eighth consecutive complete game over a three-year stretch. Mickey Vernon, who banged a double and homer for the Nats in the first game, hit for the cycle, a single, double, triple and homer, in the nightcap.

After blowing a 6-0 lead and losing 8-6 to Chicago's Cubs in the opener, the Boston Braves came back to win the afterpiece 5-3 on a three-run seventh inning rally. A single by Dick Culler with the bases loaded brought in the winning runs.

In a parade of lefthanders, Pittsburgh and the New York Giants divided a doubleheader, the Pirates winning the opener 3-1 and the Giants the second half 5-1. Buc Southpaw Fritz Ostermueller gave up four hits to earn the decision over Lefty Monte Kennedy, and Portsider Dave Koslo outdueled Lefthander Ken Heintzelman to give the Giants an even break.

Pep and his protege, Johnny Cesario, have wired they will arrive at Lambert-St. Louis field this evening.

This bout Wednesday night at the Auditorium will be the second meeting of Pep and Torres, since they fought seven rounds in the East before Pep stopped Torres. The featherweight champion will be making his 100th professional ring appearance.

Only Top Ranking Pros Asked

By Robert Morrison.

With time on their hands for lack of invitation to the ultra-exclusive Colonial Club event in Fort Worth, Tex., a few early bird professionals checked into Sunset yesterday for the $10,000 Western Open golf tournament starting Friday.

Things are not all hotsy-totsy in the bread and butter league, they revealed. The growing practice of closely restricting the size of fields for big money events—as evidenced at Fort Worth where only 24 stars were invited—is their worry of the moment.

"It's a lot of bunk," said Jim Ferrier, the Australian-born heavyweight who came out of the American Army to gain seventh ranking in golf money winning during the past winter.

"I want to play in every tournament there is. It's my only occupation at the moment, and now look at the P.G.A. schedule for the year—19 out of 23 events are invitation tournaments. I think any service man especially should be allowed to play in any he chooses."

Ferrier was not the only one "included out." Clayton Heafner, another early arrival and a regular contender among the barnstormers, had a similar complaint.

"It's going to hurt the game," Heafner agreed with Ferrier's idea, "because restricting a tournament to only a few of the top-notchers gives the young professionals no chance to get started."

Somebody recalled the 1930 St. Louis Open at Sunset where the low shooter on the first day was an unsung 18-year-old kid named Ralph Guldahl. Seven years later Guldahl won his first of two United States Open tournaments, once shooting the lowest score still on record for the major championship—a 281.

The forty-third Western Open here, in tradition second only to the national open and amateur, is not one of those exclusive events. The field limit of 160 gives sufficient opportunity for newcomers.

All of the P.G.A. sponsored tournaments on the circuit are invitational in a sense but only recently has the number of exceptionally exclusive tournaments grown noticeably.

Ferrier is a 31-year-old comparative newcomer to the field. His history indicates promise. He is the duration Australian open and amateur champion who came to this country in 1940 as an amateur.

Shortly after he arrived in the United States, he tried to enter the National amateur but the U.S.G.A. discovered he had once written a book on how he played golf—he had been a newspaper syndicate correspondent — so he was ruled out of the amateur. There's a law against amateurs writing instructional pieces.

So Ferrier turned professional, served in the Army of this country during the war, and now has hit the tournament trail in earnest. While in the Army he won the 1944 Oakland (Cal.) Open.

St. Louis Dog Is 4th in National Retriever Trials

WINONA, Minn., May 20 (AP)—Black Roland, a black Labrador owned by Wesley Jung of Fort Atkinson, Wis., yesterday won first place in the Open all age stake, main event of the national spring retriever trials staged by the Golden Retriever Club of America.

Patrolman of Timbertown, owned by Paul Lansford of Chicago, won second place; Bancstone Turpentine, owned by Mrs. Donald Talbert of Rush City, Minn., was third, and Keith's Black Magic, owned by Paul Bakewell of St. Louis, Mo., was fourth. All the dogs were Black Labradors.

Certificates of merit went to Gold, a golden retriever owned by George W. Holmes of Lincoln, Neb., and Laddies Rowdy, a Chesapeake, owned by Dr. G. H. Gardner of Evanston, Ill.

A field of 62 entries participated in the event, conducted for 11 hours in the rain. Officials said it was the largest national trial on record.

Hogan's Record 65 Last Round Wins Tourney

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 20 (AP)—Ben Hogan, golf's amazing atom, lapped the field in the run for the money today, his course record five-under-par 65 that brought him victory in the rich Colonial National Invitation tournament pushing his total earnings for the year to $17,819.50—more than $7000 ahead of his closest pursuer.

Colonial Country Club's 6952 dangerous yards were conquered yesterday by little Ben with the greatest round it ever has been Fort Worth's privilege to witness. Coming into the last 18 holes three strokes behind brilliant Harry Todd of Dallas, the Hershey (Pa.) pro who got his start in golf as a caddie on Fort Worth's links, cut the margin to one stroke with a first-nine 33 and wiped it out with a blazing 32 on the final nine.

It was all over except the shooting when Ben rounded No. 13 and roared into the stretch. Three straight Hogan birdies had sealed the bid of the Dallas player for his first triumph in professional ranks. Todd finished with a fine 69 but all Ben had to do was par the remaining holes to win. That, for Hogan, was easy. Ben's 65 was two strokes under the competitive course record set in the tournament's first round by George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah.

Hogan closed out with 279 strokes for 72 holes—one under par—to earn $3000. Todd finished with 280 and drew down $2000. Fred Haas Jr. of New Orleans, six months a pro, shot a 66 on the last 18 to capture third money of $1300 with 281.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., was fourth with 282 and Bob Hamilton, Chicago; Henry Picard, Cleveland, and Lloyd Mangrum, Los Angeles, each ended up with 283 and a tie for fifth.

As the P.G.A. tour sped on to St. Louis for the Western Open, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., was in second place in money winnings for the year with $10,478.75; Snead was third with $10,176.16; Jimmy Demaret of Houston, fourth with $7785, and Herman Keiser of Akron, O., fifth with $6431.24. Nelson won $520 for tying for ninth place in the Colonial tournament. Snead won $1000, Demaret $200 for tying for seventeenth place and Keiser $75 for tying for twentieth.

Horn Seventh Qualifier for 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20 (UP)—Ted Horn, driving the same eight-cylinder Maserati that Wilbur Shaw twice piloted to victory in the 500-mile race, today became the seventh to qualify for the 1946 Indianapolis motor speedway classic.

Horn turned the 10-mile qualifying sprint at an average of 123.980, fourth fastest time among the qualifiers.

He was the first man to attempt to run for a place in the 33-car field since six pilots made the grade on opening day, Saturday.

Poor weather conditions stopped trial runs yesterday, causing the American Automobile Association to open the track from 1 to 5:30 p.m. today.

Horn will have inside position on the third row Memorial day. He was driving an eight-cylinder super-charged rear-drive special owned by Mike Boyle.

Horn, a consistently high finisher in previous speedway races, opened with a 124.206 lap. He duplicated his third time around and his slowest time was 123.745.

About 200 fans were in the stands as Horn qualified. A crowd variously estimated in the neighborhood of 30,000 witnessed only a few tuneup runs yesterday as rain prevented actual trials.

Tener, Former N. L. Head, Dead

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20 (AP)—John K. Tener, ex-governor of Pennsylvania and one-time president of the National Baseball League, died yesterday after a two weeks' illness. He was 82.

Tener, who had fought off three critical attacks of pneumonia in recent years, was striken by a heart attack May 1 at his home, and his condition remained serious until the end this morning. Few people knew of the illness.

Tener was the Pennsylvania governor in 1911-15 and president of the National League from 1913 until 1918. He also played in the baseball league in 1888-90 with the Chicago Nationals, achieving considerable success as a pitcher.

In 1899 he made the first world baseball tour with a team gathered by A. G. Spaulding.

Ruth Gets Bigger Thrill Out of a Bull Fight Than Ball Game

MEXICO CITY, May 20 (AP)—Babe Ruth, the former sultan of the swat, got a bigger kick out of a bull fight than he did a baseball game yesterday.

He saw both as guest of Mexican league baseball president Jorge Pasquel.

The bull fight "was a great thrill," Ruth commented, but the Veracruz-Tampico game earlier "was too one-sided . . . 7-0 for Veracruz when I got there in the second inning."

Whitakers Roll 2454 in Tenpin Title Tourney

KANSAS CITY, May 20 (AP)—The Silver Seal Soda's St. Louis team score of 2721 remained the mark to beat for the title in the women's International Bowling Congress championship tournament today after a determined effort by Alcona Recreation, Detroit, fizzled in the final game last night.

After putting together games of 911 and 900, a pace good enough to top the St. Louis team's total, Alcona Recreation's girls had 11 splits in the last game to spoil their hopes and stake their total at 2636, good for fourth place in the standings. Flo Moup's 568 and a 566 by Coral Jones paced by the Detroiters.

Other high five-woman scores were posted by State and Madison Recreation, Rockford, Ill., 2479; Olympic Recreation, Detroit, 2471; Whitakers Ruehl Photo, St. Louis, 2454, and Waukegan Recreation, Waukegan, Ill., 2441.

While yesterday's doubles and singles rolling failed to find new names in the top five, three teams managed to dent the upper 10. Milwaukee's team of Olive Herman and Esther Ryan posted 1103, good for ninth place, while Ruth Van Escher and Eric Hainsworth, Seattle, Wash., and Cele Notowski and Genevieve Harry, Milwaukee, came up with 1099s for tenth place ratings.

High singles score for the day, 189-195-211 for 595, was turned in by Marge Kleabunde of Milwaukee.

DETROIT, May 20 (AP)—Tony Sparando of New York City today pocketed $3000 top prize money in the thirty-fifth Petersen bowling classic, rolling 1799 for a 224 average in the eight-game test concluded here last night.

Birds Need More Vitamins

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Game birds need more vitamins—not to escape the eager nimrods but to keep alive.

The Interior Department's fish and wildlife service said today it is worried about the birds' vitamin deficiency. Recent studies indicate mysterious losses among northern grouse, partridge and quail may be due to lack of vitamin A.

Through their research, the experts think they may have found the answer to one of nature's most perplexing puzzles—why it is that birds plentiful in an area one season are practically non-existent the next.

Sportsmen can help avoid the disappearances, the department suggests, by supplying the birds with stalks of yellow corn or greens, such as kale.

Foster Ideal Five Wins Tenpin Tourney

Foster Ideal bowling team won the Industrial Y.M.C.A. handicap bowling tournament which was rolled at Nelson Burton alleys Saturday and Sunday with a score of 3016.

Second place went to Ralston Purina with 3013, Sunnens and Laclede Christy tied for third with 3007, Midwest was fifth with 3005 and Lincolns had 2989 for sixth.

C. Connors had the high three score with 601 while W. Cassmeyer had the best single game, 224.

Ellis to Race Juvenile Stars At Fairmount

Keep an eye peeled on the stable of J. C. Ellis in the two-year-old races run at Fairmount Park this spring for the Owensboro (Ky.) turfman, owner of Dade Park, has one of the finest string of juveniles to race here in a long time.

Ellis shipped in 11 head from Churchill Downs yesterday for the 31-day meet starting next Saturday, and seven of the group are juveniles.

Blank Dismay and Miss Neal, recent entrants in the $10,000 Debutante Stakes at Churchill Downs, headed the juvenile arrivals, but the group also included Sweet Kay, Dude S., Little Jim, Miss Nilene and Tranquilla Tide, and the older performers, Gomel, Lucky Lass, Earl's Best and Future Star.

Blank Dismay was the champion juvenile of Hot Springs, gaining two easy victories, while Miss Neal, was a five-length winner in her debut at Churchill.

Ed B. Shipp announced that the Cuban jockey, Rafael Sanabria, had signed to ride for him here this season. Now at Hawthorne, Sanabria is due here Wednesday. Sanabria rode 145 winners last year.

Rail Strike Postponement Inspires Some Buying — Traders Pause on Coal Crisis.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Assorted stocks crawled toward recovery today but many leaders failed to exhibit enthusiasm and dealings were among the slowest of the year.

Accounts were reinstated here and there on the idea that postponment of the railway strike might mean that Washington, one way or another, would find means to keep the trains rolling. The coal crisis still was a puzzle for Wall Street, however, and numerous customers stood aside to await developments.

Sales today were 910,000 shares, compared with 980,000 shares last Friday.

Of the 927 issues traded in today, 528 were higher, 224 lower and 175 unchanged. Fifty-three made new 1946 highs and eight new lows.

Market Is "Thin."

The market again was exceptionally "thin" with a few issues jumping a number of points on restricted turnovers. Steels, motors, rails and special issues were among the better performers. Gains of fractions to 2 or more points were well distributed near the close.

H. L. Green common climbed about 10 points and Pfizer 4 at the best. Ahead most of the day were Chrysler, General Motors, United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Montgomery Ward, International Telephone (one of the liveliest), Columbia Gas, Phelps Dodge, Philip Morris, Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, American Woolen and United States Lines. Du Pont rallied at the finish on a boosted dividend.

Trend on the Curb.

Improved in the curb were brown rubber, Todd Shipyards, United Light and Consolidated Mining. Backward were Grocery Store Products, Bunker Hill and Cities Service.

Recent apathy of most farm equipment shares was attributed by analysts mainly to the prevalence of labor walkouts in this field which have cut manufacturing to a minimum. Five of the major "long line" agricultural machinery makers have been hit by strikes, some of which began as long ago as last November when many of these companies begin their fiscal years.

Boardrooms studied the compilation of the OPA which estimated that price ceilings have been removed from 3000 commodities and services since July, 1945. The agency said that sales of the items affected total around 10 billion dollars annually. Sales of more than 100 billion dollars a year, it was added, still are under price control.

News in the Market.

Holders of steels noted reports from producing centers that output of ingots, which suffered a drop last week to 48 per cent of rated capacity, would take another tumble in the current week because of growing fuel shortages.

INCOME OF 17 STEEL MAKERS OFF 52.8 PCT.

CLEVELAND, May 19 (AP)—Earnings of 17 leading steel producers during the first quarter of 1946 dropped 52.8 per cent below the same period for 1945, a survey completed by "Steel" trade magazine disclosed today.

The magazine said the total showing was the lowest in many years, with six of the companies showing loss for the period. The steel strike during January and February was blamed for much of the loss, and "Steel" predicted figures would be better for succeeding quarters.

Pressure for steel deliveries, the magazine said, continues heavy from many sources, with the automotive industry pushing for steel to meet current requirements as well as for new programs, including the light cars slated for production by Ford and Chevrolet. Willys-Overland has also indicated interest in a light six-cylinder model to supplement the line of Willys jeep automobiles now being produced.

The magazine continued, "Confusion reigns in the steel industry as production continues limited by lack of fuel and orders back up far into the future. With most steelmakers sold through the year on practically all items and consumers pressing for deliveries, it is impossible to make schedules with any certainty especially in view of the continuing decline in production."

While the two-week truce in mining resulted in more coal being mined and has reached consumers, steelmaking has not been improved and no gain is expected until the coal situation is definitely settled, "Steel" said.

Pig iron shortage, a result of banking many blast furnaces, has caused foundries to curtail operations and in some cases to close until conditions become more normal. Under the circumstances, "Steel" said, at least a month after fuel supply is resumed will be required to bring pig iron supply to a point where a reasonable rate of shipments can be expected.

"Steel's" ingot production estimate last week continued its decline, falling 6½ points to 49 per cent of capacity. Eastern Pennsylvania receded 21 points to 36 per cent, Pittsburgh 5½ points to 39½, Chicago 7½ points to 45½, Youngstown 2 points to 43, Cleveland ½ point to 77½, Wheeling 2½ points to 72, Cincinnati 5 points to 84, St. Louis 10 points to 44½, New England 5 points to 75. Rates were unchanged at 84 per cent.

STEEL OPERATION THIS WEEK TO BE A SHADE BETTER

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Steel operations will be at the rate of 49.2 per cent of capacity this week and tonnage at 867,100 tons, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated. In the previous week mills operated at 48.9 per cent and turned out 861,800 tons.

A month ago the figures were 73.6, and 1,297,100 and a year ago they were 92.9 and 1,701,600 respectively.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES $1.15 TO $1.45 HIGHER

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Cotton futures were firm in moderatively active dealings today. Persistent New Orleans buying and mill covering against textile orders met only limited hedge offerings. The market was influenced by unfavorable crop reports and belief that the Senate will modify the present restrictions of the price control bill. Private reports complained of excessive rains in some portions of the cotton belt, which retarded planting operations and growth.

Late afternoon prices were 65@85c a bale higher. July 27.33, Oct. 27.59, and Dec. 27.70.

Cotton futures rallied to the best levels for the day in late trading on the announcement of several Senate amendments to relax price controls, particularly one sponsored by Senator Barkley, which was regarded as yielding by the Administration to pressure for more rapid decontrol.

Futures closed $1.15 to $1.45 a bale higher.

BOND MARKET IRREGULAR ON SMALL VOLUME

Gains of Fraction to Around Point in Some Issues Watch Like Losses Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Price trends were scrambled in thin trading in the bond market today.

Gains and losses, mostly less than a point, were fairly well divided near the end of the session.

Prominent among the losers were Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Lehigh Valley stamped 4s, Missouri Pacific Convertible 5½s, and N. Y. Central "A" 4½s.

In the over-the-counter market United States Government long-term issues tended downward. A lower trend started Saturday after prices had advanced almost all week.

The market continued in an indecisive mood up to the final bell.

Closing higher were Erie 4½s at 93⅞ and Kansas City Southern 4s at 103¼. Southern Railway General 6s dropped 2 to 121⅛.

RAINS IN GRAIN BELT SEND CORN AND OATS LOWER

Latter Closes Mixed — May Rye Rebounds 10 Cents After 5-Cent Setback.

CHICAGO, May 20 (AP)—May rye soared 10 cents in the last 15 minutes of trading today, jumping from a low of $2.22⅝ to a high of $2.32⅝. At the high the contract was up the daily limit of 5 cents from the preceding session's close.

The upturn in the May future followed shortly after a cash house purchased 20,000 bushels of cash rye at $2.32⅝, which at the time of purchase was 10 cents a bushel higher than the quotation for the May delivery. The May delivery also jumped the 5-cent limit at Winnipeg.

Favorable weather for crops brought some selling into corn and oats early, but part of the early downturn was regained. New corn contracts finished 1⅛ lower, January $1.45½, net oats ⅛c lower to ⅝c higher, August 83½@¾c, old oats unchanged to 1 cent lower, September 80c, and wheat was unchanged at ceilings, August $1.98½. May rye finished at $2.32⅝, up 5 cents.

TYPIST IN REICH DIES IN FALL FROM CAPTAIN'S ROOMS

American Woman Tumbled From Second Floor of Officer's Frankfurt Apartment.

FRANKFURT, May 20 (AP)—A 38-year-old American woman died last night from injuries which the United States provost marshal said were suffered when she fell from the second floor of a United States Army captain's apartment in the headquarters compound here.

Lt. Col. Redmond J. Connolly of New York, the marshal, said the woman was found, nude and unconscious, lying on the backyard porch by a German charwoman.

She died 12 hours later at the Ninety-seventh General Hospital. She was identified by Connolly as Miss Dorothy Knapp of Staten Island, N. Y., a War Department typist.

Connolly said the fall "appears to have been purely accidental."

The vivacious, dark-haired typist arrived here only six days ago from the United States.

"She and the captain came to the apartment at about 2 a.m. yesterday," Connolly said. "There was laughter and talking, but no violent commotion. The captain said he was asleep when the charwoman screamed at about 8 a.m."

Connolly estimated the fall occurred at 7 a.m. The name of the captain was withheld.

BELLERIVE CADDIES PICKET CLUB WHEN TWO-BAG FEE IS CUT

Golfers arriving at Bellerive Country Club on Natural Bridge road, Normandy, yesterday morning found caddies carrying picket signs instead of golf bags. They were demanding restoration of a 20-cent slice in fees for carrying two bags for 18 holes.

Picket lines protesting against the cut were established at the entrance to the club, at the clubhouse and at the first tee. After four hours the strike ended when the management agreed to increase the fee for double carrying. Some caddies, who apparently did not know about the strike, had been working all morning.

Club Professional Ben Richter said that prices for single-carrying and "ball shagging" had been raised, and fees for double-carrying lowered, because members like to have their own caddies without sharing a boy with someone else.

About 50 caddies protested, Richter said, since they prefer to carry two bags and make as much money as possible. Fee for double-carrying, which had been cut to $2.80 for 18 holes, was restored to $3. Other fees were increased from 75 cents to $1 for nine holes, $1.50 to $1.75 for 18 holes and 40 cents an hour to 50 cents for "shagging."

3 PERSONS, 5 FIRMS FINED; VIOLATED ANTI-TRUST LAW

WASHINGTON, May 20 (UP)—Three individuals and five companies, convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust act in fixing prices on artificial limbs, today were fined $500 to $3000. United States District Judge Bower Broaddus pronounced the sentences.

McCarthy Hanger, president of the J. E. Hanger Co. of St. Louis, was fined $3000; Joseph F. Branham, vice president of the J. E. Hanger Co. of Illinois, was fined $1500, and Hugh Hanger, president of the Philadelphia Hanger Co., was fined $500.

The five J. E. Hanger companies in Missouri, Illinois, Delaware, Indiana and Texas were fined from $500 to $2000. In all eight cases, half of the fines were suspended. The eight persons and corporations sentenced pleaded not guilty and were convicted last week by Judge Broaddus, a visiting judge from Oklahoma City.

Thirty-three companies and 30 persons previously pleaded nolo contendere—that they would make no contention — and were found guilty. Counsel for these defendants revealed that an appeal would be made on fines ranging from $500 to $2000.

FLEXIBLE METAL HOSE FIRMS FINED AS PRICE FIXERS

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP) — Fines totaling $61,000 were imposed today on seven manufacturers of flexible metal hose and the Flexible Hose and Tubing Institute of New York City after they entered "no contest" pleas to charges of conspiracy to fix prices and restrain trade.

Fines of $10,000 each were assessed by United States District Judge Samuel Mandelbaum against American Brass Co., Waterbury, Conn.; Breeze Corporations, Inc., Newark, N. J.; Chicago Metal Hose Corp., Pennsylvania Flexible Metallic Tubing Co., Philadelphia, and the Flexible Metal Hose and Tubing Institute of New York City.

The Atlantic Metal Hose Co. and the United Metal Goods Co., both of New York City, were fined $5000 each and the Forsyth Metal Goods Co., East Aurora, N. Y., $1000. Indictments naming 10 officers or agents of the firms were dismissed.

Lieutenant in Malmedy Massacre Trial Statement Asserts He Ordered Men to 'Use Terror Methods.'

DACHAU, May 20 (UP) — The Malmedy massacre trial court heard evidence today that German troops were ordered to use American uniforms and vehicles to disrupt the retreat of United States forces in the Battle of the Bulge.

Col. Gen. Josef (Sepp) Dietrich and 73 other S.S. men are being tried for the mass murder of United States prisoners of war and Belgium civilians.

In a statement read to the court, Lt. Benone Junker said he ordered his tank commanders to "use terror methods in the treatment of war prisoners."

Prosecutors said further evidence was expected to prove that Junker also ordered his troops to slaughter civilians.

Junker said company commanders at a meeting Dec. 15, 1944, the day before the German offensive began, were told that "if necessary the resistance of the enemy will be broken with brutality — the end justifies the means.

Capt. Oskar Klingelhoefer of the S.S. said a battalion commander named Poetschke gave the following order in the presence of Joachim Peiper, regimental commander and one of the defendants:

"A unit under Lt. Col. Skorzeny, in American uniforms and using American vehicles, will march ahead of the combat units in order to destroy all communications and spread panic and terror and eliminate command posts. Prisoners are not to be taken by this unit."

Poetschke is dead. Skorzeny, saboteur who worked directly under Adolf Hitler's orders and who seized Benito Mussolini after the Badoglio Government in Italy imprisoned him, is a war crimes prisoner under guard in the S.S. hospital a short distance from the trial court.

ARMY OF 1,500,000 IN SIGHT BY JUNE 30

Inability to Draft Boys Leaving High School Creates Military Problems.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Exemption of teen-agers in the six weeks' extension of the draft may cost the army more than 100,000 replacements, responsible officials estimate. Congressmen advocating the draft cut have argued that higher army pay and more intensive recruiting would produce the needed men.

A study has started to determine whether occupation forces in Germany and Japan can be reduced below levels which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has called the minimum for national safety. Eisenhower has said the job can be done with no fewer than 335,000 soldier in Europe and 375,000 in the Pacific.

From a peak of 8,300,000 men after V-E day, the army has dwindled to a current strength of approximately 1,730,000. Further demobilization will reduce this total to 1,500,000 excluding Philippine Scouts, by June 30. Between May 15 and the end of June, the War Department had hoped to obtain up to 100,000 from the draft, including some 80,000 youths of 18 and 19 just finishing high school.

Instead no more than 23,000 inductions are now looked for in this period, including 15,000 men from 26 to 29 years old, and possibly 8000 in the 20-25 age group. Voluntary enlistments started falling off when the fate of the draft began to appear doubtful. Fewer than 12,000 recruits signed up the first week in May, projecting an outside maximum of 50,000 for the month. April produced 63,000 and March 73,000.

Men with two years' service or 40 points will still be returned to civil life until July 1, and probably beyond then. But until the uncertainty over the draft's future is settled the War Department is making no promises about carrying out an announced hope to be able to cut the service requirement to 18 months.

Current one-year enlistments start expiring in October and the War Department will be required to release these volunteers at the rate of 55,000 a month, at the same time remaining draftees are being let out upon completion of two years' service or less.

Meanwhile the War Department is going ahead with preparations for a general reorganization of top level machinery, effective June 11, which is calculated to save some manpower by wiping out duplications which arise in wartime. The Army service forces, which Gen. Brehon B. Somervell built into a formidable organization, is to be abolished entirely. Reduced in size, Army ground force headquarters moves to Fort Monroe, Va. Six armies will take over the functions of nine existing service commands on that date, but this operation involves reshuffling of official channels and responsibilities more than physical shifts of officers and men.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERY STRIKE IN PHILADELPHIA IN 5TH DAY

PHILADELPHIA, May 20 (AP) —News-hungry Philadelphians, in the fifth day of a truck drivers strike that halted distribution of the three largest newspapers in the city, lined up today by the thousands to buy copies at the newspaper offices. Hundreds of others bought papers from youngsters at black-market prices which were as high as 25 cents for a paper that normally costs three cents.

About 370 members of Local 628, Philadelphia Newspaper and Magazine Chauffeurs and Handlers, an affiliate of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America struck Thursday in support of demands for a paid half-hour lunch period. The walkout halted deliveries of the Morning Record and Inquirer and the Evening Bulletin with a combined circulation of 1,500,000.

Editorial and clerical employes of the Record and Inquirer, represented by the CIO American Newspaper Guild voted 205 to 13 yesterday to refuse to go through picket lines set up by the truck drivers if "strikebreakers" are hired. A Guild resolution instructed its members "whose regular duties before the strike did not include selling or distribution of papers not to do this work during the teamsters' strike."

RAIL TRAFFIC HERE IS BACK TO NORMAL

Some Inbound Trains Late Yesterday—Two Embargoes Lifted.

Railroad operation in the St. Louis terminal area had returned to normal today after Saturday's confusion over postponement of the nation-wide strike of locomotive engineers and trainmen, which caused home inbound trains to be late yesterday.

Ira T. Davis, general superintendent for the Terminal, said operations were "in the clear" today, with both inbound and outbound trains moving on schedule. Embargoes on livestock and perishable shipments were lifted, and orderly operation had been restored.

Trains from the east and Texas were from three to four hours late yesterday, due to the delay in dissemination of the strike postponement announcement before the strike deadline Saturday, which was 5 p.m. St. Louis time. One train came in with a supervisory engineer at the throttle, in place of the regular engineer, and with a substitute brakeman.

SCHOOL SALARY RISE DECISION IS PUT OFF

Education Board Officers to Study Income, Expense Data, Meet Friday.

The executive officers of the Board of Education met today to consider what salary increases for the next school year they would recommend to the board, but adjourned the meeting without a recommendation until next Friday to secure more detailed figures on estimated income and expense.

The board at its last meeting approved the principle of wage increases for all salaried personnel, including teachers, and instructed its executive officers to prepare recommendations covering the amount of the increases and the basis for granting them. A special meeting of the board will be called early next week to receive the recommendations, President Herbert O. Winterer said today.

In explaining the inability of the executive officers to arrive at a definite figure today, Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey, acting chairman, said the officers wanted a complete breakdown of the estimated income receipts for next year as well as detailed cost figures on the new L'Ouverture School.

He pointed out that last fall the board made a firm commitment to replace the fire damaged L'Ouverture School for Negroes with a new building at the earliest possible moment to relieve the crowded conditions resulting from the dispersal of those students. The cost of the building, which will be a 22-room structure on a site bounded by Hickory and La Salle streets, Montrose and Cardinal avenues, has been estimated at $700,000.

Because of the rise in building costs since the estimate was made, the committee has requested Building Commissioner Joseph P. Sullivan to review his figures and submit a new estimate of the cost in time for the meeting Friday. The board has available $300,000 toward the construction cost from its permanent insurance fund, Secretary-Treasurer Mervyn E. Wiethaupt announced.

The board is expected to accept the recommendations of its executive officers at its meeting next week. Previous discussions would indicate the amount of the increase will be between $200 and $300 annually. Wiethaupt has indicated a sum of approximately $1,328,000 would probably be available for this purpose next year but the exact amount cannot be foretold at this time.

The board will act upon the recommendation in time for the proposed increases to be considered at the meeting of the Finance Committee on June 10 when a preliminary budget hearing will take place.

The Army Ordnance plants described below contain major acreages which are now, or shortly will be, classified as industrial areas and other areas which may be classified as more suitable for other uses. In classifying these facilities sufficient land will be allotted for industrial or manufacturing purposes including buildings and improvements necessary for such operations and such land as may be needed for industrial operations will be made available to purchasers or lessees.

Spanish Luncheon At the White House

By Hope Ridings Miller

WASHINGTON, May 20.

EVER since news of that Spanish luncheon hit the headlines, countless cooks have been begging for the menu that had wives of ambassadors, senators and Supreme Court justices —as well as the First Lady herself — working for hours in the White House kitchen before the luncheon.

In case you missed the story, it had to do with the day that Mrs. Harry Truman played Dutch treat luncheon hostess to the 66 members of the Spanish classes of Senor Ramon Ramos. The White House class, the Senate ladies' class and the three classes that meet twice weekly in the Shoreham apartment of Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin gather once a month at some member's home for Saturday luncheon. The professor cooks the meal, aided by pupils who volunteer to help in the kitchen and with the serving. There have been times when Senor Ramos has had his troubles in persuading some of his pupils to help him prepare the meal. But not that recent day when the White House was the scene of the luncheon.

PROMPTLY AT 9 O'CLOCK that special Saturday morning, several prominent Washington women were being ushered into the White House kitchen. A delight to any housewife would be that spacious room where huge stoves, cupboards containing a variety of pots and pans, steam tables and broad ovens and refrigerators offer every convenience. In no time at all Senor Ramos and his team were in culinary action. If photographers had been present, they would certainly have turned their cameras on Mrs. Truman, who was perched on a high stool at a center table cutting up olives. Around her were Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, wife of the Massachusetts Senator; Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Under Secretary of State; Representative Jessie Sumner of Illinois, and Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the Canadian ambassador—all occupied with such duties as making salad dressing, pounding spice leaves into powder, grating carrots, skinning almonds and opening cans.

THREE HOURS LATER the main dish, "Fricasse de Gallina," was finished; and an hour after that, guests seated at small tables in the state dining room were being served by the waitresses of the day—Mrs. Hugo Black, Mrs. Brien McMahon, Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Mrs. William H. Davis, and Miss Florence King. Among those present were Mrs. "Ike" Eisenhower, Mrs. Robert Patterson and Mrs. George Allen, who had spent the previous morning buying groceries for that dish at a little Spanish store on Seventeenth street.

The recipe for "Fricasse de Gallina" is a special invention of Senor Ramos, and up to now it has been a top secret. But in answer to the plea of housewives, here it is. (Incidentally, this serves 10 persons.)

Ingredients: Five breasts of chicken, one-half box raisins, one-half small bottle olives, one-half bottle capers, one green pepper, five pieces of garlic, two white onions, one small can pimiento, six bay leaves, one pinch cumin seed spice, one pinch wild marjoram spice, one pound skinned almonds, three lemons, two cups Burgundy wine, one pound rice, 25 cents worth of saffron; salt, butter.

DIRECTIONS: Put washed rice into pot of boiling water and add tablespoon of salt. When grains are tender, wash rice in cold water until latter is clear. Into another pot put egg-size portion of butter. Add rice and a little more butter on top. Lay a small piece of wet wrapping paper over rice and put pot in slow oven. By the time the wrapping paper is dry, set rice aside on top of stove. Cut tomatoes, garlic, onions and green pepper into small pieces. Add these to hot frying pan in which two soup spoons of butter have been melted. Add cumin seed spice and marjoram to bay leaves in a cloth and hammer them into powder. Add this to mixture in frying pan and then add two cups of wine. Cook over low fire five minutes and then put aside until ready for use.

Cut breasts of chicken in two and lay them on bottom of stew pot. Over chicken spread chopped olives, the capers, Mexican pepper, juice of lemons, the almonds, the raisins and the saffron. Then pour sauce from frying pan over chicken and add enough water to cover. Sprinkle with salt; put pot in oven over low fire, and cook for about two and one-half hours. Warm up peas while chicken is cooking.

To serve: Place generous helping of rice on plate; place half breast of chicken on top; cover with sauce in which chicken is cooked; then add, on top, peas and pimiento cut into small slices.

Parked Automobile

By Christopher Billopp

SINCE an automobile cannot be taken with you wherever you are going, like a pocketbook, it must occasionally be left beside the curb for several hours or more.

It would be pleasant if you could forget it. But once the car is out of your sight you will begin to think of all the dire things that could happen to it and all the things you may have overlooked that make it secure.

Did you wind up all the windows? Did you lock the left-hand door? How about the right-hand door? Was the place where you parked it forbidden ground? If it was not, then why was no car parked there before you?

Were both wheels within six inches of the curb? Were the contents of the car placed on the floor where they would not be so likely to catch the eye of thieves?

How do you know that at this very moment thieves have not gained access as only thieves know how and ridden off in it? Will it turn up several weeks hence on a mountainside hundreds of miles away? If so, how will you make out without a car?

Maybe, as you go about your business, your neglected car is being backed into or sideswiped by some bullying truck or station wagon twice its size.

So, with your fevered imagination picturing the worst and wondering whether you can lay your hand on your insurance policy, you rush back to the car.

And oh what a blessed relief to find it safe and sound, standing there unticketed and as calm and placid as when you left it!

CONG. RANKIN was knocking the immigrants again. He concluded by boasting that both sides of his family could trace their ancestry back to those who came over on the Mayflower.

A trio named Riley, Cohen and McIntosh sent Rankin this memo: "Did you have any relatives on the ship we came over on last year? It was the U.S.S. Franklin."

AT A RECENT OPENING reviewer Kelcey Allen kept bobbing his head and slumping in his seat.

"What's the matter," asked a neighbor, "having trouble keeping awake?"

"No," yawned the critic, "keeping asleep!"

GEORGE ABBOTT had a streak of horrible luck the past few seasons—five flops in a row. A dramassassin was moaning to Abbott that his reviews were responsible for the death of so many shows lately he was beginning to feel "like an undertaker."

"That's a whole lot better," reminded George, "than feeling like the corpse."

WILSON MIZNER once assured the critics that a play he'd written would be a hit. Consequently they all went to the opening. After the curtain fell on the flop, Mizner rushed around to wake the critics and apologize.

"What are you sore about?" he flipped. "At least you didn't lose any sleep over it!"

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE J-294: Sandra L., aged 18, was a member of a sorority group where I gave an address not long ago. "What do you think about the popularity of slang?" she challenged. "We know, of course, that excessive use of slang words and phrases is not considered lady-like, but many slang words are quite expressive. Besides, some of the words which now are called slang may be included in the dictionary ultimately, may they not? This is a modern age, so why shouldn't we be entitled to employ modern language to express our thoughts?"

TRUE, THERE IS nothing particularly sacred about language. Words are simply tools of the mind. When these tools are no longer sharp or refined enough to produce good results, better tools are in order.

Slang phrases are often vivid and virile. Sometimes they also serve as safety valves, for the release of pent-up emotions. Thus they replace oaths or more vulgar speech. They are occasionally very appropriate and clever. Perhaps all of us employ slang to some extent.

Men are the chief users of slang, however, and probably the creators of most of it. As a result, when women employ these vivid, virile phrases they tend to appear coarse.

The proper "feeling tone" or sense of appropriateness is thus violated when girls use either profanity or excessive slang. It is not wise for any girl, regardless of how pretty she may be, to cheapen the effect which she wants to create in the minds of her public.

In the business world, a firm which is trying to build up a "quality" feeling tone for a product is very particular not to use any words in the advertising copy which might even remotely cheapen the effect. Girls can very well take a lesson from this policy.

FROM THE scientific angle, moreover, the chief objection to slang is the fact that it indicates mental laziness. To say that a certain movie is "swell" is a lazy stoppage of thought. Do you mean that the movie is humorous, romantic, entertaining, instructive, true to life, correct in its portrayal of character, of historical incidents or of foreign customs and costumes? One who thinks an idea through will not stop with a lazy "swell."

"It sends me," or "He's a drip," and hundreds of other thought stiflers prevent people from exercising their brains and becoming precise in the use of language.

Every word stands for a slightly different thought. Those who aspire to be educated should try to become clear thinkers, which means precise speakers.

Learn to think an idea through to its conclusion. Don't allow yourself to slap meaningless slang phrases in the middle of a thought and use them as an excuse for not thinking further.

Precision in the use of words should be just as great as the surgeon's precision in wielding his scalpel.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

FRESH sugared pineapple makes a refreshing breakfast fruit, cocktail, salad, or dessert. For greatest eating pleasure, the fruit should be well ripened. A sure test is when a gentle pull on any leaf will easily remove it. The typical fragrance of thoroughly ripe fruit can also be quickly detected when a leaf is removed. Once ripe, the fruit does not remain sound very long, so when purchasing a ripe specimen, plan to serve it promptly. Otherwise, buy less ripe fruit and don't make plans for serving until it reaches the desirable ripe stage.

There are several ways of preparing the fresh fruit, but one practical one is to pull out all the leaves, then hold the fruit firmly on a cutting board and with a heavy sharp knife something like a butcher knife or a knife for slicing ham or roast meat, use a shaving like motion to pare off the skin as thinly as possible until a clean juicy ellipsoid remains with only the "eyes" showing up. Then use an apple corer or a sharp pointed paring knife to remove the "eyes." Cut the cleaned pineapple into slices, then cut the circle from the outside into the core breaking off the wedges at the core. Do this work over a bowl to catch any dripping luscious juice.

Add just a little sugar, cover extremely tight so none of the penetrating fragrance may escape into the air. Chill or let stand at room temperature just long enough for the sugar to draw out enough juice and slightly shrink the pineapple enough to be just covered in its own juice. Serve cold or at room temperature to suit your own family palate. A few sliced strawberries glamorizes this most elegantly flavored and delightfully textured fruit.

Watercress Salad.

Make dressing by combining one-fourth cup light corn syrup, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon prepared mustard, and one tablespoon grated onion and mix well. Add four teaspoons vinegar, and two tablespoons salad oil and beat with a fork until smooth and thick. Chill in refrigerator. Wash two bunches watercress, shake as dry as possible and place in salad bowl. Separate whites and yolks of 4 hard-cooked eggs. Finely chop the whites and puree the yolks through a coarse sieve. Sprinkle both over top of watercress. Right before serving, add salad dressing, toss and serve. Serves four.

Menus for Tuesday.

Lime Cream Pie.

Beat three egg yolks thoroughly, add one-half cup lime juice and pulp (three large Persian limes), and the rind of two of the limes, beat slightly. Add 15-oz. tin sweetened condensed milk, mix thoroughly, then add one drop green food coloring. Pour into baked eight-inch pie shell. Beat three egg whites until stiff, but not dry; add one-half cup confectioners' sugar gradually, beating after each addition. Spread over pie filling, swirling with a spoon. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 12 minutes. Remove from oven and cool slightly, then set in refrigerator until thoroughly chilled. Pie may be made the night before and kept in refrigerator. Five-six servings.

Two Scotsmen played 16 holes of golf without saying a word to each other. On the seventeenth tee, McDougall broke the long silence. "I am one up," he announced.

The other looked at him with unmitigated disgust. "Chatterbox," he rasped.

Common-Sense Medicine

ON occasions surgical complications during pregnancy make their appearance and call for conservative as well as definite decisions. The pregnant woman is subject to the same surgical diseases as the non-pregnant patient, but fortunately, surgery, it seems to me, is more commonly seen in the non-pregnant woman. In many instances the conjunction of the two conditions makes little difference in the management of either. In some instances treatment should be conservative, in others immediate operation is indicated and in some operation should be deferred until after delivery.

It thus becomes apparent that good judgment is necessary to assist the pregnant woman to a successful delivery when surgical complications become manifest.

Mothers of pregnant daughters show much concern, and justly so, when a surgical problem presents itself. Acute appendicitis in a pregnant patient is serious. When symptoms and findings strongly indicate appendicitis operation is advisable. The pregnant uterus (womb) interferes with localization of the inflammatory process and if the appendix should rupture general peritonitis (the serous membrane which lines the abdominal wall and invests the contained viscera) may occur.

Intestinal obstruction, if definitely diagnosed demands immediate surgical intervention. Cancer of the cervix calls for prompt surgical attention unless discovered near term when treatment may be delayed until after delivery. Large ovarian tumors or a twisted pedicle of an ovarian tumor justifies immediate surgery. Fibroid tumors of the uterus may be treated conservatively during pregnancy unless location or size of the fibroids interferes with delivery. Small ovarian tumors may remain until after delivery.

Enlargement of the thyroid gland calls for conservative as well as operative interference. The type of thyroid involvement regulates the type of treatment necessary.

It would seem then that the pregnant patient if handled intelligently stands an excellent chance of recovery irrespective of the surgical complications.

DR. EDWARD WHITE ROBERTSON.

My Day

-o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

AT HYDE PARK, Sunday.

AT 5 p.m. on Saturday a railroad strike was called which, if it is carried through after the present truce, will practically paralyze the nation and cause great loss in time and perishable goods. In this dispute, I cannot find it in my heart to blame the railroad men, because I know that life has been none too easy for them during the years of the war. They stood by when trains were crowded, when old equipment was being used and people were worried and tired. The cost of living has gone up, the hours of engineers and trainmen and conductors have been longer, not shorter; and when the war came to an end, there was no longer the patriotic reason to carry on. The men feel naturally enough that it is time for someone to think about them, instead of their having to think about the people.

UNFORTUNATELY, the public may not stop to consider the merits of this case if strike action is ultimately taken. Neither the management of the railroads nor the labor leaders seem to realize that when you make the public uncomfortable enough and they have no patriotic reason for bearing it, they are going to be completely unreasonable. They are going to be willing to accept and even to back bad labor legislation, and they are not going to be one bit interested in whether the management makes or loses money. A strike would make for bad feeling all around.

Sometimes, when I see how inadequate we are at settling these disputes among ourselves reasonably, I despair about a peaceful world. Since our interests are so obviously tied together, we would all be better off if we sat down around a table and found out what could be done about our difficulties—and then did it. If we can't do this in labor disputes at home, how on earth do we expect to do it when the people concerned belong to different nations?

One might feel here and there that one had an individual who was impossible to deal with. But most people are reasonable, and public opinion should take care of the unreasonable ones. If we don't begin soon at home to find ways of settling our troubles, I will not be the only one who is going to despair for the world.

WHILE THIS destructive business goes on, there is one constructive thing that starts next Tuesday morning, and that is the final drive to raise the money needed to fight cancer. It will be a house-to-house canvass in many parts of the nation. The people who conduct this drive call themselves "The Army of Hope." Thirty to 50 per cent of them have had cancer and been cured.

Sivty per cent of whatever is raised will remain in the locality, so that a program of education, service and research can be carried on there. The remaining 40 per cent goes to the American Cancer Society to forward its program of research in the cause and cure of cancer. Statistics show that one death out of eight in the nation is due to cancer. In New York City it is one out of every five. So it would be a great saving of human lives if people could learn that everybody is vulnerable and only education and research can reduce the danger.

BEST MYSTERY BOOK, MOVIE OF 1945 NAMED BY GROUP

HOLLYWOOD, May 20 (UP)—The American Society of Armchair Detectives, a national association of mystery story writers, today voted the best mystery book of the past year was "The Little Man Who Wasn't There," by Mildred Gordon. The best mystery movie was Alfred Hitchcock's "Spellbound."

The best hard-boiled writer of mysteries was Raymond Chandler, in the opinion of his fellow writers, while the best unhard-boiled writer was Leslie Ford. Craig Rice of Los Angeles was chosen the best humorous writer, while the best fictional detective award went to Rex Stout's Nero Wolfe.

The greatest detective of all time, the writers decided, is John Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM still in my teens, with a little son five months old. My husband left me because of this child, never even asks about him. I still have some love left for my husband but have applied for a divorce. In the last few months I have fallen in love with a man who is divorced and has the custody of his two children. I have known this man a long time. I am sure he will ask me to marry as soon as my divorce goes through. This man was a good provider, and seems to care a great deal for my little boy. Would I be taking on too much responsibility to marry this man? Do you think I should tell him I still care for my husband? When I am with him I forget all about my husband, however. He is seven years older than I am. Will that matter? Do you think we could really be in love or are we both just unhappy and mixed up? I can't make up my mind what I should do. Please help me.

A LITTLE TROUBLED.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

My guess would be that you are two unhappy and mixed-up people right now, and you will do well to do nothing hastily. If and when your divorce goes through give yourself a breathing space in which to determine whether you really love this man, and take good stock of all the attendant responsibilities should you marry him. The fact that his children's mother still lives can make for added complications, and should be taken into consideration. It would seem to me a girl in her teens has quite enough responsibility with one child without taking on others to rear which are not her own. The seven-year age difference may not matter greatly, but the fact you are still in your teens, have had one unhappy marriage, should cause you to think very seriously before letting yourself in for a second marriage which might also end unhappily.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A high school freshman. Is it all right for me to double date? I haven't gone out all year because my sister, who is 16, doesn't want me to. She will go to mother and tell her not to let me go anywhere just because when she was 13 she couldn't. I realize that if I do go against my sister and go out anyway she will be very disagreeable about it. But I do think I should be having some of the fun the rest of the crowd does. There is a boy who likes skating and bowling and all the other things I like. We have been going out on the sly. I would like to tell mother about it and introduce the boy to her. He's nice and she would like him. But I am afraid to tell her or to bring him home on account of my older sister. I know she wouldn't be nice to him and would run him off. I am going to have to begin to live my own life sooner or later. Don't you think I should start now?

SINCERELY.

You certainly should not be single dating at 13. However, don't let big sister bluff you. After all, whom do you have to mind, her or mother? So talk to your mother about going with the teen-age crowd, ask her to let you have them over to your house so she can meet them all, and include this boy among the number. And no more meetings on the sly. That is one sure way to get into trouble, and a boy seldom thinks as much of a girl who deceives her family in this way. Be open and aboveboard and have nothing to hide. That is always best.

IN ANSWER TO "Just Wondering": Neither "Hi" nor "Pleased to meet you" is the proper salutation when introduced. Under all possible circumstances the reply to an introduction is "How do you do?"

IN ANSWER TO "B. J. T.": Three cheers for you and your entire happy family! I only wish I heard oftener from a gal like you. It would certainly brighten my day.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE following letter from a clergyman is very puzzling to me: "A short while ago I conducted a wedding according to my usual procedure and now have been told that the bridegroom was very disappointed because he could not watch his bride as she came up the aisle in church. The traditional procedure, as I understand it, is for the groom to see the bride only when she arrives at the altar and I always have directed couples accordingly. But since this protest I have been looking through pictures in magazines and have been much surprised to see a picture of an entire bridal party at the altar, turned and watching the bride as she finished the procession with her father. Is this something new? Is it good form?"

I can't imagine what steps could be taken to prevent the bridegroom from watching the procession as it approaches him. In the order of the wedding processional the ushers always lead and are followed by the bridesmaids who are in turn followed by the bride and her father. The bridegroom, standing at the head of the aisle, can see little or nothing of his bride beyond the ushers and the bridesmaids, unless the vestry opens on the chancel! In this case the bridegroom remains standing near the clergyman at the top of the chancel steps with his best man behind him and then can see his bride over the heads of the ushers and bridesmaids from the moment she enters the church. Then when these have taken their places on either side of the chancel, he goes down the steps to greet his bride. In my opinion, this makes the perfect wedding picture.

It is likely that this clergyman has been confused by the "superstition" that it is bad luck for the groom to see the bride on their wedding day until they meet at the church.

DEAR MRS. POST: My father thinks it is unconventional for me to go for a week's visit to the family of my boy friend until our intended engagement is announced. He lives several hundred miles away so it has not been possible for them to look me over or for me to get to know his mother, father and two sisters who all will be in the house. My father thinks I should be engaged before I do this, whereas I think that it is more sensible going to meet his family before I am engaged. Father says he will abide by your opinion.

Answer: I take it for granted that his family has invited you, which makes your going entirely proper. I also think it is very wise of you to want to see him at home, meet your future family and have him see how well you fit into his surroundings before making your engagement definite.

Hard-Hitting Golfer From Texas

Byron Nelson, Here in Western Open Starting Friday, Is Today's Top Golfing Star

By Robert Morrison
of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff

BYRON NELSON, the strong-armed golfing Titan of a new generation and comparable to the game's immortal Bobby Jones, arrived at that stature perhaps as much through a deep-seated sense of obligation and duty as anything else.

The sports world knows Nelson, whose swishing driver and flashing blade will be on display in the Western Open tournament here starting Friday at Sunset Country Club, as the Nation's No. 1 wartime athlete. It knows him as a phenomenal scorer, a top money winner and such a tough competitor generally that other stars get the shakes whenever he enters a tournament.

But there is more than that to this squinting, sandy-haired Texan with the steel-gray eyes. Rejected by the military throughout the war because of a slow blood coagulation condition, he undertook to be a main pillar in the game that had given him his opportunity, and to carry on a strenuous succession of war benefits and charity appearances.

No picking the rich and important tournaments, no skipping overnight sit-up jumps in jampacked coaches—in other words, no reneging either on war benefits or on his friends and associates. He could have taken it easier. But he—with his wife at his side—kept on the go because he thought he ought to.

That, in short, is the type of man he is. An acquaintance, recently remarking on Nelson's sense of obligation, said that the golfer is a conscientious contributor, a tither, it is reported, to his little home-town church at Denton, Tex.

"Oh, I don't think I gave any more than anybody else who makes the same money I do, so you might as well just skip that," said Nelson when he was here for an exhibition match a few weeks ago.

"I'm amazed at some of the reports that I have won a million dollars in golf," he continued. "From 1933 to 1936 I won about $10,000; from 1937 to 1943 I averaged about $7000 a year and in 1944 it was $35,000 and last year $52,000, not including war bonds which brought it up to over $62,000."

These were tournament winnings, representing about 80 per cent of his gross income which is subject to business expense, Nelson said. He works for a golf equipment manufacturer and an umbrella company on the side. During the last 10 years, the period of his successes, the indication he gave of his income would make it appear that he has averaged not more than $20,000 annually, not a great figure for a man exceptional in his business.

"I have no ambition to be the richest man in the graveyard," the 34-year-old champion asserted. He said he intended to play in only about 10 tournaments during the remainder of this year. Eventually he plans to establish himself on a cattle ranch he recently purchased in Texas.

The grind of traveling during the last 14 years has worn on him to the extent that the prospect of further fame and fortune fail to be attractive. And the strain of competition has had its effect in loss of cencentration, the faculty so important in hitting a golf ball where it's supposed to go.

"I can never expect to play again as well as I did last year," Nelson said of his great scoring record average of 68.33 strokes per 18 holes for 120 rounds. He won 19 of 31 tournaments. "As my umbrella boss told me," he continued, "a man's got so many good fights in him and then there are no more and I think that's true."

Nelson's parents were ranch people. When he was 10 years old, the family moved to Fort Worth where his father engaged in the feed business. The children, including a brother and sister, received their elementary education there and it was at high school Byron learned that boys caddying at the Glen Garden golf club were earning 75 cents a round. This turned him toward the game. He never was much interested in his schooling and he quit before he finished high school to take a job in a railroad office as a filing clerk, in 1929.

Every day found him at the golf course, however, and when the depression hit the railroad office he was bumped because of lack of seniority.

"I didn't care," he said. "I was playing in a lot of pro-amateur golf tournaments and I was a pretty good punk amateur. I'd nearly always win some sort of prize—merchandise, you know — and I'd take those and sell 'em to make a living. I was living at home and I got along all right, but sometimes I'd head out to a tournament away from home with only $5 in my pocket and it was skimpy going."

The champion grinned at the recollection that it was some of those matches at $1.50 a round that were indirectly responsible for his being able to marry.

"I had to win those or I'd never have been able to take my future wife to a picture show or get an ice cream soda afterward," he said.

In 1932 he turned professional.

"Then I really did starve to death," he remarked.

One year he made only $900 but later he managed a $3100 season and he was finally on his way after a five-year struggle. His wife, whom he married in 1934, traveled with him on the tournament circuits and has not missed a championship of any consequence.

This year, however, after their continuous traveling she told her famous husband that "about three more years will be all I'll be able to stand." She never played the game much. "I just decided that as much trouble as I used to have with my game, I didn't want to come home evenings and hear the same from her," Nelson said.

A small, pretty brunette, Nelson's wife is the former Louise Shoffner of Texarkana, Ark. A steady and artistic knitter, Mrs. Nelson seldom follows her husband around the course, but even less often is she without exact knowledge of how he is doing while she sits on the clubhouse porch or lawn knitting the wool socks Nelson always wears.

Sometimes, in a big crisis, she will put the knitting away and edge up to the rim of the gallery swirling around in Nelson's wake. She isn't tall enough to see him, often, but she'll be somewhere in the crowd. She won't know he's made one of his remarkable shots until she hears a burst of applause from the gallery.

These shots are sometimes for the book. Gene Sarazen, the hammered-down little Italian-American who has played with and against all the great stars of the game for 25 years, says Nelson is the greatest shot-maker the game has ever seen. "Vardon was a machine, Hagen was a competitor and Jones was brilliant," says Sarazen, "but Nelson has the shots."

Six feet and an inch tall, Nelson was a slender 155 pounds in the early days. Now he weighs 173 and has the usual powerful wrists and hands characteristic of golfers. He follows only a few training rules—plenty of sleep and no fried foods and participation in no other sports than golf. He neither smokes, drinks nor gambles.

Because Byron's star rose during a war that prevented international competition and greatly limited that in this country, Nelson had not the opportunity to match Jones's unparalleled record. Other different conditions make the comparison useless.

But in his day the Texan hasn't been matched. He was United States Open champion in 1939 and P.G.A. champion in 1940 and 1945 in addition to his other achievements, and he'll be be around for some time to come. He can use the money to stock that Texas ranch.

Sun in Taurus.

General Tendencies.—A change of activity will be a characteristic of tomorrow—felt most strongly about noon, although some people always respond more quickly to any ionic vibrations than do others. By the way, the scientists tell us now that, just as astrology has always insisted, space is filled with fine, material particles, not being merely a vacuum. Vibrations do travel through such matter, they add. Look for a trend toward art, music and the fine arts generally today. If you entertain, make your program something along this line of thought.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

Many unfamiliar conditions loom up immediately ahead — some of them surprising but most of them already hinted at in your present activities, if you examine them closely. Romance? Yes maybe with restrictions or later difficulties concerning finances but probably with a basis of congeniality to work upon. Avoid October and November of this year for your important decisions in either work or domestic life; second thought will bring a wider view of your circumstances in 1947.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 no trump	Pass	6 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart queen Declarer made a rapid count of tricks, saw that the slam would be safe if the outstanding spades broke 3-3, and promptly put all of his eggs in that basket. He won the first trick, cashed four diamonds and three clubs, then hopefully led out the ace, king and queen of spades. West, however, had held grimly to his stopper in that suit, and South had to acknowledge defeat.

Declarer was perfectly right, of course, in concluding that a 3-3 spade break would give him the slam. There was, however, one small precaution that he could have taken, with an eye to the spades not breaking! It was impossible for him to win all thirteen tricks, therefore why not concede the first trick for the advantage of establishing a possible squeeze position? Observe that the passing of the first heart would create precisely that situation! East can make any shift he chooses; declarer wins, cashes the heart ace, three clubs and four diamonds, discarding his own last heart on dummy's long diamond. What can West do? If he discards his last heart to hold the spade stopper, dummy's heart five becomes the fulfilling trick, if West keeps the heart he cannot hold sufficient guards for his spade jack.
